Oh, please. Don't resurrect the dufus's comments. He's been gone for 36 hours now and it has been a welcome respite indeed.
I, for one, am hoping that he lost his ISP and secondly, hope that he will never return.

Unfortunately, like colon cancer, he will probably return.

So far, so good. 36 wonderful hours without Mark spamming these groups. This feels like being on a three day mini vacation. See how nice the groups have become? Even Spam and Cheese is easier to take.

Before retiring for the weekend I will burn some incense, light some votive candles, and offer a fruit bowl to Buddha while sending my prayers skyward with the entreaty that Mark never again returns to Usenet.
And while I am doing so I will also beg the Gods to strike Mr. Wiseman's power lines with the wrath of a million volts, thereby melting his modem into his floor.
Heck. As long as I am burning incense I may as well ask for two favors rather than one.

The only thing that would make this better? That Woger be touching his computer when Odin strikes. Or Mark. Or both.

Based on the raw data we are losing 22 amateurs per day, 8030 per year, and will lose 200,750 in the next 25 years. Looks like proof that it is a dying hobby, but only time will tell when, at what point will the FCC eliminate the amateur radio service, and on what basis, number of hams? or bowing down to spectral resource pressures?

It does not necessarily mean amateur radio is dying. Please consider the probability that the service has more hams than it should have since in the 90's many people pushed the idea to non-hams that 2m would be the way for families to stay in touch as they operated around town. Now that usage is accomplished by cell phones. If they did not develop an interest in other aspects of amateur radio, they will let their licenses lapse. As these disappear, I expect to see a stabilization in the numbers. As it stands right now, the US has twice as many hams per thousand people as most of the rest of the world. The "cell phone hams" will pretty much be shaken out in a few years and the decline may stop at that time. I would expect our numbers to stabilize at about half what they are now.

Now this does not excuse us from recruiting. We need to do so anyway. However, we have to be savvy about it and recruit people who are likely to stay because they are apt to enjoy this activity for its own sake and not as a substitute for some other service.

Awww...another lonely weekend for you. But aren't they all?

Too bad for you he disconnects the phone line and shuts off the computer. Besides, modems are easy to come by these days. Or haven't you heard, since you are still using a 28.8 baud one.

You really shouldn't burn weed in that apartment, well, hopefully that filthy carpet will catch on fire and you are too doped up to get out in time.

Let's hope your shitty car breaks down with you stuck in it on the interstate in front to two fully loaded, speeding Mack trucks and you end up looking like you are in a sardine can.

11. Best 2M / 440 repeaters to use in the Baltimore/Washington area

I'm flying to Baltimore tomorrow morning and driving to Rockville, MD for a daylong series of meetings. I'll have my Kenwood TH-F6A with me. What are the best repeaters (frequencies and PL tones) in Washington and northwest suburbs where I can pass the time while stuck in traffic, and maybe get some help getting around and past the traffic jams?

Thanks...

Dee, all good points. I guess in a nut shell we have some ability to influence the future of ham radio and number of licensed individuals, but on the other hand I think there will continue to be influences out of our control making it harder to recruit and retain people in the ARS. With continued pressure from the internet, easier to utilize/implement technologies, HOA rules, and todays lifestyle not leaving nearly as much free time as in the past, I don't see as favorable attraction to the ARS that we have seen in the past. IMO, in the past Broadcast TV and Radio was king and was the dominate technology that touched so many. When you had an amateur radio station at your home, you could generate interest in the service, but now radio seems to be viewed as old technology when compared to Satellite TV/Radio, cell phones, the internet, and video games. In today's world it is harder to get kids or young adults interested without being viewed as some type of nostalgia buff grasping at some old outdated technology.

Lloyd Davies was not announcing any obituary of amateur radio.

Newcomers have almost kept the number of amateur radio licensees at roughly the same level as the expirees losses. The actual growth in licensee numbers is very slightly negative.

Based on www.hamdata.com numbers from 31 Mar 07, representing the FCC database information of that date, there were a total of 721,996 licenses issued of all classes and clubs. Again from hamdata, the total number of licenses from two years ago was 733,033. That difference is 11,037 and represents a growth of approximately -0.76 percent.

The peak license numbers occured on 2 Jul 03 with 737,938 total licenses of all classes and clubs.

In truth, that is one "reason" not heard out here.

In 2004 the U.S. Census Bureau stated that there were 100 million cellular telephone subscriptions in the United States. That is an average of about 1 in 3 Americans. That isn't a fad or whim but a MAJOR MAJOR change in the way America communicates.

>If they did not develop an interest in other >aspects of amateur radio, they will let their licenses lapse. As these >disappear, I expect to see a stabilization in the numbers.

A negative growth of ~0.7% per year for over 3 1/2 years can't be called "stabilization." Since the peak of 2 Jul 03, some 15,942 licensees have dropped out for a -2.2% growth in about 3 3/4 years.

>As it stands
>right now, the US has twice as many hams per thousand people as most of the >rest of the world.

Is that a negative or a positive thing?

I was unaware that there "should" be some sort of cap on how many radio amateur licensees there should be... :-(

>Now this does not excuse us from recruiting. We need to do so anyway.

Not if you want the USA to "be like the rest of the world."

>However, we have to be savvy about it and recruit people who are likely to >stay because they are apt to enjoy this activity for its own sake and not as >a substitute for some other service.

Most of the USA already had cellular telephone service in 1991 when the no-code-test Technician class was created. The no-code-test Technician class has been the overwhelming GROWTH factor in keeping the total number of licensees "stable" (your definition of that word). Had that not happened the total number of licensees would, quite probably, have DROPPED.

The no-code-test Technician class has had continued growth for 16 years and, as of 31 Mar 07, the 307,197 Technician class licensees represent 42.5% of the total US amateur radio licensees. That is larger than the 148,063 licensees in General class, the second most numerous class, with 20.5% of the total licensees.

Now, as far as I know, ALL those licensed radio amateurs took their tests the same way that all other licensees took theirs...FOR THE SAKE OF AMATEUR RADIO. Not for "using 2m like a cell phone" or badgering a spouse to get one so they can brag to others that he/she "is also licensed" or some other specious notion. If some have dropped out, they MAY have dropped out due to unacceptance by some crotchety olde-tymers needing someone to demean or some form of clique of olde-tymers ignoring newcomers. There are NO records kept on the WHY of dropping out, save for the SK announcements which have the obvious reasons. Speculating on dropping out from an original "cell phone substitute" sounds specious as a reason. That does NOT explain why the HF-oriented amateurs are dropping out. See the QRZ website "expired" and "soon to expire" free service listings and those license classes.

I would say that US amateur radio has been UNIQUE for its own sake for roughly a half century...to have unique personal radio contact with other amateurs who share the same interest. If you can't work on that premise as a reason for getting newcomers to join...or KEEPING them past their first renewal time...then there WILL be a continuing drop in numbers. Cellular telephones have NOTHING to do with "keeping" members. Neither do "reasons" of attraction or keeping licensees for some kind of traditional rites practiced by cliques of special-interest amateurs wanting to preserve Their "way of ham life" and wishing to be both Judge and Jury on Who Should Enter Amateur Radio.

While it is impossible to pin down with numbers, many of the people I saw attending the various sessions that I went to when I was getting licensed (1992) were entire families looking to get on the 2m band for family communications. Yes cellular phones were available but they were expensive and not common. I knew one person with a cell phone at the time.

There were a lot of elements affecting the situation and we can never know for sure which elements had the most effect. For example, although initiated a few years earlier, the VE exam system had finally "hit its stride" so to speak and exams were readily available so many people who had wanted to be hams were able to get to exam sessions. My OM fell into that category. The particular tests required were not an issue. He actually started as a coded Tech as did I.

Well I know one case where the husband badgered the wife to "let's do this together". That is my own. And I knew several people in the club that we joined who explicitly stated that they got their licenses just to talk around town with their spouse. Unfortunately, since the data on reasons was not and is not collected, we will never know how many got their licenses for this reason.

In some cases, people die and relatives don't notify the FCC. In other cases, the person has gone into a nursing home and will not be following up in their renewals. In some cases, people have gotten busy with other things temporarily and forgotton about it and inadvertantly let it lapse. I've had some come into exam sessions who fell into this category. We can never know all the reasons that people let licenses lapse.

I agree with this paragraph. I've been saying for years that we must seek out those who may potentially have this type of interest or we will someday have a problem. We need the people who are interested in the uniqueness of ham radio.

> Cellular telephones have > NOTHING to do with "keeping" members.

Those who used it for the cell phone substitute may very well have gone inactive when cell phones became relatively cheap. We will never know. No one has ever done the surveys and research to quantify this. All we have is anecdotal evidence and that is not all that reliable.

I see I've inadvertantly cut the paragraph and reply about the percent of US licensees as compared to other parts of the world. It is neither a bad thing or a good thing nor is there a cap on the number of amateurs. However it may be indicative of what the size of the potential "market" is. It may indicate that we "oversaturated" our market. We've all seen examples where people acquire something that is the latest "in" item later to drop it and the market shrink drastically after the heyday of its popularity.

Well, that is what Brian Burke and myself have been saying for years about "the actuarial tables." It WILL catch up to all of us sooner or later the Boomers' shut-down will drop the number of US radio amateurs - to what I would guess is at least down to 3/4 of today and within a 10 to 15 year period. When a large group goes down it is VERY noticeable.

What IS needed is something NEW to interest the HF bunch besides competition in contests and the 1-minute
"making of fast friends for life" by the thousands. [sort of like the wonderful Hollywood expression "a close personal friend"...:-)]

VHF and UHF are already beginning a transition with the introductions of JARL's "digital" mode and the availability of the Big3's already-built radios. Icom has digital repeater equipment for sale that is compatible and at least three repeaters in this area on VHF are now operational for that.
There are lots of local VHF, low-UHF clubs in this area whose interests are centered around repeaters.

No, the trend is NOT to some kind of Internet clone type of activity and no fantastic-rate digital throughput. WiFi and the Internet can handle that quite well. What will happen, I think, is an amateur radio interest kind of new mode activity. The "market" of the existing VHF-UHF users will start driving the FCC to changing regulations to allow these new modes. It will be that old terror CHANGE which will do the trick and all the olde-tymers stuck in their 1950s-era technology ideas will bid adieu to both
The Way Things Are Done and of this life, sad to say.

Like how many times can we have "construction" articles for two- and three-transistor regenerative HF receivers and two-transistor HF "transmitters" even if built tiny in used food containers? Naturally they had to operate CW and that useage will drop along with the Boomers.

Meanwhile, I'll be having FUN from 160m to 2m, maybe later to 220 and 420, doing what I like to do, not what I'm TOLD (by olde-tymers) what to do! :-)

I've not seen where anyone has dropped cell phone use because they think it is a fad. If anything, its use has increased in the last decade remarkably.

Neither do I see any "market drop" for amateur radio equipment since the Big3 and lesser companies continue to introduce new amateur radio models with newer features like DSP applied to many functions, both receiving and transmitting. (just one example)

What happened "in the market" about 15 years ago was a lessening expenditure for advertising in the amateur radio market. The Big3 make a lot of radio equipment for private industry and government worldwide and that started to grow at that time. Since the amateur radio market in the USA was relatively "saturated" (not to a full degree, just not that eager to buy new stuff), the business side of the corporate houses of the Big3 decided to cut back on ham advertising. That affected the independent periodical publishers with HR the first to go, followed by CQ's bad decision to cut CQ VHF for a time, then the quitting of 73.
The Big3 were still there, still designing, still producing,
but not spending so much on ham equipment advertising.
[what you see is not necessarily what really happens]

The more amateur radio licensees, the better chance for the big ham radio makers advertising more. With that is more income for ads in periodicals (even QST) and greater profit for those publishers which mean better articles to get more interest in amateur radio. Positive feedback and no sign of oscillation.

Ahem...you can say "hay you" without the "sir." I was only an E-5, not an "O" for Ossifer. :-)

Highly over-rated. I first got ON radio in 1952 and didn't have any emotional highs about that. I first got drunk in 1951 and didn't have such a good time right afterwards. I met my current wife in Middle School (we called it "Junior High" then) around 1948 and thought a good deal about it...no alcohol involved.

Everybody's mileage varies...

60. cautions setting up new rig?

OK, I've bought my frist HF transceiver. Now I want to get on the air.
I have some basic questions, that may sound dumb..but hey, I'm new to this, as was everyone at one time, so...I'm wondering how careful
I need to be setting up a station ground, and setting up the antenna.
For instance, is the grounding through the wall outlet sufficient for the radio? Or should I run a short line from true "earth ground" (i.e.
via a pipe driven into the earth so many inches, etc.)? As for the antenna...I have a dipole ordered and am wondering about the cautions I've read regarding RF, and shocks, etc. Is it safe to have an antenna
with wires exposed/un-insulated? Can an antenna come into contact with, or lay on top of say a roof? Are antennas a shock hazard, or spark/electrical fire hazard, RF exposure hazard? How can these problems be reasonably minimized? Are there any other things I need to be cautious about? Also, my father thinks I'm likely to drive my neighbors crazy with interference from my radio :-{ Any advice?

Yes, I've actually had a license for awhile and didn't have the spare $ $ to buy a radio. So, I'm a bit rusty...and also want "real life" info.

Jeff, trying to ground your station through your outlets is not within code nor is it recommend (except incidentary use, normally done using the standard three prong plug that is on your equipment), as it will probably induce RF onto your house wiring and AC mains, plus can cause problems that could be lethal in certain situations. You should have your station grounded to at least one if not more 8 foot ground rods. I use five bonded together in a y pattern at my station but I believe in overkill in certain areas, which this is one. Second there are two types of ground, safety and RF. There is good information on the web about this subject I suggest that you research both subjects on the net. Try eham or the Arrl web sites.

Yes, it safe to have the antenna wires uninsulated, but not safe if someone comes in contact with the wire while you are transmitting, can cause severe RF burns depending on power used/frequency in use/and antenna configuration.

Not a good idea to have your antenna contact anything except an insulator. As noted above antennas can be hazardous and in some situations could become a fire hazard, such as a lighting strike looking for a place to ground and it finds your roof to be an appropriate place to discharge.

RF exposure is always a consideration and with the conditions you indicated in your prior post with a close-to-ground installation, not only do you need to be concerned with RF exposure, FCC rules required you to consider RF exposure as a part of your installation and operating.

> Also, my father thinks I'm likely to drive
> my neighbors crazy with interference from my radio :-{ Any advice?

It is a possiblity, how much interference varies from place to place. At one previous installation of mine, I had serious RF interference problems. At that site I had towers, yagi, dipoles, vertical antennas, and never ran over 200 watts. The last installation I had was in a HOA controlled area. I ran an outdoor loop wire antenna, indoor dipoles, and verticals. I ran up to 200 watts and never had any complaints from the neighbors. There are so many varibles from site to site it is just impossible to tell if you will have any interference issues until you install your station.

Hear hear, Walt! (pun intended too)

I occasionally read notes from some Hams writing about the "empty bands". I suspect that they mustn't have much in the way of an antenna. ;^)

Perhaps that is okay though, as there appears to be some kind of correlation between those Hams who can't put up a good antenna, and a poisonous attitude.

The demographics have changed. The idea of the Ham who has been licensed since they were 7 years old and has been in the hobby for 50 years is gone - and there weren't that many of them to begin with.

What we have now is the Ham who waited till their children were out of the house, or the Ham who decided to get their license after retirement. I got my license at 45. Big deal. What is needed is enthusiastic NEW Hams. And you can be any age for that.

And yeah, I love Homebrewing. Our club is holding classes in basic homebrewing to see how many of the newbies we can infect with SSA (solder smoke addiction) ;^)

I response to pressure from equal rights groups. MackDonald had annouced the creation of new character to address concerns that all groups be equally represented in advertising.

Annoucing....

MARQUEER THE TURD BURGERLER.

Yes MackDonald has created a new character that is bi-sexual, thus addressing the gay factor, uses ham radio, appealing to geeks, is deslexic, addressing the learning disabled, and also exhibits mental issues, thus addressing the concerns raised by mentally challanged individuals.

In ads set to run soon the TURD BURGERLER, will be seen carrying an HT upside down with backwards writing on the keys while trying to blow a clown. However, when the clown rejects the Turd Burgerler, he will go into a corner, cry, and repeat over and over and over that he is the eternal victim. The clown will then console the Turd Burgerler with a greasy shit burger and an order of cold fries.

I've recently read comments that several Hams have been using the RG-6 coaxial cable instead of the standard RG-8 or other commonly accepted cables such as RG-58.
One said that he buys this RG-6 at one of the home warehouse stores and buys it in 500 foot spools. He said it is far less expensive than the commonly accepted cables we purchase from various Ham outlets.
Yes, it is 75 Ohm cable, but the users of same claim that it works quite well and can withstand higher voltages than advertised and more than one user claimed that they could run 1,500 watts through the cable with no apparent deterioration.

If this is so, then I missed this open secret. Any input would be welcome...especially the experiences of you who use it. I just happen to have a spool of this cable in my garage that I purchased at an estate auction some years ago and if it works as said, then I will cancel my order with The Wireman.

Thanks in advance for your comments.

Yep, that is a REAL BIG ONE in my book.

Too bad the last well known crucifixion was Jesus and you never heard of a good one thereafter! If we'd just crucify a couple of the b*st*rds we'd break 'em of the bad habit! Krist, what do they think this is, America where one is free?

Perhaps the time for communism has come, not only would be able to

The 75 ohm part should not (in general) be a problem. You could always use a tuner if there is an issue. However, here are the things you should check.

1. Loss per hundred feet (see the ARRL antenna book) for the frequencies you are going to use. A long run at VHF/UHF might be an issue.
2. Check its rated power versus the power you plan to run. If it's TV cable (which it probably is), I doubt that it is rated very high. I've never checked so can't really say. However, just because some people get away with running 1500 watts through it doesn't mean you should. The deterioration may not be immediately evident. It may simply shorten its life and you'ld be replacing it more often.
3. Check to see it's UV rating. Outdoor environments are hard enough on coax. Some are designed for indoor use and others for outdoor use. If this is the indoor kind, it will deteriorate much faster if used outdoors and you will be replacing it more often.

The antenna system (and this includes the coax) is perhaps the most important part of your setup. It's best to do it right so check on the items I mention. Don't be like the classic case of the fisherman who buys a $500 rod but puts on a $5 reel and nickel fishing line and then is always cussing that the line snarls and the reel jams.

In other words don't be penny wise and pound foolish. Make sure that the coax is suitable for the application.

I haven't bought coax in a long time (probably due to replace the old by now) but I believe his is rated for outdoor environments and UV exposure.

Since when is "How do you copy me?" CB lingo. I hear it all the time from hams of many years experience. Also from what I read, the phrase "My handle is ...." used to be standard ham speak many decades ago and was abandoned when the CB operators picked it up. The phrase "I hear ya" is also not uncommon. So to attribute this to newly upgraded hams is a little silly.

The 75 ohm cable is fine for usage. There are several minor problems to watch out for. The major one is most of it is aluminum shielding and can not be soldered to. The center conductor is often copper coated steel which is another mechanical problem.
I am not sure about the power rating for the rg-6 but should be fine for the 100 watt rigs. The swr meters may not act correctly with the 77 ohm cable, but you can still adjust for minimum swr.

Hello Dee,

IMHO it wasn't abandoned by hams just because cb folks picked it up, but because they changed the meaning.

"Handle" used to just be slang for "name". Nothing deceptive or hidden about it. It wasn't even specific to radio; lots of folks used "handle" that way in general conversation.

But in cb use it quickly came to mean "pseudonym"
- specifically, a phony name adopted to avoid being positively identified. A way to hide, IOW.

That's why hams stopped using it.

On the subject of "no change" I would point out that the number of new amateurs since the rules change is only a tiny fraction of the current total. Upgrades are similarly small in number.

So, handle is synonymous to anonymous in that definition--I don't think

There was a guy at the Fort Tuthill hamfest who was soldering aluminum. Has anyone ever tried his technique

Has been my lot that the "solder" is the least important part (got 60/40 to work) ...

Aluminum has the nasty habit of oxidizing almost immediately on cleaning/brightening. I have had some luck by using a silicone oil/lub on the braid and scrubbing/sanding the braid clean and then soldering.

Your milage may vary ...

Which hams, Jim? I've been using the term since I was a teen, and am not inclined to stop just because another radio service also uses the term. Guess I'm just old-fashioned.

Talked to a young fella on the repeater the other day who introduced himself by saying "my first personal is Jim and you're my first contact, QSL?".

He seemed like a nice sort, delighted that he had just received his shiny new call sign, and was anxious to make some new friends.
Kinda sounded like I felt when I put my new call sign on the air the first time way back when, except probably brighter, cuz Jim is one of those young computer jocks. Me, I still got problems with the LL scale on my Pickett slide rule. Yep, I think Jim sounded brighter than me, quick to catch on to things.

But I don't think Jim will be back on the repeater. Before I had a chance to really get to know much about Jim, or even wrangle an invite to lunch, another station, with an impressive "senior" call sign joined the contact, flashed his shiny Radio Cop badge, and proceeded to issue
Jim a "verbal speeding ticket" for improper lingo on the radio.
"Radio Cop" said the term "personal" (and for that matter "handle") were unwelcome in ham radio, and that Q-signals were not to be used on VHF voice. Just generally made my newfound friend feel like an unwashed interloper. (Gosh, I've been saying "handle" since I was a conditional class. Slow to catch on, you know.)

Now I should point out that "Radio Cop" took pains to appear very well meaning. Didn't use any bad words that I noticed, was quite polite, even seemed like he was trying to be "helpful." In other words, he thought he was doing Jim a favor by pointing out his transgression from our sacred Amateur Radio way of doing things. I think Jim felt just the same way I did back in a new school in third grade when the well meaning teacher pointed out that "we don't keep our pencil behind our ear in this room." Sure enough, I looked around and none of my new classmates had pencils behind their ears. Sure was embarrassing, and at that moment I really wished I was back with my good old buddies in second grade. Now, if I'd been allowed to hang out a couple of days, I'm sure I would have learned how to properly stow my pencil. And if Jim would have hung around a couple of days on our repeater I just bet

he would have noticed that his lingo, perhaps learned in another radio service, was a bit out of place, and pretty soon Jim would sound "just like the rest of us." Like I said, he seemed pretty bright to me, quick to catch on to things.

"Radio Cop", you have kept our hobby uncorrupted. I heard Jim down around 27 Mhz this morning, and saw his ad on eBay trying to sell his barely used 2-meter HT. I'm gonna miss my new friend Jim, because I think I could have learned something from him. Maybe you could have also.

Like I said, he seemed pretty bright to me, quick to catch on to things.

Well ...

It is more like attempting to point out to someone they have a bugger hanging from their nose, and you just can't quite get the point across.

Yanno, like you begin wondering what is up, are they just too stupid to get the point or they are just so slovenly they don't mind the depth of human depravity they have sunk too. Yanno, like when a child molester attempts to blame his perversion on the child, i.e. "the child was dressing too sexy", appearing "older than their age", "wanted it", etc.

But, at my age, I have seen all this before, but usually it was only in the "bad part of town" where you would find such ... I have never really been ashamed of being a ham, but I have been so ashamed for other hams I have kept the fact hidden--least I be grouped with them ...

The "good" ones, the "professional amateurs." :-)

"Fine business, old man" [on your post].

Hans, it is the grande olde Territorial Imperative of humans at work in the amateur radio hobby. They have accumulated "tenure" as amateurs and think they OWN the place...and can then Tell Everyone Else What To Do.

On radio, isolated and insulated from direct personal interaction (or on the Internet, shielded by time and space of message exchange), these OLD MEN can get as rough and tough as they imagine themselves to be. It's not too different from "boys in da 'hood" trying to "rule the territory." In-person, face-to-face, they will back down and not be so blatantly aggressive nor "authoritative." I've tested that for about a half century in various activities...where the "old men" want to assert their "ownership" of whatever is going on AS IF they had such "authority." They don't.
They back down in-person.

> I've been using the term since I was a teen, and am >not inclined to stop just because another radio service also uses the >term.

Well, I didn't get INTO radio communications until I was twenty and then in the no-nonsense, non-hobby of military communications. I already knew what a "QSY" was but it was used in conversation and on the TTY order-wire "logs" as just meaning 'change the frequency.' I also knew what "roger" meant as an affirmation and so did most of the others at the military station. That and lots of other words and phrases that were NOT from amateurism in communications. It's just JARGON of a particular radio activity and nobody should get "fired" or even laid-off because they "talk funny" to the grande olde men of ham radio.

A long time ago when I thought it would be fun to know how to get a private pilot license, I had two instructors depending on when I could get time and money for lessons. One was a good guy concentrating on teaching flying skills. The other was an "authoritative" type who thought he knew everything about anything. With the latter I had arguments about "applying for a Restricted 3rd Class Radiotelephone Operator license "because everyone did it." I'd already had my First 'Phone for ten years at that time...and the FCC then would have delayed or dismissed such an application by me. He couldn't understand that because "everyone [students] got one" and he 'ordered' it. Now, I didn't have the "right stuff" to FLY but operating the simple comm-nav radios was a snap for me. He didn't like that because he had a compulsion to Be In Control. On everything.

On the next-to-the-last lesson, while airborne, the VNY tower gave a terse change to an alternate frequency (all ATC convos are terse, no-nonsense). I reached over and changed the comm frequency without thinking about it and acknowledged it to the tower. Instructor blew up, shouted "my airplane" and terminated the lesson by landing. No instructions about FLYING good, bad, or indifferent...seemed I didn't "ask HIS permission about operating a radio." Worse yet, on the ground, I had the terrible audacity to speak to the manager of the flying service afterwards. No fees that day, an equitable settlement by a reasonable manager. My late first wife talked me out of spending money for lessons after the next lesson and I quit due to monetary pressures even though I got the "good" instructor back. We bought a house instead.

Segue to now and a newly-assigned Amateur Extra license after having a First 'Phone (Commercial) license for 51 years...it changed to a General (Commercial) with no renewal necessary. If some Olde Manne with a Control Compulsion wants to chew me out for "not using 'approved, official' jargon on the air, I will (politely) tell him to go stuff it. I didn't get my ham license to be a "professional amateur" or have fanciful dreams of amateur glory...nor take ORDERS from some Control Freaks who think they are some kind of "boss" of the amateur airwaves. Amateur radio is supposed to be about communicating with like-minded hobbyists who enjoy shared interests. It isn't an extension of WORK for "bosses" and sure as hell isn't some kind of para-military radio thing using official never-to-be-violated official, authorized procedure.

I've got a fairly nice NEW amateur station, some expensive equipment, and some ham friends (friends from personal acquaintenceship off the radio) to talk to. It is fun in this beginning. But, if enough Control Freaks want to get "on my case" - or anyone else's, especially younger folks with less experience than I - then it won't be enjoyable. I'll just sell it at a loss and chalk it up to a bad experience in life. I didn't sign up to be some kind of "professional amateur." I'm NOT bound by regulations or some radio version of Miss Manners to use some quasi-official jargon because "that's what 'everyone' does,

has always done."

>Guess I'm just old-fashioned.

No, just in tune with REALITY, Hans. U.S. Amateur Radio is a basically a hobby involving a technology that is fascinating to some, fascinating enough to get professionals involved in it without getting amateur radio licenses.

Radio as a communications medium is only 111 years old. The technology has made enormous quantum jumps of advancement in that short period. "Radio" has CHANGED. Some humans haven't. THOSE humans are the "old-fashioned" ones.

Roger that? :-)

I would not run it up the tower, or anywhere else that is hard to get at.
Without spending an arm and a leg, use crimp on connectors. I have some PL259 type crimp ons (Digikey), and they work fine, even at a KW+. I did solder the center conductor on the LMR240 (same diameter as RG6). The center conductor might be way too small for the hole in the connector; in that case stuff some pieces of wire in next to the center conductor so you are not connected through solder only.

I might point out to Dee that the RG-6 I see is indeed meant for outdoor use. Our local dish installers us it as their standard feedline.

Most of the hams I know, and work, Hans.

In my almost 40 years as an active radio amateur,
I can't recall more than a handful who have used the term "handle" to refer to their own name on the air - or off.

> I've been using the term since I was a teen, and > service also uses the

I'm not saying you should or shouldn't use the term, Hans. Just that very few hams use it anymore, and why.

Frankly, I can't understand why someone would use terms like "handle" or "first personal" instead of "name", since the latter is both shorter and more easily understood.

> Guess I'm just old-fashioned.

Not that there's anything wrong with that.

The way I teach proper on-the-air procedure is by example, not lectures. If I heard someone do the "first personal.....QSL?" stuff on the air, I wouldn't give a lecture, I'd just set a better example by doing it the right way. If the new guy is as smart and quick as you describe, he'd pick it up without a lecture.

The only time a mention is justified, IMHO, is when there's a possible rule violation. In a case like that, a simple comment ("say, it's time to ID") works best.

Of the few samples that I looked at, the black RG6 was outdoor rated, the white jacketed was not. Kind of makes sense. Didn't see any power ratings at the Belden site, but I seem to recall seeing ratings in the few hundred W range.

Many vocations and avocations have a "lingo" which, while it may strike outsiders as "quaint" or "affected", is part of the fraternity. Auto racers say "skins" instead of "tires", bikers talk about "Hogs", not Harley Davidsons, old time technicians say "mickey-mikes" instead of "pico farads", sailors say
"fart sack" instead of "matress cover", and some hams say "QSL" instead of "yes". I say, who cares.... my grammar teacher isn't a ham, so she won't catch me, and a Russian, American, or Brazilian ham will all understand "Thanks for the QSO" but they may not understand "I appreciate the delightful conversation".

For those who get their shorts all knotted up about CB lingo on the ham
bands, here is an excerpt from a book written 60 years ago by Clinton DeSoto.

"Among radio amateurs there is a genuine brotherhood and informal camaraderie. Everyone is called by his "handle" -- his first name or nickname. The president of the Chicago Stock Exchange and the mechanic in a Birmingham garage are just "Paul" and "Joe" when they meet on the air."

So much for "handle" being a CB term, "not used by hams".

RG-6 will take the legal limit on at least 80 and 160m and probably on 40m. It is available in direct burial type. The new, weather-proof crimp on connectors are wonderful.

Several companies make or sell the PL-251 to F connector adaptors.

W8JI had some informative technical posts on the subject on the topband reflector a few months back.

I know a lot of people who aren't working in amateur radio. I'd imagine that 85% of the people I know aren't a part of amateur radio. Those who are in amateur radio are likely aware that the FCC nowhere calls amateur radio a hobby.

The FCC doesn't define amateur radio as a hobby. Now you are a newly

There are plenty of younger folks with more amateur radio experience than you, Len. I bet you won't find that enjoyable.

That's a good thing, since there is no such thing.

That's accurate. You are NOT bound. You may march to your own drummer.
You may find that some avoid you and your attitude. You can always find a "John Smith" to chat with.

I would think the power level would be more voltage limiated. Most of the rg6 is rated around 300 to 350 volts. This is about 1200 watts on a matched line. derate for a swr of say 3 or 4 to 1 and you get to run about 300 to 400 watts into it,

Of course, Hans. But that's not the point I was making. Lingo, jargon, or whatever you call it, usually evolves because it's a shorthand way of expressing something. It's done to be clear, not to be quaint or affected.

In my line of work, it is not uncommon to have a conversation that is so full of lingo/jargon as to be completely incomprehensible to outsiders.

That's what I don't understand. "QSL" is three

Who said it wasn't used by hams 60 years ago, Hans?

When DeSoto wrote that, "handle" simply meant "name" or "nickname". It wasn't even a strictly radio term, either.

Back in the 1960s, many cb folks began to use "handles" instead of callsigns, even though in those days licenses and callsigns were required for that service (except for 100 milliwatt walkie talkies). In cb lingo, "handle" came to mean "a name used to conceal one's real identity". In relatively few years, the use of handles pretty much replaced the use of callsigns on cb.

That new definition caused many hams (and others) to stop using "handle" for "name" or "nickname".

That's historical fact.

http://www.arrl.org/tis/info/pdf/repeater1.pdf

is one example - in amongst all the good advice, page 3 tells us how to talk.

And lets not forget the ever popular "How to sound like a Lid"

It's a joke, I suppose. Lots of things we're not supposed to say there, and nothing like ridicule to make the folks feel welcome.

HOW TO SOUND LIKE A LID

Step One: Use as many "Q" signals as possible. Yes, I know they were invented solely for CW and are totally inappropriate for two meter FM, but they are fun and entertaining. They keep people guessing as to what you really meant. I.E. "I'm going to QSY to the phone." Can you really change frequencies to the phone? QSL used to mean, "I am acknowledging receipt", but now it appears to mean, "yes" or "OK". I guess I missed it when the ARRL changed the meaning. It is also best to use "OK" and "QSL" together. Redundancy is the better part of Lid-dom.

Step Two: Never laugh when you can say "HI HI". No one will ever know you aren't a long time CW rag-chewer if you don't tell them. They'll think you've been on since the days of Marconi.

Step Three: Utilize an alternative vocabulary. Use words like "destinated" and "negatory". It's OK to make up your own words here.

I.E. "Yeah Tom, I "pheelbart zaphonix" occasionally myself."

Step Four: Always say "XX4XXX" (Insert your own call) "for I. D." As mentioned in Step One, anything that creates redundancy is always encouraged. That's why we have the Department of Redundancy Department. (Please note that you can follow your call with "for identification purposes" instead of "for I. D." While taking longer to say, it is worth more "LID points".

Step Five: The better the copy on two meter FM, the more you should use phonetics. Names should be especially used if they are short or common ones. I.E. "My name is Al... Alpha Lima" or "Jack.. Juliet Alpha Charlie Kilo." If at all possible use the less common HF phonetics "A4SM... America, Number Four, Sugar Mexico." And for maximum "LID points", make up unintelligible phonetics. "My name is Bob... Billibong Oregano Bumperpool."

Step Six: Always give the calls of yourself and everyone who is (or has been) in the group, whether they are still there or not. While this has been unnecessary for years, it is still a great memory test. You may also use "and the group" if you are an "old timer" or just have a bad memory. Extra points for saying everyone's call and then clearing in a silly way "K2PKK, Chow, Chow."

Step Seven: Whenever possible, use the wrong terminology. It keeps people guessing. Use "modulation" when you mean "deviation", and vice-versa.

Step Eight: If someone asks for a break, always finish your turn, taking as long as possible before turning it over. Whenever possible, pass it around a few times first. This will discourage the breaker, and if it is an emergency, encourage him to switch to another repeater and not bother you.

Step Nine: Always ask involved questions of the person who is trying to sign out. Never let him get by with just a "yes" or "no" answer. Make it a question that will take him a long time to answer.

Step Ten: The less you know on a subject, the more you should speculate about it in the roundtable. Also the amount of time you spend on the subject should be inversely proportionate to your knowledge of the subject even though you have no damn clue.

Step Eleven: Always make sure you try to communicate with only a handheld and a rubber duck antenna. Also, make sure you work through a repeater that you can hear very well, but it cannot hear you. This will put out a kind of "LID mating call": "Well, Joe, I can hear the repeater just fine here. I wonder why it can't hear me?" You will score maximum LID points if you are mobile, and with the radio lying in the passenger seat.

Step Twelve: If you hear two amateurs start a conversation, wait until they are twenty seconds into their contact, and then break in to make a call, or better yet to use the auto-patch. Make sure you keep the repeater tied up for at least three minutes. This way, once the two have re-established contact, they won't even remember what they were talking about.

Step Thirteen: You hear someone on the repeater giving directions to a visiting amateur. Even if the directions are good, make sure you break in with your own "alternate route but better way to get there" version. This is most effective with several other "would-be LIDs", each giving a different route. By the time the visiting amateur unscrambles all the street names whizzing by in his mind, he should have moved out of the range of the repeater. This keeps you from having to stick around to help the guy get back out of town, later.

Step Fourteen: If an annoying station is bothering you, make sure your other "LID" buddies have a "coded" frequency list. Even though "CODES" are strictly forbidden on Amateur Radio, it's really neat to practice "James Bond" tactics.

Step Fifteen: Always use the National Calling Frequency for general conversations. The more uninteresting, the longer you should use it. Extra points are awarded if you have recently moved from an adjacent frequency for no reason. Make sure when DX is "rolling" in on 52.525 that you hang out there and talk to your friends five miles down the road about the good old CB days!

Step Sixteen: Make sure that if you have a personal problem with someone, you should voice your opinion in a public forum, especially a net. Make sure you give their name, call, and any other identifying remarks. For maximum points, make sure the person in question is not on the repeater, or not available.

Step Seventeen: Make sure you say the first few words of each transmission twice, especially if it is the same thing each time. Like "roger, roger" or "fine business, fine business". I cannot stress enough about encouraging redundancy.

Step Eighteen: If you hear a conversation on a local repeater, break in and ask how each station is receiving you. Of course they will only see the signal of the repeater you are using, but it's that magic moment when you can find a fellow "LID", and get the report. Extra points are awarded if you are using a base station, and the repeater is less than twenty-five air miles from you.

Step Nineteen: Use the repeater for an hour or two at a time, preventing others from using it. Better yet, do it on a daily basis. Your quest is to make people so sick of hearing your voice every time they turn on their radio, they'll move to another frequency. This way you'll lighten the load on the repeater, leaving even more time for you to talk on it.

Step Twenty: See just how much flutter you can generate by operating at handheld power levels too far away from the repeater. Engage people in conversations when you know they wont be able to copy half of what your saying. Even when they say you're un-copyable, continue to string them along by making further transmissions. See just how frustrated you can make the other amateur before he finally signs off in disgust.

Step Twenty - One: Use lots of radio jargon. After all, it makes you feel important using words ordinary people don't say. Who cares if it makes you sound like you just fell off Channel 19 on the citizen's Band? Use phrases such as "Roger on that", "10-4", "I'm on the side", "Your making the trip" and "Negatory on that".

Step Twenty -Two: Use excessive microphone gain. See just how loud you can make your audio. Make sure the audio gain is so high that other amateurs can hear any bugs crawling on your floor. If mobile, make sure the wind noise is loud enough that others have to strain to pick your words out from all the racket.

Step Twenty -Three: Start every transmission with the word "Roger" or "QSL". Sure, you don't need to acknowledge that you received the other transmission in full. After all, you would simply ask for a repeat if you missed something. But consider it your gift to the other amateur to give him solace every few seconds that his transmissions are being received.

Step Twenty -Four: When looking for a contact on a repeater, always say your "listening" or "monitoring" multiple times. I've always found that at least a half dozen times or so is good. Repeating your multiple "listening" ID's every 10 to 15 seconds is even better. Those people who didn't want to talk to you will eventually call you, hoping you'll go away after you have finally made a contact.

Step Twenty - Five: Always use a repeater, even if you can work the other station easily on simplex ... especially if you can make the contact on simplex. The coverage of the repeater you use should be inversely proportional to your distance from the other station.

Step Twenty - Six: When on repeaters using courtesy tones, you should always say "over". Courtesy tones are designed to let everyone know when you have un-keyed but don't let that stop you. Say "over", "back to you" or "go ahead". It serves no useful purpose but don't worry, it's still fun!

Step Twenty - Seven: Use the repeater's autopatch for frivolous routine calls... especially during morning or evening commute times. While pulling into the neighborhood, call home to let them know you'll be there in two minutes.... or, call your spouse to complain about the bad day you had at work. After all, the club has "measured rate" service on their phone line so they get charged for each autopatch call. Your endeavor is to make so many patches in a year that you cost the club at least $20 in phone bills. That way you'll feel you got your money's worth for your dues!

Step Twenty - Eight: Never say "My name is ....." It makes you sound human. If at all possible, use one of the following phrases: a) "The personal here is ..." b) "The handle here is..."

Step Twenty - Nine: Use "73" and "88" incorrectly. Both are already considered plural, but add an "s" to the end anyway. Say "73's" or "88's". Who cares if it means "best regards" and "love and kisses." Better yet, say "seventy thirds"! (By the way, seventy thirds equals about 23.3).

Step Thirty: If the repeater is off the air for service, complain about the fact that it was off the air as soon as it's turned back on. Act as though your entire day has been ruined because the repeater wasn't available when you wanted to use it. Even though you have never paid a penny to help out with the upkeep of it.

These easy steps should put you well on your way to LID-Hood". I hope these helpful hints will save you some time in your quest to sound like the perfect "LID". I should also note that these steps need not apply to simplex operation, as nobody really gives a crap because that HTX-202 isn't going to get out too far with just a rubber duck.

Here's one from a group that I don't want to identify to avoid embarrasment. It's a rule for their repeater.:

Conduct on the repeater(s) ..... Please do not use "CB " language, this is an Amateur Radio Repeater, not a "CB" repeater....

On yet another repeater "rules page:

"Remember that this repeater is Amateur Radio NOT Citizens Band, therefore we do not use CB language or terminology. Remember that we have names, not handles or personals, nor do we use the 10-code, Q signs, Military Jargon, or Phonetics unnecessarily. Repeaters are for plain language."

That was just from a quick Google search.

We have to face it, Jim. There are a lot of Hams out there who are quite willing to dictate how other people will speak. I'm not even talking about suggestions. One of the pages insisted on it as a condition of using the repeater.

Hams like that are a greater threat to the service than a person who doesn't know Morse code.

personally I dont consider it for ham work it appears too far out of spec and cannot be gaurentead to be outdoor rated ie if ordered and the supplier does not have they may send the wrong type. In a warehouse you pay peanuts get monkeys. power wise take the 300 watts and 1/2 it for safety limits.

Lucky Mark. He has copycats who also do not use a spell check program. This guy could be vying to be his twin.
And the comment was made that RG-6 is easily purchased in many of the local Big Box home outlet stores.
And had you researched this further, you'd have seen the comments by Hams who have succesfully used RG-6 for HF use that includes power outputs of up to 1,500 watts with no deleterious effects upon the cable.
One Ham claims that he has been using this very cable for many years with no problems whatsoever.
Sorry, but I will use this cable and find out for myself. And, no, I won't "1/2 it for safety limits."
Wherever did you come up with this out-of-the-hat number, anyway?

The local Home Depot here sells RCA branded RG6 that is meant for outside use. As far as power goes, skinny little RG174 is rated at ~200W. The RG6 has got to be at least that good.

It is quite amazing. Like a child who is doing exactly what their parents want, they know they are right! What a simple world to live in, "I know code, therefore I have worth!"

Di-dah, di-dah, di-dah and all that. Now that is all gone. The truth has been exposed. Code is dead, only the blind hide in their lies to escape that cruel message meant for them ...

But, since they have built up a whole system of self-worth which ties the simple practice of tapping a key to s-l-o-w-l-y convey a message, they have lost ALL their importance. They now feel a imbecile's-nakedness in an intellectually-important world. Their masks has been destroyed. They always have been the kid who was a bit dense in school, before this they were able to hide this fact. They hid it by placing importance on an autistic talent--tapping key. Now the con, the subversion, the lies no longer work ... everyone knows code has no real meaning in modern communications.

They are now asked to take a back seat on the buss of real life ... and God saw it was good ... 8-)

I must have missed that memo. So did the other 5 people I made contacts with

Can you scan it as a PDF and mail it to me?

The only thing I "get" is there seems to be a large segment of the No-Code Agenda intent on demonizing morse-code (the mode, not the test) and advocating (albeit, in not direct words, but certainly thru innuendo) for its elimination as a mode of operation in the ARS.

Personally, I enjoy operating in many modes... SSB, FM, and (of course) CW. Likewise I really have no concerns over the fact that someone else chooses not to use CW.

When I make a contact on 20m CW, I'd like to think I'm making a contact w/ a fellow amateur who enjoys using the mode to communicate. Why would someone want to communicate with me using a mode they do not enjoy?

So, given there is still a large segment of HF and low-signal work which is CW-based, and I never have a problem finding a CW HF contact when I go looking, kindly provide the memo which states CW is dead, because I sure missed it.

It's true that the Morse test is gone (a good idea in my opinion), but usage seems as lively as ever. Paraphrasing Mark Twain .... "Reports of the demise of Morse code are greatly exaggerated."

12 meter coverage .
And NO we don't want to work on 11 meter CB .

I'm looking for an audio DSP program that runs on a (fast) PC and provides some of the audio DSP features that something like the MFJ 784B provides.

One would take the audio output from a receiver and feed it in the "line in" port and get DSP'd and filtered audio output from the computer speakers.

Anything like that available?

Heh, the way I see it, it is a combination of Ego, Frustration, and Competitiveness, in varying mixtures of each for each individual.

"Frustration" comes about from daily work, familiy, or just inability to make enough money (that they think they deserve). They "take it out" on others in places where they feel safe from physical confrontation...such as newsgroups. The syndrome comes across as a "know-it-all" or "boss" with a touch of the Divine Right of Kings. They can ease their own frustration by putting down others; i.e., standing on their shoulders to "elevate themselves."

"Ego" is a big driver. Some who have been IN amateur radio think they are the "boss" because they've been in it so long, have read all about it (in publications geared to their wish-fulfillment fantasies), and think they know everything. One side of that is trying to get others to do as They do, say, and think...they want to project a Role Model for others to emulate. They think they are tops at whatever they do and aren't hesitant about saying it.

"Competitiveness" is more subtle but it exists. See "contests" and wanting to Come Out On Top, getting name-call in some winner's roster, etc. (part of the Ego thing). If someone else encroaches on their "territory" (such as putting out 'numbers' lists), they are compulsively triggered to respond against the encroachers. With the first two it forms the "Territorial Imperative" of some Boyz in da 'Hood thing...no grafitti but plenty of put-downs of their "enemies" in the newsgroup.

Absolutely fascinating behavior patterns. Predictable as all get out. :-) But also quite annoying. They can't see that others get a negative impression of them...so they continue in endless non-arguments of put-downs and general "I'm so much better than YOU" behavior. <shrug>

I always thought U.S. amateur radio was about communications with other like-minded hobbyists, sharing things. Not in amateur radio newsgroups! Nossir! :-)

173. Systematic call sign assignment in US - A question

Greetings,

I know this info used to be and maybe still is available in print but I'm wondering if there's a web site with the info--or barring that, if someone (a recent Extra in Region 7, most likely) can help me.

If a person in the USA Region 7, soon upgrades to Amateur Extra and opts for a new systematic (non-vanity) callsign, roughly what callsign can be expected? I'm guessing it may be an AE7xx call, but maybe we're well into the AFs, AGs, or an entirely different sequence.

I tried Googling for this info and struck out, but maybe that's just a lack of the proper search terms on my part.

Anyone with a web site for current calls? Any new or newly upgraded Region 7 Extra willing to share their new call and approximately how long ago they received it? Thanks.

According to WorldRadio, as of Feb. 4, 2007 the Extra callsign assignment was AD7KQ. I don't know if they have this information on their web site, but you can check them at www.wr6wr.com

I read that article, and it seems to me it gives a few common-sense recommendations about operating via amateur radio repeaters.

Is there something wrong with promoting good amateur radio operating techniques? That's all I see in the article.

Is it part of the above article?

>   It's a joke, I suppose. Lots of things we're not supposed to say

It seems to me that there are some operating practices which are better than others. How should we hams promote the better ones and discourage the others?

Is it electro-politically incorrect to even say that hams should operate
certain ways and not others?

Is there anything in the "How to be a lid" article that is good operating technique?

How are newcomers supposed to learn operating better operating techniques if nobody tells them? Sure, ridicule isn't the best way to teach, but what's the best way?

According to this site (http://www.hamdata.com/fccinfo.html) the latest systematic Extra call issued for region 7 is AD7MU. Per the ULS site, it was issued on April 6, 2007.

Many people are choosing to keep their existing call when they upgrade rather than get a new one.

Why would you ask that? The lid article is part of a long running little "joke" that I've seen around the net and in a few photocopies. It isn't in that pdf I directed people to.

Use your callsign as directed by the FCC.

Use the repeater taking into account the procedures that make the repeater work correctly (resets, courtesy beeps, tails, etc)

Keep it clean as per the FCC rules. Remember that your mother and children could be listening.

play nice. Use good manners.

That can all be fleshed out some, but we don't need much more than that.

Would it be acceptable if teenagers were not allowed to talk in the the manner in which they speak on the repeater? If one of them were to say "Awesome dood, or "KB3YYY hangin' "" is that a reason to bring down the repeater or send an OO to Riley? Should the Hams who know the "right" way to talk refuse to talk to "that guy".

Amateur Radiospeak is a language just like any other. All languages either grow or go away, elsewise we'd still be speaking the grunts of whatever the first developed language was.

Does that mean that we might add some new words - or even return some old ones? You bet!

The really great part of all this is that no one is forcing us to use those words. I personally cringe when I hear someone speak "HIHI". I mean if it's funny, then laugh! But if a person wants to say it, that is their right, and I'm not going to stop 'em. If someone is using "my handle is" and everyone else is saying "my name is", they will either catch on or not. Either way, it hurts no one. If it bothers a person, they can just not communicate with the so called "CB'er.

> Is there anything in the "How to be a lid" article that is good

Whatever good there is in the article is hidden under layers of sarcasm, mean spirit, and a spectacularly failed attempt at humor.

You've practiced such antics as insulting the jobs and military service of your "enemies" in r.r.a.p. You've called them by diminuitive names or made up insulting names for them. There is a very accurate profile of your behavior in dealing with others.

Does your behavior here ever annoy you, Len?

Use your new amateur radio license. Develop your operating skills. Seek out communications with (if you can't find them) those who share your views. What's stopping you?

Maybe you need to cool your jets and develop a warm and friendly demeanor. Perhaps you can reshape your persona so that you don't grate on folks. :-)

Yes, but the answer is VERY long and depends on the MODE of excitation of the cavity resonator. Depending on the dimensions of the cavity and the excitation point - and kind of coupling - there could be 6 to 8 different EM field configurations. You will have to consult a microwave components basic text to learn about the various modes in a cavity...and the ways to couple RF energy into the cavity to achieve each mode.

I am not being evasive here. The answer is NOT a simple one.
The 1 to 2 GHz frequency range is a sort of "transition" from lumped constants (conventional resistors, capacitors, inductors) to "distributed constants," where the Fields and Waves and their excitation-pickoff dominate...on up to the top of microwaves.

It's been about 30 years since I was really active in microwaves from 1 to 25 GHz and I'm a bit rusty on that...but the ways it is handled remains the same and found in many textbooks, old to new. My particular "bible" on microwave structures is "Microwave Filters, Impedance-Matching Networks, And Coupling Structures," by George Matthaei, Leo Young, and E.M.T.Jones, McGraw-Hill 1964.

Those of you who have attended the MIT flea market(s) in the past...

I am told that the MIT flea market is almost all computer gear and other electronic gear (e.g. lab equipment) and very little ham radio gear. On average is this true or false?

I have a bit of a phobia about driving into Boston, haven't done it for years and am not looking forward to the next time, so I'd like to find out more about it before I attempt to make the trip...

Telepathic code?

I have NO idea what the morsemen are thinking. They seem to "know" what I am thinking...(but they don't). :-)

> Indeed In retrospect I must admit that the Code tested did aquire a > specail skill the abilty to comunicate what they truly feel eltism

Morsemanship was fine, indeed excellent as a radio skill back before WW2. After all, the first Morse Code has been around since 1844 and is an ultra-simple way to make messages over very simple radio transmitters.

AFTER WW2 is quite another story. Single-channel SSB finally got into the mainstream of US amateur radio in the late 1950s and most amateurs found they could actually TALK over their radios! Gasp! VHF and UHF technology became practical and FM voice on those bands popular.

It must have been that some morsemen had funny voices or were hard-pressed to talk to "strangers," perhaps even uncomfortable to talk with friends. Not known and not admitted. :-)

However, by the year 2006 it was high time that regulations were (Gasp!) MODERNIZED for the (Gasp again!) FUTURE!
Bye bye code test, RIP.

Those who want to actually LEARN morse code have never been stopped in that. If they want to learn that and USE it, more power to them. The FCC still allows that. Indeed, the FCC make ALL allocated modes OPTIONAL to use by all US radio amateurs of the right classes. Skill sets are always good. Morsemanship was never a "necessity" to be granted an amateur radio license in this new millennium, but the olde-tyme morsemen had to cry and whine so terribly that the elimination of code testing didn't happen until 2007.

I did that long ago . I found you need far more than just the ratio .

I discoverd i needed to have a more intuitive feel for the whole circuit , than merely the Ratio .

Now i have that intuitive feel for electronics and microwave and antennas .

I can see obvious errors that will ruin the hook-up .

The secret is to NOT use a critical piece of gear , you desperatly want to work .

If you have a piece of gear you want/need to work , you'll learn the hard way .

I have found , easy learning is to start with someone elses success , then try to gleen what you can . But if it gets tricky ,

put it aside and find an easier explanation .

I.E. MFJ 209 .

I spent time trying to master its use .

Then i stumbled on a Ham Radio article about Dipper , using the 209 .

This simple (resistor , CAP , air coil) circuit

made me toss some of what i learned from MFJ's tutorial !

It was a new approach . MFJ did not include

it , cause it would enhance 209 til it would obsolete

other MFJ boxes ! It was a political thing .

So , now i learn faster , by stopping my learning

when i see it may get too detailed to make a value judgement .

Back to microwave . You should not learn it on something you NEED .

You should not learn from texts nor

"new, improved , enhanced Special for Hams
this box does EVERYTHING ....

I struggled when i tried to learn from building
my own antennas , but learned very fast when i listened to the crowd , tout J-poles , then tried to find the fundamental error of the J-POLE .
Be opportiunistic in your learning !
If you see the crowd touting something , then it probably does not "work" , except as snake oil to enhance their reputation as antenna experts.

Few talk microwave , but you can still learn what does NOT work in MicroWave .

You posted about matching .

Losses skyrocket as you go above 200 MHZ .
No more long leads and everyting is an accidental capacitance , that drops Q .
But once you learn how to avoid these losses , then you can go to about 2 ghz .
rect' wave guides are lossy , we use round for long runs , but its more complicated , for really long runs , RF is far lower loss !
2 small dishes are far less cost than 200 feet of hardline !

I can cobble up a WiFi link with 12 " dishes and amplify the rcv end to a kilowatt , cheaper than you can transmit that kilowatt on hardline .

Must we use WG ?!

So you need to give us more details of you "match" , so we can help the easiest way , the lowest cost way .

I see big changes , things we thing we need becoming extincnt .

Did you know , 30 years , no one will want nor need to drive a car , and gas will be back down to $1 / gallon !

By solving problems (our govt sees as a windfall to themsleves , job security) ,

we will free ourselves from their technical "slavery" .
They will no longer be able to "license" us in any way .
We wont have any need for Nuke power plants.

Some of your stuff is very clear and easy to follow . .

But i think it starts lower than 1 or 2 GHZ .

And the current text books are worthless .

I have HP by .....

somebody ADAMS ..

Still too much obtuse in this book , but it does have a few simplifications .

What humans need to know , is the gotchas . When to toss a method , and experiment .

There are some really exciting secrets ...

When i hear someone wants to TX some real big power (Magnetron) , i see a lower cost way .

TX only a small power (modulation) , then demodulate at destination ..

plug in a huge 115vac P.S. and recreate the power ,

at the target , lower frequency .

I know how to lightning protect my 440 Yeasu 8800 , so i put it on the pole .

an HT in a Golfers hands will not be damaged
by lightning if it has a low Z circuit to all components in the HT .

The HT must have both
1) a way to generate an E fld , and
2) be a low Z conductor ...
to be damaged .

Copper box your TX and then allow the hookup wires to create the E fld , and it blows up .

But short the input and output wires and its impossible to generate the E fld ,
the Lighning will use to "find" a path .

Lighning rods create an attraction to lighning
If you could generate and sustain a sig'
opp polarity , youd force lightning away .

Say you pound a copper rod in the gnd , 200 ' away . You still have the very high amps , into the rod to create a E fld !

So , the theory of first attracting then diverting 2 million amps in your conductor .
becomes costly .

You cant make antenna non-conductive ,
so live with it . But you can short all wires leading into the TX box . And add other low Resistance paths , and more importantly Hi capacitance paths around your TX box ....

U.S.A.

Radio Shack brand.

I couldn't find any model number printed on it itself.

The model number was printed on the box, but the person who bought it either kept the box or threw it out.

32492: Are there any weak points in Islam that enable the kaafirs (Disbelievers) to attack it?

(Go here for Reference & More Questions & Answers about Islam & Muslims: http://books.google.co.uk/books?vid=ISBN1861791542)

Question:

As you know Muslims are facing many challenges, pressures and criticisms from non-Muslims in the world. In light of this atmosphere, should we Muslim not be the most open and honest about our shortcomings and try to tackle them as opposed to being overly defensive and seeming to make excuses or cover our faults? The reason for this question is that if we seem to deny or gloss over obvious shortcomings it will not help us to overcome them. Perhaps some Muslims feel that to deal with our problems openly will assist the kufaar in their attacks on Islam. Please advise.

Answer:

Praise be to Allaah.

Firstly:

There are no weak points in Islam _ praise be to Allaah _ that the Muslim needs to worry about. Islam is the perfect religion of Allaah, and Allaah says (interpretation of the meaning):

"And the Word of your Lord has been fulfilled in truth and in justice"

[al-An'aam 6:115]

One of the scholars said that this means, it tells the truth in its reports and is just in its rulings.

Allaah has blessed us by completing His religion and perfecting the blessing, as He says (interpretation of the meaning):

"This day, I have perfected your religion for you, completed My Favour upon you, and have chosen for you Islam as your religion"

[al-Maa'idah 5:3]

If an Islamic ruling seems to a person to be a weak point, he should realize that the fault lies in his way of thinking, because some of the rulings of sharee'ah that are absolutely wise and just may appear otherwise to some people, either because of their whims and desires, or because it goes against what people are used to in their lives, that goes against sharee'ah. For example, some think that a man's being the protector and maintainer of women is a weak point in Islam, because they are used to something which is contrary to that and which also goes against the fitrah (natural inclination of man).

Secondly:

An important matter which should be pointed out here is that it is not permissible for anyone to speak about the rulings of Islam or the tafseer of Qur'aan or the meanings of hadeeth, rather that should be referred to the scholars who are well-versed in knowledge.

What happens is that a question is put to an ordinary Muslim, and he cannot find an answer for it or he gives a wrong answer, or it leaves some doubt in his heart that he cannot rid himself of.

"if only they had referred it to the Messenger or to those charged with authority among them, the proper investigators would have understood it from them (directly). Had it not been for the Grace and Mercy of Allaah upon you, you would have followed Shaytaan (Satan), save a few of you"

[al-Nisa' 4:83 _ interpretation of the meaning]

Hence we say that Allaah has protected the religion for us through the scholars and has enabled them to understand it correctly so as to refute hostile ideas and explain its wisdom to people. That is not for the ordinary people, rather it is only for the elite, namely the scholars.

Some of scholars used to challenge people to bring them a verse that contradicts another verse or a hadeeth, or a hadeeth that contradicts another hadeeth or a verse of Qur'aan, and they would explain to them anything that appeared to be a contradiction, and they used to openly challenge everyone on this matter.

Al-Daaraqutni _ who was one of the imams of hadeeth _ stood in Baghdad as a khateeb and said: "O people of Baghdad! No one can tell lies against the Messenger of Allaah (peace and blessings of Allaah be upon him) whilst I am alive." These words indicate the depth of their knowledge and understanding of Islam, which was so great that the people of falsehood could not attack Islam or introduce into it things that were not part of it.

Hence our advice to this questioner and other Muslims, especially those who mix with kuffaar because of their work or because they live in their countries, is to strive to seek knowledge and to learn the correct rulings of Islam that are derived from the Qur'aan and Sunnah, whilst paying attention to learning the reasons behind these rulings, so that they will have knowledge with which to refute the specious arguments of those who seek to attack Islam, and this will enable them to call people to Allaah with proper insight and understanding.

And Allaah knows best.

I can't speak for 160 meters since I haven't listened to it in a while, but after listening to 2 meters and 11 meters, I consider 11 meters more of "real communications" than two meters is.

CB was meant to facilitate personal communications among it's users (which is exactly what it has been and is being used for).

Hams like to say the ham bands aren't a hobby band, that it's a public service band. And like to call the personal communications on cb "illegal hobby use of cb".

I have listened to both. The ham bands are the hobby type communications while the CB band is real personal communication (it's intended use).

Just because you hams like to call personal cb communications "hobby" uses doesn't make it so.

What's really funny is the hams trying to take over the FRS bands and legal GMRS users both say the FRS should only be used for substantial communications, but what each says disagrees with the other.

The GMRS users say the FRS bands should only be used for substantial communications like talking to your wife while you're pumping gas at the gas station and you're wife is inside the gas station building, or about picking up groceries.and that FRS should never ever be used for non-substantial communications like talking about radio dx.

While the hams are saying that FRS should only be used for substantial communications like talking about radio DX and should never ever be used for insubstantial communications like talking to your wife about non-radio matters, such as picking up groceries.

I'd like to see those two groups together in a radio newsgroup.

Of course, it's also kind of funny that a lot of the GMRS users who insist on following all of the rules and all of the laws all of the time, and saying that "ignorance of the law is no excuse, so you're still a criminal who shouldf be fined and/orput in prison for doing so" are also breaking Federal law theirselves without even realizing they're doing so.

They claim that they're using GMRS for perfectly legal purposes such as talking to their wife while they're pumping gas in their car while their wife is inside the gas station building picking up snacks.

Well, to thjose GMRS users, look at the gas pumps and read what's on them. It says it's against federal law to use any two-way radio device within twenty five feet of any gas station or any fueling area.

So by doing so, in your own words, "ignorance of the law is no excuse so you're still a criminal and should be fined and.or put in prison for doing so"

I don't really think you should be fined or put in prison for doing so unless you're intentionally trying to blow up the gas station and everyone in and around it, then you should be.

I'm so crazy over the shemale that is you,

indeed tish is a great won two

It was twenty years ago today,
Roger Wiseman forced the boys to be gay
He's been going in and outa their rears
And he's made them into ravin' queers.
So watch out or I'll force on you
The act we've hated all these years,
Roger Wiseman's Greyhound Men's Room Band.

We're Roger Wiseman's Greyhound Men's Room Band,
Disciples of the Bucktoothed Choad,
Roger Wiseman's Greyhound Men's Room Band,
Sit back and watch us shoot a load.
Roger Wiseman's Greyhound, Roger Wiseman's Greyhound,
Roger Wiseman's Greyhound Men's Room Band.
It's wonderful to be here,
But Wiseman's full of crap,
The dirty goddamn pederast:
That fucker gave us syphilis,
That fucker gave us clap.

I don't really want to stop the show,
But I thought you had all better know,
That Wiseman's going to play a song,
On a stickpin that he stuck through his schlong.
So let me introduce to you
The one and only Bucktoothed Choad
And Roger Wiseman's Greyhound Men's Room Band.

It would be interesting to know the ratio of Mark's posts to Dloyd's. 3:1?
4:1? More?

Hey, lardass, I hear they are using this song in Papa John's latest commercials:

That's a-Lllllllllloyd
("that's a more" /kc8jbo)
Vocals: Dean Martin

When you can't get A+ though your head,
And you deliver pizzas instead,
That's a-Lllllllllllloyd

If you hate all "those Jews,"
And you slurp nutsack goo,
That's a-Llllllllllllloyd

When your Mom is your sister,
And for fun you just fist her,
That's a-Lllllllllllloyd

If at 33 it's certain,
That you're still a virgin,
That's a-Llllllllllllloyd

When your food stamps are late,
And two-day-old pizza's what you ate,
That's a-Llllllllllllloyd

If you blame all your tragedies,
On all the minorities,
That's a-Llllllllllllloyd

When you believe wacko preachers,
And you smell like old sneakers,
That's a-Lllllllllllloyd

If your morse code skills suck,
And you waddle like a duck,
That's a-Llllllllllloyd

When you suck up to Herb and kiss TR's ass
like a snake in the grass
That's a Lllllllllllloyd

If you live near a dump
but a woman you don't know how to hump
That's a Lllllllllllloyd

When the nutsack goo hits your eye
like a big pizza pie,
That's a Lllllllllllllloyd

If you do not wash your hair
But masturbate to Brother Stair, That's a Llooooooyyyyyyd!

When sperm banks are robbed
it's a Davies' brothers job

It must have been a boring evening in that the Lavender Lads didn't show up in their usual purple-tufted regalia. Roger almost went home...almost. But he held out for Closing Hour.

So sad for Woger that the liquor flowed, but the "likker" he was in search of was not in attendance this evening. Too bad. Mark would have liked to have joined Woger for a bit of "likker", though the two of them would have been at odds over getting the best of the best. Woger and Mark would have concluded the evening at The Lounge arm-wrestling over who "got" the cutest Lavender Lad. Mark would have gone for the biggest 'hulk' and Roger, by nature, would opt for the youngest looking one.

One can see them now. Roger, ever the salivating pervert, looking at the young Lavender Lads while Mark, who as usual has nothing going for him, sits in the corner and tells Roger, "only in your dreams, roger".

Closing Hour: Synopsis.

Woger may or may not go home with a Lavender Lad. Mark goes home alone to be led by his nose by Gavi who has Mark's Bisexual, Pagan, Magickal Jewish agenda laid out for Mark to cowtow to. Mark is a follower, easily led by Gav. Gav's agenda is, by default, Mark's agenda.

Mark is a follower. He has no purpose than to be the weak link.

This week, against all the hints offered by home-brew antenna builders I installed a 200 ft. length of 450 Ohm ladder line from my rigs out through a feed-through pipe that also houses several coaxial cables. Current wisdom says that this ladder line should be isolated from other cables/metals by no less than two inches, but I have found this to be not true.

To date, my ladder line loads quite well. Granted, I run only 100 watts through it, but my tuner works very well indeed and I've worked stations worldwide with no feedback through the other cables that are cramped into the same space. Good grounding? Maybe. But I posit that the placement of ladder line need not meet that "two inch" criteria that is oft written about.

It works for me. Catch you on 17m.

Name and callsign withheld to avoid you-know-who.

Tunder are regulars.

Too bad for Dave Bile, Roger doesn't even go to the Shipwreck Lounge, it's more his style when he swings straight since it is a redneck bar.

Yet, that can't apply to you since you can't get blue jeans over your fat ass.
And you drink a woman's beer namely Bud Light.

Oh, so Roger isn't a redneck. Nice of you to notice, redneck.

A little over 11:1 His 756 post to my 68 for the month of April thus far (only counting his two socks) but trust me, it will be more. I won't be posting much in the next week. I have to travel for business. Maybe without my presence there won't be quite as much

That was the point of the post. None, nary, nada, of the lines are overloaded with RF. Zero. Zilch.
Granted, it IS only 100 watts though.
Another route could be to do what a friend did in that he drilled two small holes completely through the concrete basement wall and drilled them, I think, two inches apart. Through these holes he ran two small, rubber coated copper rods and sealed the holes with caulk. He solders the ladder line to each end of the rods and says that it makes a very nice feed-through. The only modification I would make would be to design some sort of quick disconnect for the inside ladder line for those "just in case" times when storms roll through.
Any ideas on that?

The last we heard from our hero, he was in the slammer on child pornography charges, sharing a cell with Tyrone and Bubba and explaining to them how they are inferior to him.

Anyone heard from ol' K-K-Kevin recently??

What's become of that butt-ugly wife of his??

K-K-Kevin's trial has been set for June 20, 2007. His public defender attorney did not ask for bail, so, K-K-Kevin is living at taxpayer expense until his trial.

Here is a copy of the press release from the federal prosecutor's office. Note that in addition to having pictures of naked children on his computer, Kevin was in contact with a 10-year-old, trying to convince him/her to have sex with him.

-- quote

United States Attorney John L. Brownlee and FBI Special Agent in Charge of the Richmond Field Office Charles J. Cunningham announced today that Kevin Alfred Strom, age 50, of Charlottesville, Virginia, was indicted by a federal Grand Jury sitting in Charlottesville, Virginia. Strom is charged in a seven count superseding indictment with Coercion and Enticement of a Minor, four counts of Receiving Child Pornography, Possession of Child Pornography, and Obstruction of Justice. Strom was originally charged in January 2007 with one count each of Possession of Child Pornography and Obstruction of Justice.

According to the superseding indictment, between January 2004 and August 2006, Strom received multiple images of child pornography on his computer. In addition, from September 2005 through January 2007, the indictment alleges that Strom tried to persuade a ten year old child to engage in sexual activity. The Grand Jury has charged that Strom also physically assaulted and mentally intimidated a witness in an attempt to prevent that witness from reporting Strom's ongoing criminal activity.

The investigation of the case was conducted by the Federal Bureau of Investigation, the Green County Sheriff's Office, and the Charlottesville Police Department. Assistant United States Attorney Bill Gould will prosecute the case.

A Grand Jury indictment is only a charge and not evidence of guilt. The defendant is entitled to a fair trial with the burden on the government to prove guilt beyond a reasonable doubt.

I just would like to alert readers to a new group on Yahoo to tell others and read what others have written about prevailing propagation. I have found that the standard propagation sites often do not tell you how condx are exactly at the moment in your particular QTH. The propagation site seems like a good place to see what others are experiencing propagation-wise, or to tell others what it's like at your QTH.

Thank you.

OC-256/OC-283/OC-284 (Rare IOTAs to be Activated). Team organizers Hans/SM6CVX and Derek/G3KHZ are planning a DXpedition to the islands of Nukumanu (OC-284pr) and Takuu (OC-283pr) this coming September and October. The team will comprise of 4 radio amateurs plus a Swedish friend, a professional photo-grapher, a film producer and a scientist. These islands are the most remote islands from the main island of Papua New Guinea. They plan to be active for 6 days on each of the islands. If time permits, they will also make a stop at Kilinailau Island (OC-256). INTERESTING NOTE: "These islands are low lying and are suffering from the effects of global warming which is causing the sea level to rise. Takuu is especially vulnerable because it is also sinking due to the movement of the tectonic plates in the region. The net result is that the sea level is rising 20cm per year and the island is only 2 metres above the high tide level. 600 people live on this island. Nukumanu is also populated."

QSL route/manager is to be announced later.

JD1, OGASAWARA. Skip, JE2HCJ, will be active as JE2HCJ/JD1 from April 16-25th. Activity will be mainly on CW on 160-6 meters. After April 20th, he will focus on the lower bands. QSL via his homecall.

JD1, OGASAWARA. Operators Hide/JM1LJS (JD1BLK), Koya/JI5RPT (JD1BLY) and Harry/JG7PSJ(JD1BMH) will be active from Chichijima Island (IOTA AS-031) in the Ogasawara Islands Group, between 0600z Sunday, April 29th and 2200z Saturday, May 4th. Activity will be on 160-6 meters and the Satellites with operations on CW, SSB, RTTY and PSK31. QSL JD1BLK via JM1LJS, JD1BLY via JI5RPT and JD1BMH via JG7PSJ. Please visit the operators' Web sites at:

JT, MONGOLIA. Operators Nicola/I0SNY, Giampiero/I5NOC, Pino/I8YGZ, Andrea/IK1PMR and Claudia/K2LEO/IZ1GLO will be active from here between now and May 3rd. The group will operate as JT1Y from Ulanbaatar and will also be visiting the call areas 8, 9 and 0 along with members of the JT1KAA radio club. Look for activity to be on 160-10 meters CW, SSB, PSK31 and RTTY. QSL via I0SNY.

JW, SVALBARD. Just a reminder that Francois, F8DVD, will once again be active as JW/F8DVD from the Longyearbyen ARC, located on Spitsbergen Island, 78° North, and about a thousand kilometers far from the geographic North Pole (EU-026, WAZ 40 and Grid Square JQ78TF), April 12-23rd. His activity will be on all HF bands both CW and SSB. This will be Francois's 5th time on the island. He will use the Longyearbyen Radio Club's equipment which consists of an ICOM 751 and a 500 watts PA, into a 5 elements yagi on a 30 meters high tower. QSL via his home callsign, through the French REF-Union Bureau or direct, w/SAE + 1 IRC (or 1 USD for EU, and 2 USD for elsewhere) to: Francois Bergez, 6, Rue de la Liberte, F-71000 MACON, France.

N8S SWAINS ISLAND UPDATE. By the time you read this, the N8S DXpedition to Swains Island should be QRT. Reports indicate that they would be going QRT around 1800z. As this bulletin was being written, the online log search was showing 104,532 QSOs, but we heard reports of over 112,000 QSOs. Logs should be completely updated once back in Pago Pago. Look for more info and pictures to be added to their Web page. QSL is via YT1AD. Online log is available at:
//logsearch.de/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=170&Itemid=104

ADDED REMINDER: Remember the DXpedition will move onto Samoa next and be active as 5W5AA (possibly other callsigns also) from April 17-24th.

QSOs with these stations and the SN750 stations on any band and mode will count towards a special diploma. Diplomas will be endorsed and signed by the residing president of the City of Krakow. More details are available at the following Web page: http://www.sp9pkz.republika.pl

SU8, EGYPT (Special Event). You still have until April 17th to work the special event station SU8DRM which is organized by International Tele-communication Union (ITU) for the Regional Conference on Disaster Relief and Management - International Cooperation & Role of ICT, in Alexandria, Egypt. Operators mentioned are: SU1GS, SU1SA, SU1SK, SU2TA, SU1AO, SU1KA, SU1KM and SU9NC. QSL Manager is SU1KM. Egypt has no QSL bureau. Please QSL ONLY DIRECT via: MOHAMMED EL KAFRAWI, P.O.BOX 70, MAGLESS EL SHABB, POST OFFICE CAIRO, 11516 EGYPT. IRCs are not acceptable by their postal offices, only (USD) green stamp is barely enough to cover return postage and QSL card cost.

TC57, TURKEY (Special Event). Operators Tevfik/TA1HZ and Bekir/TA2RX will be operating from the Gelibolu Peninsula as TC57ALAY between April 21-25th. Activity is to commemorate the 57 Regiment martyrs who lost their lives in Canakkale War in 1915. Look for them to be on 7090 kHz (+/-10) and 14270 kHz (+/-30).

TK, CORSICA (EU-014). Operators Laci/HA0HW, Tomi/HA4DX, Geza/HA4XG, Ivan (Johny)/LZ1PJ and Valya/LZ5AV (XYL) will be active as TH/homecall from Cap Corse - Nr. Tollari (WW Loc. QSL via the HA and LZ QSL Bureau, or direct to each operator's home address.

TO3, MARTINIQUE. Alex, VE3KF, will be active with the special callsign TO3T, May 23-31st. Activity will be on CW and SSB plus an entry in the CQ WPX CW Contest. QSL directly to VE3KF or via the bureau.

TO4, CUBA. Operators Willy/CO2MHZ and Winston/CO2WF will be active as T40C from Habana, Cuba, for the next CQ WPX CW Contest (May 26-27th). QSL via N1KI.

VK, AUSTRALIA. Saturday, April 28th (UTC), is International Marconi Day, and the Hornsby and Districts Amateur Radio Club will be running the only IMD station in Australia using VK2IMD on all HF bands. ADDED INFO: This international event is operated by stations in locations that have a link to Marconi. In the case of VK2IMD, operations are located close to Wahroongah, in the northern suburbs of Sydney, NSW, where Ernest Fisk of AWA received the first direct radio message from Britain to Australia in 1918. This was a telegram from the Australian Prime Minister Billy Hughes (who had just returned to Britain, having toured the World War I battlefields in France). It was sent by Marconi's station in Carnarvon, Wales. Visit the following Web pages for more info:

General info - http://www.gb4imd.org.uk/

VP5, TURKS AND CAICOS ISLANDS. Fred, PY2XB, will be active as VP5/PY2XB from Providenciales Island (NA-002) between April 19th and May 3rd. Activity will have an emphasis on the lower bands (160/80/40m) and the WARC bands (30/17/12m), as well as the digital modes (BPSK31 and RTTY). He will have a six meter CW beacon active on 50.097 MHz. QSL via PT7WA, direct or by the bureau. On-line logs will be available at: http://www.py2yp.ws/py2xb

VQ9, CHAGOS ISLANDS. Jim, VQ9JC (aka ND9M), has returned to Diego Garcia for another four month tour and will resume operating as VQ9JC. He informs OPDX: "Operating time tends to run about 85% CW, 10% SSB, and 5% digital and is on 80-10 meters. I must take a boat from my ship (where I am one of the few remaining Radio Officers) to the island where the ham shack is located and usually cannot be QRV before 1200Z. (Local time is GMT +6 all year.) In order to be on the boat back to the ship, I must QRT by 1635z on Sundays through Thursdays, and by 1735z on Fridays and Saturdays, although I will occasionally stay overnight to work early morning DX." Jim was heard this past week on 20/15 meters CW. QSLs go to ND9M (ex-WB9IHH); either by the Bureau or direct is OK. Jim states, "My XYL will forward direct requests to me every three weeks or so, but mail typically takes about two weeks to get to the island once she mails it. As for direct QSL requests, I'm continually surprised to see the number of invalid IRCs coming through. A few are the older style that expired at the end of 2006, but the majority of them are invalid because they were not stamped by the issuing post office. I wouldn't mind 'eating' two or three, but I've received literally dozens so far this year. All QSL requests are answered of course, but requests that come with invalid IRCs will be answered via the buro. CU in the pileups! 73 for now, Jim, VQ9JC / ND9M"

317. Help with a Kenwood TM-G707A

I was handed a TM-G707A this evening to use on a business trip / rental car ... complete with a cigarette lighter plug and a mag mount.

I am totally unfamiliar with this radio.
I'm sure that I can figure out the beast but if my own experience holds true it will take a good while before I am totally comfortable with it... and being a loaner I won't have it that long.

Hence my next question... rather than reinvent
the wheel...

Does anybody have a pre-prepared cheat sheet
that they can email me?

I will be using the manual that I downloaded from Kenwwod's web site to preprogram a half - dozen frequencies that were emailed to me...

They will shunt enough current to earth that the lead in line will vaporize outside the home thus breaking the circuit. It is vital that all surge and spike protection devices are bonded to the same grounding electrode system as the electrical system.

Another Morkie double standard? Notice how It is "copyright infringement" when somebody copies something from Markie's blog. But according to Markie, it is perfectly ok when he does the same. Notice how his blog is riddled with posts stolen from my blogs.

Copyright infrigement has nothing to do with giving credit. It has to do with giving permission to use such. Nevertheless, doesn't the material lifted from your blog count as fair use? At least that was the arguement you presented last time the copyright issue surfaced.

Yawn. "Retired" being the key word, asshole.

More like he watches "U.S. Marshals" and pretends he is back on the force.
Next time you lie try to at least spell it correctly.

Yeah, sure he is. Like you never worked out of banders on 6 meters and were "in country" doing the "Rambo thing." BWHAHAHAHAHAHA, but nice of you to admit you go to the "Twice as Nice" with them.

Hi All,

While I am very new to listening for HF beacons, I have not heard a peep on 14.1MHz for the last five days that I have been monitoring that frequency. Zilch. Or is the propagation just so bad during the depths of this poor sunspot cycle that this would be expected for listeners on the West Coast of the USA?

Thanks,

Oh well, what else are we to expect from a SSI nutcase that sits at

"If one wishes to gaze upon the true face of the

Truly, there is nothing more sobering and depressing

It's not a lie. It is based upon statistics from my own news server.
Here are the raw csv data for April:

Date,total,rram,rrap,arsf

20070402,51,25,26,0
20070403,11,3,8,0
20070404,3,2,1,0
20070405,11,0,11,0
20070406,34,5,29,0
20070407,39,21,18,0
20070408,50,22,26,2
20070409,43,12,30,1
20070410,60,17,43,0 <-- April 10th peak of 60 posts.
20070411,30,15,15,0 20070412,28,13,15,0
20070413,4,2,2,0
20070414,5,1,4,0
20070415,29,3,26,0
20070416,10,5,5,0
20070417,17,5,12,0
20070418,30,11,19,0
20070419,10,2,8,0

As you can see, you only hit 30 posts max after April 10 - a clear indication that you are distracted by something. If you keep this up, we'll have to find another flooder to track.

Groan. How you DO distort English syntax in an effort to "be the one who is right." It is quite painful to watch, because it makes you look so foolish.

Everyone but you knows exactly what I meant. That's because they speak and understand colloquial U.S. English. You, on the other hand, continue to live in an oddly different world where only you can see that the sky is orange and that gremlins live under your bed.

Not in the least, Mark. I am not "wordked " up over anything, least of all
you. Stop flattering yourself.
It is that, during Roger's absence, you are the next, easiest target of opportunity open for ridicule. And you lend yourself SO easily to that end!
You are not exactly the, how to say...Brightest Bulb On The Tree, but you

Oh, for crying out loud! I wish that Mark, despite his gibberish, would at least ONCE make an honest effort to get off his Dyslexic, unemployed arse and speak English.
You really should make an effort, Mark. And in the interim? Maybe you should take the extra step to clean up your disshevled and filth-laden home. You should put all those boxes full of "stuff" in order and unpack some of them.
Look, for instance, at the garbage in your yard, You and Gav see your collective tires and old appliances as "treasures", while your neighbors see the two of you as garbage collectors.

You claim to have several degrees, but your yard looks like a county dump.

3D2, FIJI (Update/Reminder and IOTA Op). A group of five Ukrainian radio amateurs will be activating two IOTA groups between late April and early May. Operators mentioned are: Len/UR3HR, Sergey/UR7HTX, Max/UR7HTZ (3D2TZ), Alex/UT5UY (3D2UY) and Alex/UX0LL (3D2AP). Their activity will start from Taveuni Island (OC-016), using the callsign 3D2AP, 3D2TZ and 3D2UY between April 27th and May 3rd. The team will then move to one of the "Most Wanted IOTAs and Most Wanted Fijian IOTA Group (only 7.8% IOTA Chasers are credited) and activate Yanuca Island in the Ringgold Isles Group (OC-189) as 3D2RI (suffix RI=Ringgold Isles) between May 3-7th. The group plans to have 2-3 well equipped stations active and operating simultaneously using YAGI antennas. There will be a special effort on the lower bands. QSLs for 3D2RI are via UR3HR, by the bureau or direct to: LEONID BABICH, P.O. BOX 55, POLTAVA, 36000, UKRAINE. QSL cards for personal activity from Taveuni Island should be sent direct to home callsign or through the bureau (QSL 3D2UY via UT5UY, 3D2AP via UX0LL and 3D2TZ via UR7HTZ). Due to the high cost of this operation on a remote Pacific Island, the group is asking for sponsorship by various DX organizations and individuals around the world. If you would like to help fund or sponsor their DXpedition, please contact Alex, UT5UY, by E-mail at:

ut5uy@ukr.net
For more information, please visit the Ukrainian DXpedition Team (UDXT) Web site at: http://www.3d2.dxer.com.ua

4K, AZERBAIJAN. Vlad, 4K9W, from Baku, seems to be active most days after 1945z on 40 and 30 meters CW. He was also heard this past weekend on 160/80 meters SSB during the YU DX Contest. QSL to DL6KVA.

5W, SAMOA. The N8S DXpedition team is now active until April 24th. Look for the callsign 5W5AA to be used. Operators are also using their own 5W callsigns. Please be careful and check their prefixes (5W5 and 5W0). QSL 5W5AA via YT1AD or YZ7AA, 5W5LP via K3LP, 5W0AA via YZ7AA, 5W0NU via YU7NU, 5W0JT via JT1CO, and 5W0SV via SV2BFN. The team will be disassembling their camp and antenns between April 24-26th. Some of the operators will head to the USA and attend 58th Annual International DX Convention, Visalia, CA, between April 27-29th.

6W, SENEGAL (Update). Dani, EA4ATI, is headed back to Dakar again. He informed OPDX last week that he will probably use the callsigns 6W/EA4ATI and 6W1EA for contests. He is expected to be there this month and will stay until April of next year. Dani informed OPDX this week that he will be active on all bands and will bring a small amplifier with him this time. QSL via his home callsign, either direct or by the bureau.

8Y/SI9, SWEDEN (Special Event). Members of the Jemtland Radio Amateurs (SK3JR) will be hosting the 2007 Scandinavian Young Ladies Radio Amateurs (SYLRA) meeting in Ostersund, Sweden, from August 23-26th. Look for the special callsign 8S3SYL to be on the air during the meeting. The QSL Manager for 8S3SYL is SM3CVM. QSL via the bureau is preferred, but direct cards are OK with SASE and sufficient return postage (one new IRC or two USDs). QSL without sufficient postage will be sent via the bureau. Direct requests go to SM3CVM: Lars Aronsson, Lillfjallvagen 62, SE-831 71 OSTERSUND, SWEDEN. Also, on Friday, August 24th, there will be a special activity by YL operators from SI9AM with two stations active simultaneously. QSL also to SM3CVM. All YLs and OMs from Scandinavian countries as well as from other countries are invited to join SYLRA 2007. Visit the SYLRA Web page at:

9M2, SPRATLY ISLANDS. Gerben, PG5M, is now active as 9M2/PG5M from Pulau Layang Layang, Spratly Islands (AS-051) until 23 April. Activity will be CW only on 40-10 meters, using a FT-897 and only a vertical antenna; possibly a G5RV dipole. QSNs over the past weekend show Gerben has been active mainly on/around 10102-10106, 14020 and 18073 kHz. QSL via his home callsign, direct or by the bureau. Gerben states on his Web page that he will start processing all QSL requests (including other 9M2 contacts from West Malaysian Islands) when he is back in the Netherlands by the middle of 2007. Please be patient and do not send multiple requests. His new mailing address is: Gerben A. Menting, Brandparken 2, 9351 XM Leek, The Netherlands. Visit his Web page at:
http://www.dx.to

A2, BOTSWANA (Update/Topband). Frosty, K5LBU, reports that this July there will be at least 6 operators in their group active from Botswana starting on the 6th of July until the 20th. They plan to have a 72 foot vertical for 160/80 meters and a 4 square for 40 meters. They hope to have their A25 callsigns soon.

BS7, SCARBOROURGH REEF. As of press time, there is still no news on this upcoming operation that is expected to take place "ten days in late April." DXers should be alert and expect anything at anytime to happen. This means they may just show up on the air. All we can provide at this time are the following suggested frequencies:
CW - 1826.5, 3504, 7004, 10124, 10104, 14024, 18074, 21024, 24894 and 28024

Logs will be available ONLY after the end of the DXpedition.

HB0, LIECHTENSTEIN. Look for a team of at least six German operators to be active from Chalet Barsula (1200m ASL), near Triesenberg, between May 26-30th. Activity will be on 160/80/40/30/20/15/10/2 meters and 70cm. Modes will be CW, SSB, FM, PSK31, RTTY and WSJT. The group plans to use 1000 watts on HF, 100 watts on 144 MHz into a 9 element F9FT antenna and 20 watts into an 11 element Flexa yagi on 432 MHz. Planned skeds are possible on 144 MHz and 432 MHz by sending an E-mail to: DL5ZA@web.de -or- michael@do1ars.de

HS, THAILAND (80m HS Plans). Charles, HS0ZCW (aka K4VUD), announces that he will have an 80m antenna functioning at the HS0ZCW station (a sloper antenna pointed North). He wants more 80m HS activity, so he is asking for direct replies to sked suggestions. However, please note these limits he has announced...
"1. Skeds must be on Thailand time/dates WEEKENDS because HS ops can not operate this band unless there is a ham contest running, and contests are almost all only on weekends... Fridays, Saturdays, and Sundays. Thailand is +7 hours GMT/UTC and neatly 12 hours ahead of EST.

2. The frequencies must be between 3500-3535 kHz by Thailand rules, CW or SSB there.
3. I have a slow, sold as fast, internet connection.
4. For any contacts, hoping there can be some, I would like to work CW first, then I xmit SSB to your CW to confirm for you a SSB contact, too. Note you will not xmit SSB in this part of the band.
5. This message is carefully written; please read it at least as carefully to avoid wrong replies.
Feel free to email me suggestions of skeds. My Thailand phone number is +66-085-046-1922 for use only during on-the-air times. Hey, let's have some more fun.... 73, Charles Harpole HS0ZCW"

SUBMARINES ON THE AIR (SOTA). The weekend of April 28-29th is the Submarines-On-The-Air Special Event. There will be many submarines on the air during this event, and there is a special certificate available for working 10 of the boats. The suggested frequencies are:
CW - 3543, 7043, 14043, 21043 and 28043 kHz
SSB - 3843, 3943, 7243, 7279, 14243, 21283, 21379 and 28343 kHz
For more details, visit the Submarine Veterans Amateur Radio Association (SVARA) Web page at: http://groups.yahoo.com/group/SVARA/
Also visit: http://w0oog.50megs.com/

SX2, GREECE. Look for special event station SX2SB to be active May 19-20th. Activity is to honor the soldiers who fought in the Battle of Skra during the World War I. The suffix of the callsign stands for "Skra Battle". The two opposing sides back then were Greece and Bulgaria. The special station will be active on all bands using the following modes: CW, SSB, PSK31 and RTTY. QSL Managers are SV7CUD and SV1EOS. QSL by the Bureau or Direct.

VK, AUSTRALIA. This coming Saturday, April 28th, is International Marconi Day (IMD), and the Hornsby and Districts Amateur Radio Club will be running the only IMD stations in Australia, using VK2IMD, on all HF bands. This international event is operated by stations in locations that have a link to Marconi. In the case of VK2IMD, this station is located close to Wahroonga, in the northern suburbs of Sydney, NSW, where Ernest Fisk of AWA received the first direct radio message from Britain to Australia in 1918. This was a telegram from the Australian Prime Minister Billy Hughes (who had just returned to Britain, having toured the World War I battlefields in France). It was sent by Marconi's station in Carnarvon, Wales. For more information on IMD, please visit: http://www.gb4imd.org.uk/
For a list of IMD stations: http://www.gb4imd.org.uk/awardstns.htm

YW, VENEZUELA (Rare State). Members of the Radio Club Venezolano have announced their plan activation from Cojedes State using the special callsign YW4AJ, between April 28th and May 1st. Activity will be on 80-6 meters and on all modes. Satellites will be activated too. QSL via YV5AJ, direct (QRZ.com address) or by the bureau. This rare state is good for the D.E.V. (Venezuelan States Award). For more details, visit the following Web page at: http://radioclubvenezolano.org/concurso.htm

ZS, SOUTH AFRICA (Talk to The Hell!). Just a reminder that a team of ten operators from the Boland Amateur Radio Club will be visiting "The Hell", also known as Gamkaskloof or Gamka's Valley, situated in the Swartberg Mountains of the Southern Cape in the area between 33.28 S 21.15 E [KF06nr] and 33.33 S 21.42 E [KF06rq]. They will be using a special callsign, ZS1HELL. The team consist of Rassie/ZS1YT, Karl/ ZS1KC, Bennie/ZR1JHD, Graham/ZS1GVB, Conradt/ZR1CE, Derrek/ZS1DUP, Douglas/ZS1GUD, Johan/ZS1GP, Mac/ZS1XX and Olivier/ZS1OLI. The special station with the callsign ZS1HELL will be active from Friday, April 27th until Monday, April 30th. The station will be active on 160, 80, 40 and 20 meters. Although the station will be active on some DX frequencies, their main aim will be to achieve a Worked All ZS Award and a Top Band certificate. The electronic QSL system on the SARL Web page will be used as well as standard QSL cards. The direct QSL address is: PO Box 273, Strand, 7140, South Africa. BWHAHAHAHA the hack and failed actor Marqueer only played Adams in a community theatre that closed down it's run after not even a week due to poor attendance.....even though rotund and balding Morkie is a real close match to Adams' physical stature.

So Marqueer the huzzah boy goes to those Renissance fairs with his "Lady Avagay" and they both pretend to be in the middle ages.

> woghger you are a Congress all in your own head

And you should've been vetoed by the abortion doctor, Marqueer.

I have a Motorola STX 821 and can't get a system key to program, but my boss has one and I uploaded the program to my laptop and it will not let me download saying that it can not to a older version, I can not even save the info on disk, it keeps saying that file name is bad, Please correct it, and I tried and can't get it to save the file for later. It's on a older 166mhz laptop and the software works good.
Can anyone help me?
Thanks

408. PC and interference

This is a last resort question. I build my own PCs and have for the past 15 years. Currently I am using a 2.4ghz P4 with an Albatron PX845PEV Pro motherboard.. PC works great, and has been extremely stable, and not a problem, but it causes a significant hash in my ham gear on some bands. The noise occurs the instant power is applied and raises the NOISE level 1-4 S-units on 20 and 6. The bands in between seem to be OK, at least I haven't noticed any bad changes in noise, but then again except for 17 I haven't been on them much at this time in the cycle. This morning, I took the covers off the PC and while listening to 6, pulled or disconnected everything on the inside: power to the HDs and CDs and floppy, the bus cables to the devices, the AGP card and nothing changed. I put everything back together and went into the bios and disabled on board devices that I use, namely the built-in sound and Ethernet adapter and no change. I also swapped power supplies with a spare. I even brought up from the basement my old P3 to see if it did the same thing, and as expected, it is clean. I have come to the conclusion the Albatron motherboard is the culprit. At one point, it was the ONLY thing that had power supplied (P4 and memory stayed in place, not much good without them).
I am looking for anything I may have missed, and if others have fought the same kind of problem what they did and what you discovered. Hams who build their own PCs, what kind of MB have you used that is quiet? I am about to select a different brand of MB (don't want to, but....) and would like to hear what brand types that fit my processor work quietly.

This has been slowly driving me over the edge and I decided now is the time to get it fixed. Who cares about BPL with a problem like this, I generate my own hash. At least I can turn it off.

Thanks....

I can tell you right now, 90% of the problem is usually the switching supply (these tend to be poorly bypassed and not well shielded). I have much the same problems here and its a real bear to get the noise level down without adding significantly to my budget to get caps, ferrite beads and other items (full blown line filters). I am even getting to the point of building a faraday cage shielded rack to house my machines in (grrrr).

whatever you do, start at the machine and start with the power lines and work in from there.

413. LC notch filter not working!

Hi,

I am trying to filter out a 13.56 MHz signal (and if possible I would want to filter some of its harmonics in succeeding circuits).

I have tried a LC parallel resonance circuit put in series with the load. In theory the impedance of the LC parallel circuit becomes infinite at resonance frequency, i.e. the circuit becomes open.

I used a fixed inductance L=10uH and a variable C, i.e. a trimmer to get the product L*C = 1 / (2*pi*13.56MHz)^2 right. C should be approx 14 pF, however, due to +/-20% tolerances in L, I use a trimmer.

However, I can turn the trimmer (in the range from 10 to 20pF) as much as I want and I don't see ANY effect at all on my scope.

Any hints ? What am I missing ?

I have also looked at active notch filters, but this seems to be rather difficult at these high frequencies (see http://focus.ti.com/lit/an/slyt235/slyt235.pdf).

Thank you!!

Well, 'infinite'.... it depends how much is your termination (the impedance you drive _from_ and drive _into_?

------------ ----------------
Zin C Zout
---------------------------------
```

But Zin _and_ Zout need to be a lot lower then the high impedance of the parallel LC in resonance for anything significant to happen.

Often something like this is easier:

Zi --------------------------Zo
|
|

Now Zi and Zo can be a few kOhm, and will be practially shorted at resonance.

What input impedance is your scope? In a very slightly more accurate theory, and a much more useful one, the impedance does NOT become infinite, but rather becomes Q times the reactance at resonance. The reactance in your case is about 850 ohms. The Q I have little idea about: it could be 10 (pretty easily), it could be 1000 (with quite a bit of difficulty). You may do much better if you put a lower load resistance on the output of the filter -- in the RF world, 50 ohms would be usual, but at least something much lower than a 1 megohm scope input (as I suspect you're using).

There are better circuits for implementing RF notches. With only passive parts (and no superconductors), you can't get a infinite Q peak, but you can get an infinitely deep notch. Google 'bridged T notch circuit.' The key concept is that if you give the RF two paths to follow that cause phase shifts that are exactly 180 degrees out of phase at the output at one frequency, and you can adjust the amplitudes while summing them back together, you can get them to cancel perfectly. The bridged T notch should work quite well for you at 13MHz.

Cheers,
Tom

Say Tom,

Any suggestions for building electronically adjustable notch filters where there's a ballpark of a watt flowing around (i.e., 30dBm in a 50 volt system -> 10V peak voltage)? Such high voltage seem to rule out using a varactor diode as the capacitor or using a DC bias current in an inductor to push it towards saturation. For UHF and above the obvious answer seems to be YIG filters, but how about for HF and VHF? A single octave of tunability would do wonders for me at times...

Thanks,

One approach would be to use a coaxial stub filter with a bunch of PIN diode shunt switches arrayed along its length. It would tune in steps, of course, but depending on the notch width you want, that might work.

I often use a coax patch cord and a thumbtack for this sort of thing.

Yeah, that's similar to what I typically do now -- albeit with lumped L-C's by the time I'm down at HF. By the time you get, e.g., 5% tuning steps though, that's 15 sections to make an octave. Not bad, I'm just hoping someone knows some magic that will work even better. :-)

I have seen some commercial notch filters that were electro-mechanical in nature: something like a motor-driven roller-inductor. That and a handful of capacitors gets you a very wide tuning range, tons of power, etc. with the only drawback being that the time to change frequencies is going to be measured in seconds. It almost seems like the most elegant approach sometimes...

Thanks for your input,
---Joel

In the '60s it was done with motor driven roller inductors and motor driven variable capacitors.

You could reverse feed an isolator into a selective load....
The beauty of this approach is low (even very low) insertion loss.
The drawbacks or course are deep notches, and maybe only 20MHz BW at UHF.
The latter being primarily a function of the isolator response.

You would still have to make the load (cavity, line section, etc...)
electronically adjustable if you truly wanted to meet your above criteria, but it should work.

Can you sweep it to determine where it is resonant?
Sounds like it is either off frequency or has miserable
Q or maybe both. 'Course as others have indicated
the meaurements set up may be part of the problem.

if you have room you could maybe try a stub filter.

For those who were wishing they had Jim Carter,WA8JSC back in Florida, all of us in Ohio wish you did too. We were very happey when he left 15 years ago, but it looks like he wore out his welcome and is back with us again. We always though it would be good if he'd get a job when he was here, except when he was the drummer boy in his grams twirler group. He was a kid then. We'll do all we can do so you can get him back, he's already obnoxious on our repeater but he's alive and well in Greenville, Ohio

Only if you have the theoretical zero-loss components.

>I used a fixed inductance L=10uH and a variable C, i.e. a trimmer to get the product
>L*C = 1 / (2*pi*13.56MHz)^2 right. C should be approx 14 pF, however, due to +/-20% >tolerances in L, I use a trimmer.

OK. At 13.56 MHz, the reactance of the inductor is ~ 852 Ohms. The impedance
magnitude of a parallel-tuned circuit at resonance is very close to Q
* X where Q is the total quality factor of both inductance and capacitance and X is the resonance reactance of either L or C.

Using a toroid inductor with a Q=150 will get you a resonance magnitude of about 127.8 KOhms. Using a solenoidal form inductor the Q is closer to 50 and the resonance magnitude would be about 42.6 KOhms.

A series impedance between source and load, the load being a finite resistance of some sort, makes a simple voltage divider...the impedance
of the parallel-resonant circuit being resistive at resonance. If the load is on the order of 100 KOhms or more, the voltage drop will be small; if it is on the order of 100 Ohms, the voltage drop at resonance is great.
But,
with a low load resistance, there will be a decided loss of voltage on either side of resonance due to finite impedance magnitude of the tuned circuit.

>However, I can turn the trimmer (in the range from 10 to 20pF) as much >as I want and I don't see ANY effect at all on my scope.

That depends on just where you are observing. Putting a scope probe on the load end will detune the L-C since the probe itself has a capacitance which is very close to what you've chosen. That can be calculated and proven but the impedance math gets more complicated. Note: The load end also has some capacitance at this frequency and that will detune the resonance as well.

Someone else suggested a shunting trap of a series L-C rather than a parallel L-C. That wouldn't be much better since the off-resonance impedance of a series trap will affect the source end's impedance and thus its gain. Such an application needs to take into account the entire circuit's impedances including circuit capacitance of both source and load, as with the parallel L-C that needs to include pass frequency as well as notch frequency..

>Any hints ? What am I missing ?

In general, the "trap" circuits used in the past (early TV receivers of 50 years ago) were only partially-successful, primarily concerned with bandpass shaping without assuming anything close to high attenuation at a single frequency. They worked fine at the high source and load impedances for tubes but not at all optimum for solid-state active devices.

There are some bridge circuits that might work at a specific frequency for attenuation, but those would need to be analyzed for their response you want to pass. A better bet for attenuating both a specific frequency - and - harmonics is to use a lowpass L-C. If your desired bandpass frequency is only about a third of the "trap" desired, an Elliptic (aka Cauer) lowpass with one of its maximum attenuation frequencies at 13.56 MHz could do that and attenuate the higher harmonics. The Elliptic function filters have definite attenuation frequencies in their stopbands.

I'd like to suggest an easy way out, but there really isn't any...without going to a more elaborate circuit than first realized.

If you wish to pass a rather narrow band of frequencies but attenuate a specific frequency well away from those, an ordinary tuned circuit might be better. Depending on the frequency desired and Q of the L and C, the impedance magnitude drop-off away from resonance might be enough to do whatever it is you want to do.

Drive from a low impedance with a series resistor.
One big advantage of series LC to ground is that you can connect the trimmer cap to ground, so it does not detune when you stick a normal screwdriver in it :-) Somebody may remember the 'tol-trimmer'.

Else I agree with yet an other poster that the T filter is likely the way to go.

What is your load? If it is high impedance, then your parallel LC has to exhibit an even higher impedance at resonance, which is difficult for real inductors.

To suggest a solution we should know more details on the source and the load.

Seconds? You should check out the old Collins 490T antenna tuner. As I recall, the spec was something like 5 seconds max to tune any new load within the specified range, any new frequency within range, but you knew that if it didn't tune in a second and a half, something was most likely broken. Motors don't have to be slow. The inductor went from one end to the other in I suppose under half a second. Seems like it was 8 or 10 turns. Obviously PIN diodes would be faster though. Also, I wouldn't count varactors out of the race, for at least part of the job. You might not use diodes rated specifically for varactor service, since you'd be biasing them with tens of volts most likely. But there's a long ways between these embryonic ideas and a working design, and I leave that to you. ;-)

Cheers,
Tom

This particular part is not true. A parallel-resonant trap placed in series is not detuned by load capacitance at the output. It's still parallel-resonant at the same frequency. A simulation shows this easily. The same is true of a series resonant shunt trap.

Yeah, I suppose that if you start back-biasing your diodes at 100V, suddenly a volt starts to look like a small signal again.

Someone else mentioned that a straightforward means to drop the voltage swings is by dropping the "system" impedance. A 1:100 transformer takes 10V to a mere 100mV, although now the 50 ohm system is 5 ohms so Q has to be 10 times better to obtain the same notch depth. Still, probably worth pursuing.

Speaking of Collins radios, here's a rather sad site:

Nope, you've got the square root in the wrong place: a 100:1 transformer changes the impedance by 10,000:1, not 10:1. Try 5 milliohms. You'd need as many varactors in parallel for that as you'd need in series-parallel for the other approach.

Many years ago I made a digital system, it consisted of 4 coils
10, 20, 40, and 80 uH, and 4 relais to put these in series as needed (this was a rather high power system).
So the the tuning software switched the relais, giving 15 presets.
That was accurate enough for antenne matching.
And there were 12 of these in a rack....

440. Question on Callsign after FCC license upgrade (USA)

Hi folks,

I'm optimistic that someone here is a VE, a recent license upgradee, or otherwise knowledgeable person who can solve a couple issues for me. Fingers crossed--here goes:

Yesterday's FCC report shows the approval of my FCC amateur radio license upgrade from General to Extra. Whew, I'm there. But when I took and passed my Extra exam a couple weeks ago, I checked and initialed the box on the application stating that I wanted to "Request to change a station call sign systematically" yet my FCC file shows that I chose NOT to make that request. Consequently, I remain with my over ten year old Callsign from Region 8 while I now reside in Region 7. Was this an oversight on the part of the FCC or are they ignoring requests made when passing an exam for a license upgrade (through the ARRL VEC if that matters) for a systematic Callsign change?

I know that I can go onto the FCC's ULS, log on, and request a systematic change to my Callsign, but another issue needs clarification before I do that. Now that I'm an Amateur Extra, I expect to be in Group A for systematic sequential Callsign assignment

http://wireless.fcc.gov/services/index.htm?job=call_signs_1&id=amateur but from my FCC file, I see that I'm still listed in Group D. My fear is that if I now make a request for a systematic callsign change online, even as an Extra, that I'll be given a KE7xxx Callsign since I'm in Group D yet, according to the FCC. Shouldn't my Group have been changed to "A" when I became an Extra so that a request for a systematic Callsign change would make me a AD7xx (rather than the KE7xxx that I fear)?

Here's hoping someone can and will offer assistance. Thanks in advance.

Yes, you are correct...caught me with a low level of caffeine on Thursday. :-)

Yes on the parallel L-C for the trap frequency. But, under low source impedance and high load impedance, with the approximate L and C given, there is a voltage increase at a frequency below the trap frequency.
[there are four combinations of 3 components for L and C circuits, each with a peak versus dip impedance response, me has to keep reviewing those to avoid confusion] To explain, my (later) analysis model was as follows:

One-Ohm impedance current source. Parallel L-C in series with load, L1 = 10 uHy with Q of 150, C1 = 14 pFd. Load is 1 MOhm in parallel with C2, C2 varying 10, 20, 30 pFd. Capacitors were assumed essentially lossless since their typical Q at these frequencies can be 1000 or more.
Minimum voltage response was at a nearly constant frequency regardless of C2 value. Maximum voltage response frequency varied considerably.
Using 1.0 V RMS reference for 0 db, the response v. C2 value was:

C2 = 30 pFd, Vout peak +22 db at 7.8 MHz, Vout minimum -35 db.
C2 = 20 pFd, Vout peak +26 db at 8.25 MHz, Vout minimum -32 db
C2 = 10 pFd, Vout peak +21 db at 10.4 MHz, Vout minimum -26 db

I could have done the above with L1 Q of 50 but that would simply decrease the lower frequency peak voltage, show a lesser voltage minimum at the upper trap frequency, the rest about the same.

* At this point someone will get hot about "ya can't have voltage * gain with no amplifier!" or equivalent. :-) Yes, one can since
* a voltage increase only means a current decrease at one
* frequency...the only power loss is in the Qs of the components.

>The same is true of a series resonant shunt trap.

Yes, but only for the series resonance frequency. There's a variation in the overall voltage response depending on the load resistance and its parallel load (and probe) capacity. For sure, a series-resonant circuit across the source is going to affect the gain of the driving source from its frequency variation of impedance.

This is one of those seemingly-inocuous circuit applications which can get very tricky to apply with any repeatability. Especially so when the source and load were unspecified. It's safe to say that EVERYTHING interacts over frequency and one cannot just assume anything. That includes scope probes which far too many apply thinking just of their 10 Meg input resistance and forgetting they all have capacity to ground in parallel. :-(

Thanks for reminding me to go back to earlier basics, Tom. A number of years ago I worked the math on impedance of the four basic 3-component combinations and wrote it up for a work application (that would have been a high production failure situation if used as-is) and thought memory "would always be there." Actually it was but my mind gets cluttered with other stuff on a disorganized basis. :-)

BTW, I used my own LINEA (DOS-only) analysis program and LTSpice (free Windows compatible full package from Linear Technology) to run this simple circuit model. Results agreed.

Other than a pre-tuned Collins commercial transmitter at an Army station in the early 1950s, the first time I recall seeing an automatic antenna tuner was in the T-195 transmitter built by Collins for a USMC contract (forget the AN/ number, its companion receiver was the R-392, the 28 V counterpart to the R-390 and R-391). On a quickie demo in 1955, the officer doing the demo disconnected one of the Jeep's whip antenna sections. The T-195 retuned its antenna is a few seconds, indicated by a little lamp on the front panel. Most amazing to me at the time, used to the huge built-to-last-forever HF monsters that were always most fussy on manual tuning. :-)

Much later I got a PDF of that T-195 TM and believe that this set might have been the first military radio to incorporate the Bruene voltage-current detector necessary for the automatic antenna tuning servos. Any delays in operation might have been just from the detector-sensor output time-constants in addition to motor speeds. The "Bruene Bridge" as it is sometimes called, is the basic form for nearly every other automatic antenna tuner built since then.

Yes, the all-important "gestation stage." Ask any mother. :-)

I've trimmed off a couple of the groups since someone seems to have gotten his knickers all twisted up over the posting in, wow, four pissibly relevant newsgroups. Wish he'd take his venom out on the idiots that cross-posted from the wierd alt.* groups a couple weeks ago.

Anyway, Joel, WHY would you think that the Q needs to be any different?? You'd scale the impedance, and as Phil noted you got the impedance ratio vs turns ratio backwards, but you'd want the same Q at that frequency. It might be practical to scale by a 3:1 turns ratio or possibly even 4:1 at these frequencies, but I'd be wary of going beyond that.

Tom

Trimmed off a couple of the groups and much of the message, though all was noted. Thanks for the additional info; I trust the OP will finde it useful, if he's still around. (Pet peeve: posters who don't bother to get back to say "Hey, that helped," or "Huh?" or give some indication they are still lurking.)

Yes, to be sure the response depends on the load. In fact, even at the notch frequency, if you start with a high load and add capacitance, you significantly affect the depth of the notch with the added capacitance.

It can be quite useful to add another capacitor (or inductor) to a series or shunt trap, to get the response at a frequency you specifically want to pass to be high. You can do the same thing with transmission line stubs, which becomes practical at higher frequencies. For example, you can put a shorted stub across a line, where the stub length is 1/2 wave on the frequency you want to "kill." But then the response at nearby frequencies will also be attenuated. You can then view that first stub as a reactance at the frequency you want to pass, and add another stub of the same reactance magnitude but opposite polarity. You'll find, of course, that the two stubs total a wavelength, assuming both are shorted at the ends away from the point the join the through line. With low loss line, this can be a very effective way to get rid of a large signal in a fixed-frequency receiver system. The capacitor-or-inductor-added-to-the-trap is a lumped equivalent of this idea.

I suppose in an absolutely accurate analysis, the impedance versus frequency charaterisitic of a load that includes capacitance may be such that the frequency of the maximum attenuation of a finite-Q notch is shifted ever so slightly, but for sure it won't be shifted enough to notice; the proximity of the metal in the probe to the coil is likely to affect the resonant frequency more.

Cheers,
Tom

The group code listed is that of your current call sign and is not the group eligibility code. So applying for a new systematic call should not be a problem.

As far as checking the new call sign box on your upgrade form, you should have got a new call then with your upgrade. It is quite common to get a new call simultaneously with the upgrade. It was simply human error. They have been swamped with upgrade applications so I'm not surprised if they make a mistake now and then.

I was probably unclear in that I meant Q of the inductor (and am assuming Q of the capacitor is high enough to be ignore); not Q of the system.

Say you're in a 50 ohm system. If, at resonance, your series shunt L-C exhibits a resistance of 0.5 ohms, that's about a 40dB notch. However, in a 5 ohm system, it's only a 10dB notch. You need to get the resistance down to 0.05 -- implying a Q ten times large than what you started with -- to maintain the same notch depth.

Do you buy this? :-)

Thanks,
---Joel

Agreed. However, the coax cable stub idea might be a tad impractical considering that 13.56 MHz is lower in wavelength than the 20m band. Stubs could get as long as around 15 feet at that frequency. :-)

I once had to "rotate" the impedance of some SAW filters (8 of them) for the 60 to 70 MHz region and couldn't get any more space for the matching other than some slots in a machined-out chassis. I couldn't have done it without skinny lil 1/8" OD coax held in place by some RTV. [roughly 3/8 of a rotation on the Smith Chart] I hate to think about doing that at 13 MHz.

This should, of course, be 20dB. I know I was thinking 20dB, but clearly I

Mark doesn't lisp, at least not to the best of our knowledge. To determine that, we'd have to hear him on the air and he has no radio service capable of transmitting past local VHF repeaters.
His antenna, if it is that, is laying prone on his porch rails and is out of service. He currently uses the mast as a dog tie.

And how is life in the slow lane in Glen Dale, Roger? Still peeking from behind your curtains to see who comes knocking? You never know who may show up next....

The European Commission has just announced an agreement whereby English will be the official language of the European Union rather than German, which was the other possibility.

As part of the negotiations, the British Government conceded that English spelling had some room for improvement and has accepted a 5 year phase-in plan that would become known as "Euro-English".

In the first year, "s" will replace the soft "c". Sertainly, this will make the sivil servants jump with joy. The hard "c" will be dropped in favour of "k". This should klear up konfusion, and keyboards kan have one less letter.

There will be growing publik enthusiasm in the sekond year when the troublesome "ph" will be replaced with "f". This will make words like fotograf 20% shorter.

In the 3rd year, publik akseptanse of the new spelling kan be expekted to reach the stage where more komplikated changes are possible.

Governments will enkourage the removal of double letters which have always ben a deterent to akurate speling.

Also, al wil agre that the horibl mes of the silent "e" in the languag is disgrasful and it should go away.

By the 4th yer people wil be reseptiv to steps such as replasing "th" with "z" and "w" with "v".

During ze fifz yer, ze unesesary "o" kan be dropd from vords kontaining "ou" and after ziz fifz yer, ve vil hav a reil sensi bl riten styl.

Zer vil be no mor trubl or difikultis and evrivun vil find it ezi tu understand ech oza. Ze drem of a united urop vil finali kum tru.

Und efter ze fifz yer, ve vil al be speking German like zey vunted in ze forst plas.

No, and definitely NOT "original." The original has been cribbed by dozens, rewritten for a specific subject, and tossed out as "new" or "news" for years. Sigh...given some snazzy graphics this could have been a "news" item for the "Onion." :-(

Nonsense, JS, EVERY human language has its peculiarities, rules, and convoluted forms. We can say, with some certainty, that:

I believe every math/tech/logic student who has been forced to take has argued the insanity and illogic of english, well, at least those with a respectable IQ have ... the waste of time learning phone instead

Heck. Mark has been writing like that for decades. He even said,
"I realy don't write that badly I do write in ore european mode [sic]"

So, what you call laziness, Mark calls economy of effort. Maybe he is simply ahead of his time.

Or stupid.

Where were you when the Heils came a-calling? They didn't stay in their vehicle.
They were on your porch, knocking on your door. I'm sure you heard them, even above the knocking of you knees as you retreated to the back bedroom.
You missed a golden opportunity there, Rog. You could have answered the door and apologized and acted like a grownup. Who knows? You might even have been able to make a friend or two in the process. Lord knows you need all of those you can get.

Heck. They, the Terrorists/Muslims are already doing so in Dearborn, Michigan. The Muslims are demanding that the City Council allow them to blast their call to prayer sirens five times a day. The local non-Muslim citizens are outraged that 40 percent of the population should dictate to the majority.
How much you want to bet that the pussy politicians give in to Political Correctness and let the Muslims rule the day?

And just last year, two 22 year old Dearborn, Michigan Muslim kids were arrested on the Toll Road for having six thousand pay-as-you-go throwaway cell phones in their car. They were arrested for speeding. Having that many throw-away cell phones was not illegal, but it takes not a rocket scientist to figure out what they were doing.

Improvised explosive devices? Sending cell phones to terrorsist cells?

Islam is NOT a religion of peace. It is a religion of violence, vengeance, and wanton slaughter.

So, they're as bad as the zionist Christians? They can't be. The body count production is vastly in favour of the followers of the 'Prince of Peace'.

3B7C, ST.BRANDON ISLAND (DXpedition Update). Don Field, G3XTT, has sent out a press release (#4) with updated information. Excerpts from the release states that plans for the September FSDXA DXpedition to St. Brandon are progressing well. A suitable boat has been chartered to take the team and its 6 tons of equipment to the island. The licence has been received, and all permits are in place for their stay on the island. The team will be operating from Isle du Sud, the southern end of what is shown on the charts as Cocos Island (not to be confused with Cocos Island in TI9 or the Cocos-Keeling Islands VK9!). "Lighthouse on the Air" enthusiasts might be interested to note that Cocos Island does have a beacon (WLOTA-Ref. LH 1017). This will be an all-time new one for lighthouse collectors - assuming the light is accessible from Isle du Sud. There have been some team changes. Some of the previously announced members have, unfortunately, had to drop out of the expedition. These include G3VMW, G4KIU, SM5AQD, WF5T and W3WL. However, they are delighted to announce that they will be replaced by Bob/MD0CCE (also known as N2BB), Pete/SM5GMZ (recently QRV from 6W), Gordon/G3USR and Clive/GM3POI (well-known as a low band expert living in the Orkney Islands). It was also announced at the RSGB Board meeting on Saturday, March 16th, that the board unanimously agreed to award the Five Star DXers Association (FSDXA) the "Calcutta Key" for the association's outstanding service to International Friendship. The FSDXA now has a four page full-color brochure with more information about their expedition available. This can be downloaded in both high and low definition PDF format from their Web site at: http://www.3b7c.com

4W, TIMOR-LESTE (OC-148). Members of the Korea DX Club will be active from the capital city of Dili between May 30th and June 4th. Operators Kim/6K5YPW, Lee/DS2BGV, Choi/HL5FUA and Yoon/6K2AVL will be active as 4W6AAV (or possibly a 2 letter suffix callsign that will be requested upon their arrival). Activity will be on 160-10 meters CW, SSB and the digital; depending on propagation. Suggested frequencies are:
Digi - 14082, 21082 and 28100 kHz
QSL via HL5FUA: Jong-sool CHOI, P.O.Box 5, ULLEUNG ISLAND, 799-800, Republic of KOREA. QSL cards will be sent to the KARL Bureau after completing the direct request. More info and logs will be available at: http://dxpedition.co.kr/

6W, SENEGAL. Remember Pete, SM5GMZ, is expected to be active from Thies as of April 27th. The callsign will be 6V7-something. He plans to operate for 12 days. Activity will be on all modes and bands, but look for him especially on 80/160m. QSL via SM5GMZ, direct or by the bureau.

BS7, SCARBOROUGH REEF. A team of 18 operators left for Scarborough Reef at 0600z, April 25th, from Hong Kong and arrived at the Reef on the North side just as the sun was setting on April 28th. The trip was slower than expected because of extreme rough seas. As this bulletin was being written, the team reportedly (as of 0300z, April 29th - Local time at Scarborough Reef was 1100 hours in the morning) "has made entry into the lagoon area and are starting to build the operating positions. They are proceeding as quickly as possible under the conditions that are present. The weather is now perfect and for the time being should not hinder work activities as the day moves on." Currently, all the DXers world-wide wait patiently to work the most wanted DXCC entity. By the time you read this, they should be on the air and active for 9 days. This operation has been in the planning stages for 5 years. We were told that the International Team is led by Bob/W6RGG and includes James/9V1YC, Chen/BA1HAM, Fan/BA1RB, David/BA4RF, Chen/BA4RC, Terry/BA7NQ, Ko/BV6HJ, Eddie/DU1EV, Jun/DU1BA, Tom/ND2T, Joe/AA4NN, Paul/K4UJ, Mike/N6MZ, Mike/K9AJ, Martti/OH2BH, Massimo/I8NHJ and Christian/DL3MBG. The support staff include Tom/N4XP, Don/N1DG, Sam/K5YY, Paul/BV4FH and Jose/DU1JMG. According to their press release: "Scarborough Reef has unique and dangerous attributes and as such we will not have online logs or pilots. All efforts are on keeping our team safe so they can provide a new one to as many hams as possible." OPDX wishes the team best of luck and a safe operation and safe trip back from BS7. QSL via KU9C. For updates, visit the BS7H Web Page at: http://www.bs7h.com

NEWS FLASH (Just before going to print!):PRESS RELEASE #9 (14:00 UTC 29 April): "The BS7H team worked throughout the day in setting up the stations and managed to get one station operational as darkness fell. The first QSO was made at 13:47 UTC. The dangerous environment prohibits any work in darkness, and they were unable to fully provision the one station that is operating. As a result, the CW station now on 14024 does not have enough gas to last the evening, so when you hear them QRT do not panic. At daybreak they will resupply the station as well as complete adding the other stations. We expect the team to be fully operational with all stations by darkness tomorrow.
N4XP and N1DG for the BS7H

QSL INFO AND NEWS.....
US Postal Service has announced all of the increased postal rates.
See: www.usps.com/cpim/ftp/bulletin/2007/pb22203a.pdf
In addition to an increase in U.S. Domestic First Class rates, international rates also increase and Surface Parcel Post service is being discontinued. It is believed that the loss of surface parcel post will probably effect the cost of forwarding cards via the ARRL Outgoing QSL Bureau (unless they are using m-bag service and even then those rates are increasing significantly).

	old	new
Domestic First Class	$0.39	$0.41 (1 ounce/28 gm)

Canada/Mexico $0.63 $0.69 (1 ounce/28 gm)
Rest of world $0.84 $0.90 (1 ounce/28 gm)

IRC $1.85 $2.00

New rates/prices/services effective May 14, 2007.

9M4SDX QSL STATUS. Tex, 9M2TO, informs OPDX that the direct 9M4SDX QSLs are starting to be answered. All NA DIRECT REQUESTS have been mailed as of April 27th. They are now processing EUs, then JAs and Asia.

CN3A and 5D5A QSL STATUS. As of April 26th, the CN3A direct QSL requests backlog has been cleared, and all the cards are in the mail. New requests for CN3A, from now on, will be answered once a week. The 5D5A direct QSL requests backlog will be processed starting from May 2nd.

Look for R7C/TF QSLs to start coming out in the middle of May. This info is via RW3GW/3.

QSL Manager Alan, VK4AAR, reports: "Due to the rapidly increasing strength of the Australian dollar (or perhaps the US dollar is weakening?) it is vital that DXers are aware that ONE U.S. DOLLAR will no longer buy a stamp to any part of the world from Australia. Lately I have been able to survive by using 'card only rate' postage ... but that is no longer possible. I have noticed that the EURO is more stable and €1.00 (one Euro) will be enough ... but do NOT send coins! Banks only accept and exchange paper money."

QSL Z29KM via EA7FTR.

QSLS RECEIVED IN THE MAIL: 3C0M, 3DX2Z, 3XM6JR, CE1/K7CA , EK8WA, HB9RDE, PJ2/N0KE, R1FJM, TG9NX, TI8II, V31JZ/p, V51AS, VP9/W6PH, XT2C, YI9KT, ZS4U and ZS9X

507. Introducing New York Near Space Research (NYNSR)

The Irvington High School Science Club is announcing the creation of a New High Altitude Balloon group. High Altitude Balloons are Helium filled latex balloons that fly at altitudes higher then 85,000 feet (some make it to over 140,000 ft). Amateur Radio and APRS are both used to track the balloons during the flight and after landing The group will be called "New York Near Space Research" or NYNSR for short and will be conducting flights by late Spring next year in the Lower Hudson Valley. We are hoping to have a website purchased by the end of this week and have some more information available. We have started a public Google group under the name New York Near Space Research already and you may join if you like.

BAD,

[Reality Check] Christians are Not the Ones Going Around with Machine Guns, Grenades and Bombs on Fridays Attacking Islamic Mosques. But this is a regular 'happening' in many Islamic Countries for Muslims to Attack Christian Churches on Sundays. Especially in Pakistan and Indonesia. In Indonesia over 20 years 1000 Christian Churches were in-fact attacked. In these "ATTACKS" People were Murdered and buildings destroyed. Think Of It: That is one Attack a Week, Every Week for 20 Years. So is there a pattern here? Some reasonable people think so.

The input impedance of the scope is 1 MegOhms for the passive probes
I use, but i can change the coupling to 50 Ohms as well.

Do you know where the Q in an LC notch filter comes from ? Is this the Q of the inductor defined as (2*pi*f * L) / R ?

What kind of inductor and capacitor is best suited for a notch filter at 13.56 MHz (RF frequencies) ?
I use a ceramic trimmer right now, but I am not sure what kind of inductor is best suited for RF circuits. It seems that the value of an inductor (even the L) is very frequency-dependent.

When you say a low load is much better, do you mean for a parallel LC notch filter, or for a series LC notch filter ?

Thanks for the great help!

What are the circuit impedances?

Consider that your circuit more or less looks something like this,

Rtrap
input signal >-----+----/\/\/\/\/----+-----> output
| |
/ /
\ \
Rin / / Rout
\ \
/ /
\ \
| |
| |
----- -----
--- ---
```

Hmmm, looks just like a plain old RC attenuation pad! Except the Rtrap is actually a parallel tuned circuit that is a high impedance at one frequency and lower impedances at other frequencies. So lets pick any handy set of values for Rtrap, as an example. Maybe your LC circuit is more, or maybe less... the effect is what you want to understand. Lets assume the value for Rtrap approaches 100 Ohms for non-resonant frequencies, and say 10,000 Ohms at the resonate frequency.

So, if Rin happens to be high, say 100,000 Ohms or more we can just ignore it. (Which is practical, as all it does is provide a constant load for your source, and we'll assume it is sturdy and can handle anything from 0 to 1000 megs!)

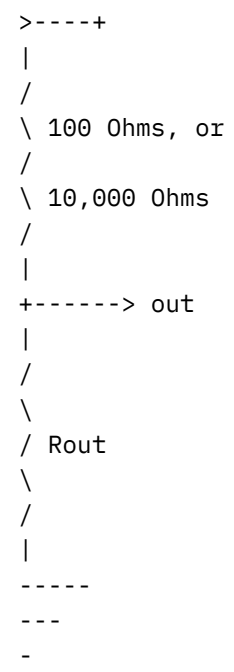
That means you have two circuits, one at the resonate frequency and one at all others, which both look like this,



It's just a plain old resistance divider. If Rout is 100 Ohms the output will be 1/2 the input at non-resonate frequencies (insertion loss), and at the resonate frequency it will be 1/100th of the input.

Obviously if the Rout value is 100,000 Ohms your divider is going to have virtually no effect at all! And if it is 10 Ohms the effect will be even greater than it was at 100 Ohms.

No, they were a totally Christian political group who had an agenda of religious persecution based on the feeling that they were superior to the

I believe that there are many Christians and Christian Groups would would beg-to-differ-with-you that the NAZI's were a

Can that circuit ever produce any depth of notch? If Rtrap is a parallel tuned circuit then it has in parallel with it an effective resistance of Rin+Rout, and to get any reasonable selectivity Rin+Rout must be high compared to L/C.R, the dynamic impedance of the tuned circuit at resonance.

If that is so, are there actually any values for Rin and Rout that could produce a reasonable selectivity?

I think it is easily safe to say that Mark is the MAIN reason a moderated group was found to be a necessity. Why do I say this? Look back just a couple of weeks when Mark was absent from this group for several days. The posts suddenly became far fewer, were much more civil, and dealt with Amateur Radio issues for the most part. Then, upon Mark's unfortunate (for us) return, the flooding and thread jacking began again.

I agree with a previous post. It would behoove us to ignore Mark's fecal droppings, his hijacked threads, and his inane, pointless, and poorly authored comments. Note, I said Comments, NOT responses.

580. NEAR-Fest, where do the profits go?

Just got back from NEAR-Fest in Deerfield, NH, and while I have to say it ain't no Hosstraders (yet), still it was a very welcome event and I enjoyed it, and it has the potential to grow in the full Hosstraders tradition.

Speaking of the "Hosstraders tradition", I was just wondering if anyone knows where the profits from this event are going.

Hosstraders was always held to benefit the Shriners Burn Center (or the Shriners organization in general, I don't recall which), and from all reports resulted in a large check to that organization twice a year. I'm sure they will miss it.

Anyone know which charity (if any) will benefit from NEAR-Fest?

I told you, your are entertaining, like a puppet under everyone's control, I or someone posts and you must post back, you can't stop yourself. RRAP and RRAM reflects that, 95% of every thread ends with you responding to someone, while running each thread into the ground.
Go to Google Groups and look at RRAP and RRAM, 95% of the posts end with the same poster, YOU. However, when you look at other groups, ones that you don't post to look fairly normal, all kinds of different threads, when many different posters.

Oh, so now you don't think I am Woger, I wish you would make up your mind.

Then admitting that you know your behavior is inappropriate and needs to be policed, but you act the way you do because you know there are no real consequences to your actions

No guilt here, you see I did not obtain my domain the way that you "captured" the spamblog. The person that created that blog used you identity to create the blog, Thus inpersonating you. IMO, you had a right under bloggers TOS to "capture" the blog, was it the right thing to do, from your perspective it may have been, from mine, no, to me it was still someone's creative works, whatever the use. OTOH, and listen very carefully one more time, your blog and domain went not found for some reason. Either you took it down for whatever reason and won't admit the truth, or Blogger TOS'ed your blog for whatever reason.
Nevertheless, the domain name came available and I choose to obtain the address. You may not like it but that is the truth. I didn't take your blog and delete the contents. Your blog was long gone when I obtained the domain, but I am glad, since your blog had turned into a tirade about me anyway, I think you lost your focus of why you were blogging in the first place. Maybe, if you hadn't turned your blog into a slander fest of Dloyd Lavies, your blog would still exist.

You couldn't kill a fly much less a man. You want to kill me for posting stuff on the net. But I find it funny that you didn't kill the person who supposedly raped you or caused your father to go

Hi There,

The Bishop Druit College Radio Club
http://www.qsl.net/mm0axl/mncarg/bdc.html situated in the Mid North Coast of NSW

Australia at Coffs Harbour are looking forward to making Local or DX IRLP
contacts on Fridays 0315 - 0345 UTC.

Contacts will be on IRLP node 6625 via local repeater VK2RDO on 146.650Mhz.

The young people in the club have been experimenting with building simple FM radio recievers, and have been contemplating the design of plasma balls using ordinary light globes and car spark coils.

Contacts with interested parties or similar school electronic/radio groups
would be great but unfortunately
the club only has limited time during the local lunchtime period.

Also the Bishop Druit College French and German Language classes are interested in contacts Monday to Friday 0315 - 0345 UTC.

If interested and can help arrange a contact please email:

Gary VK2ZKT gryan@bdc.nsw.edu.au

or

Peter VK2EVB vk2evb@wia.org.au

You don't REALLY wish Mark were there, do you? Unless you need a pool boy, that is.
I certainly wouldn't allow him to enter the water for fear that he'd pollute
it. I say this because, judging from the poor condition of his yard, it is glaringly apparent that Mark and Personal Hygiene are not on a first name basis.

I also look at shortwave, you don't have the same posting behavior over there, you don't try to dominate every thread over there like you do on RRAP and RRAM, even looking at your profile reflects that you post much less over there than you do here.

Asking you not to crap on my threads is not blackmail. I already know your response, don't bother, we've done this dance before.

WHAT!, I told you about a dozen times the basis for my beef with you.
I am not going to cover that entire ground again. Been there done that.

But in summary,

I asked you not to crap on my threads, and the response from you was
FU. When I had my blogs, I asked you not to post your bad language, your response FU.

I even thought about releasing the blog domain, but because I didn't move fast enough, your response FU

If you don't know what the problem is, you will never know.

I noted that you often used that "shithole" to exchange taunts with Roger.

terms, of course you couldn't stop crapping on my threads.

Because you claimed that you had so many friends. However, your wedding registry appeared to discredit that statement, considering it had many items and like only four had been purchased. When I posted this info it seemed relevant to the topic at the time. Your the one that had taken the thread off topic about how you had so many friends. BTW, if the info was so private, why did Google search find it in its cache and why did you leave it on the net four years after you got married.

I "atacking" nobody but your stupid disregard for the English language.

And besides, Dloyd often makes humorous comments that I find entertaining.
You should borrow a page from Dloyd's book of humor and learn to laugh.

Aw, crap. Now Markie will be up all night whining about how he is the victim. Groan.
I've said it before and will say it once again. Had Mark not been so friggin' stupid as to post his name, his call sign, and even his goofy wife's wedding wish list, Mork would not now be suffering the slings he is.
And yet the dumbass still maintains that he has more Chutzpah than the rest of us because he uses his name and posts personal information. Sorry to be so banal, but What A Fucking Idiot.

Mork. I noted that some, many, of your asinine comments at http://ipunce.blogspot.com were removed. Too bad that the admin of that blog won't allow you to flame as you do on Usenet. Your perceived freedom of speech stops at the ipunce blog's front door. I guess you'll have to crap on posts elsewhere.

I'd love to have heard Mark's CW operation during a Sweepstakes 'test. I'll bet is sounded like someone falling down a flight of stairs with a keyer and a Scrabble game.

Mark's bullhockey snipped.

Mark, it ain't Libel if it is fact.

And to prove that a statement is NOT fact and may indeed be Libel, YOU have to take the person making the comment to court to prove otherwise. This means, of course, that you would have to hire a REAL attorney and that that REAL attorney would have to subpoena Usenet (or whoever) for records as to whose URl the comments came from.
Since you and Gav are of obvious limited incomes, it would serve you well to cease with your bullshit claims of being "libeled". You are a paper tiger.

Your mail-order legal courses aren't teaching you much.

Oh, the irony. Mark is ice ages away from learning to spell correctly. Then he turns about and further slaughters the construction of what should be a readable sentence.
He has excuses, sure. The bottom line is that Mark is simply too lazy to do anything other than sit on his fat arse, gobble calories, let his wife work at her mundane new shop and haunt Usenet.

b. You have no concept of other cultures and mindsets.

The ensuing hype and paranoia, the fractures and the divisions, the raw polarization have done more to defeat the USA than another terrorist attack.

6W, SENEGAL. Giovanni, IZ2DPX, will be active as 6W/IZ2DPX from Somone City (GL IK14MM), May 12-22nd. Activity will be on 160/80/40/20/17/15/12/10/6 meters. BS7, SCARBOROUGH REEF. The BS7H DXpedition went QRT as scheduled at or about 0001z, May 6th. As this bulletin was being prepared, their Web page announced that the BS7H team made "NEARLY 45,000 QSOS". The team is probably very exhausted and glad to be out of heat and the salt water sea breezes. The reports throughout the week indicated that Scarborough Reef is an extremely hazardous location to operate from and team members were showing signs of it with fatigue and coral cuts. OPDX would like to thank the BS7H team for their hard work under the harsh conditions they had to endure over the past week, providing many in the DX community with a new DXCC entity which has put many on "Top of DXCC's #1 Honor Roll". QSL via KU9C. For updates, visit the BS7H Web Page at: http://www.bs7h.com
Don, N1DG, BS7H's Webmaster, stated on one of the DX mailing lists that online logs will be available around May 15th.
ADDED NOTE: Listen to an interesting interview with James Brooks, 9V1YC, made via sat phone from BS7H with Wolf Harranth,OE1WHC, at: http://www.dokufunk.org/upload/BS7H.MP3
It gives a good description of what the operators of BS7H had endured.

E51/S, SOUTH COOK ISLANDS (Update). Last week we mentioned that Gary, ZL2IFB (G4IFB), would be on a family holiday to Rarotonga this month. Gary has informed OPDX this past week that he will be there with his XYL from May 24-28th. He also states, "This is a holiday first and foremost, so I'll only be operating casually, mostly during WPX, using 5 or 100W (K2 or TS850 depends on weight allowance) to wires in the trees on the shore. Not exactly competitive! It's more of a chance to scout out the place for future trips, maybe. If/when I'm on, I'll be 100% CW, probably on 30 or 40m around E51 dawn & dusk. If there are any proper contest setups there who want some help, I'll try to slip across for a few hours instead of going it alone." QSL via ZL2IFB or LoTW.

Dimwit. The original post was mine. You are the one who is following me around attempting to change the subject line. Unlike others in these newsgroups, I don't allow you to get away with it.

My responses to you always reset the subject line to what had initially been posted. Learn to live with it, dimwit, because that's the way it will always be.

You are truly delusional, Mork. Just yesterday you made 154 posts and you have the stupidity to tell Dloyd to be a decent Usenet citizen and stop trolling.
You really are missing some screws in that misfiring head of yours.
When you were missing from Usenet for two days, the group was just fine.
Things calmed down, everybody was civil and, more importantly, nobody missed you.

The problem here, shit-for-brains, is that YOU are the problem, not Dloyd.
You are the reason a moderated group was formed, not Dloyd. YOU are the person who shits on everybody's posts, not Dloyd.
You are the brain-fogged clown that hijacks threads time after time, not Dloyd.

The recent acts taken by some which have caused discomfort in your personal life are, in my estimation, deserved. Maybe Roger will share one of his surplus pizzas with you. He already knows where to ship it.

And, for Gog's sake, STOP whining about "your" blog. It is not yours now.

Indeed they do. But then you're too addled to pay attention to that. I regard

You can't get away with your attempted thread hijacking if others reset the

I'm sorry, asshole, we didn't give you permission to decide what is proper for other people to post. That is the stuff that dictators like Fidel Castro like to do.

You have no authority to decide what is "proper" for others to post, and your attempt to do so only proves just how much of a dysfunctional asshole you are.

I look forward to the day when the events you put into motion catch up with you.

688. High School Radio Club looking for IRLP contacts world wide

Hi There,

The Bishop Druit College Radio Club
http://www.qsl.net/mm0axl/mncarg/bdc.html situated in the Mid North Coast of
NSW

Australia at Coffs Harbour are looking forward to making Local or DX IRLP
contacts on Fridays 0315 - 0345 UTC.

Contacts will be on IRLP node 6625 via local repeater VK2RDO on 146.650Mhz.

The young people in the club have been experimenting with building simple FM
radio recievers, and have been contemplating the design of plasma balls using ordinary light globes and car spark coils.

Contacts with interested parties or similar school electronic/radio groups
would be great but unfortunately
the club only has limited time during the local lunchtime period.

Also the Bishop Druit College French and German Language classes are interested in contacts Monday to Friday 0315 - 0345 UTC.

If interested and can help arrange a contact please email:

or

Peter VK2EVB vk2evb@wia.org.au

The percussion has the vocalist covered up. I cannot make out any words. If there is a melody mixed in the presentation, I cannot sense it. The flashing lights are a major distraction. The harsh lighting does more to conceal the performance than illuminate it. Twanging a guitar is OK for a sound effect but I find it annoying after a short while.

The first thing you must do is determine the self-resonance of the coil.
That can be done with a "grid dipper". If that frequency is below the frequency you want to filter, it won't work. The next ting to do is determine the resonsnce frequency this time installed in the circuit witout a trimmer. Again, if that is below the frequency to be filtered, it won't work. Only when that resonance is above, 13 MHz in this case, can a trimmer be applied to tune it.

http://focus.ti.com/lit/an/slyt235/slyt235.pdf).

The stray capacitance, possibly multiplied by the chip gain, may rule out operation at 13 MHz.

Hey so far where I live the ham bands haven't become like the CB.
I can't listen to the HF bands but the VHF and UHF bands are the same here. I suggest you quit bellyaching and crybabying and get a life.
Oh yeah thanks for the compliment. I have tried to learn morse code and it's boring listening to a bunch of Dits and Dahs. I have tried quite a few times to learn it.

You sound like one of the many Ham radio operators who like to flame or bash CB'ers. A lot of the Hams who bash or flame CB'ers forget that they started in CB radios and graduated to Ham Radio. Their usually the worst bashing and flaming offenders. Yes I do have a CB and would like to get a Ham Radio license.

Mark. Having given some serious thought concerning the registration of Gav's call sign to be used as a blog, I must admit that this was a transgression that was almost completely uncalled for. Almost.
It was mean, yes. It was done with forethought, yes. It was calculated and carried out after I read a comment on the ipunce blog from a user who identified himself as "Tex". In fact, Mark, had you been a bit more on the ball you would have seen this comment and you could have beat me to the punce. It was not my fault. I just did that which "Tex" suggested.

My conscience is getting the better of me on this one, Mark. I should not have done what I did, even to a jerk such as yourself and even though I had a right to do so. Mea Culpa, Mea Culpa, Mea Maxima Culpa.

With this in mind, and the fact that I can't sleep peacefully knowing that I have trespassed on hallowed Mark Morgan ground, I will posit a simple offer.

If you cease hijacking posts/topics for a thirty day period beginning today, I will delete the blog and will give every consideration toward relinquishing the aforementioned blog to your control. After all, I have no use for it.

And since I am feeling somewhat generous, I might even do likewise with the gavmorgan blog, but also not without stipulations.

If you cease your countless posts, say keeping them to five or six per day, accusing Dloyd of being a "theif" and if you do so for the same aforementioned 30 day period, I will be more than amenable concerning handing the gavmorgan blog over to your control, too. Of course this stipulation does not require that you cease picking on Roger, since to ask such would be far to unrealistic.

The blog(s) is in your court. It is now up to you to govern yourself accordingly should you wish to gain control of same.

I'm sorry, lunatic, but discussions of rec.radio.amateur.policy are ON TOPIC IN BOTH NEWSGROUPS, because they are the groups which spawned the moderated group in the first place.

To repeat: YOU DON'T GET TO MODERATE THESE GROUPS. YOUR OPINION IS WORTHLESS.

As a matter of fact, your followup was off topic, as is just about everything you post. Now go check out your hoe and see if there's a radio transmitter hidden near it. Roger may be tricking you again.

Still too much noise covering the vocalist! The huge microphone blocking the singers mouth keeps me from helping my ears with lip reading. I believe the technicians are spoiling the work. I went Upstairs and got my hearing aids but they did not make any perceivable difference. (note: I normally wear them all the time but Arthritis Physical Therapy in the pool make it prudent to postpone putting them on!)

is much better. In spite of the poor video quality My lip reading adds a little more to the comprehension.

I like this:

especially the instrumental lead in.

The extreme limit of my appreciation of Rock music is like what is

I think I will go play some Kingston Trio to cleanse my palette!

Mark has attempted to post there, but he's mostly out of his league in that group and can't think of much to say. Consequently, he has only made a handful of posts in the group's entire history.

I'd love to see him attempt to declare a post off topic there or to try to hijack a thread. He'd be banned so fast that he wouldn't know what happened. He was already banned when it was a test group, and he is still permanently banned from posting at http://www.qrz.com.

So much for the lunatic who postures about being on topic.

The newest U.P. hot spot, the Greenlight Lounge, is IN and all kewl pple know it. For a good time watching local thespians and magickal pple, come to

The Greenlight Lounge
Phone: 906-523-4417
22095 7th St
Chassell, MI 49916

Be sure to bring yer cents of humor with you.

Instead of karaoke, the Greenlight has a thespian showcase ever Saturday nite at 11 pm sharp. Each year they have a different theme for the showcase, and this year the theme is Native American berdaches and their customs and costumes. Right now, the thespian who has won the last five showcases is Mr. Morkie, and so he is Greenlight's reigning champion and the one to beat.

Besides that, the Greenlight has an enema room with its own beer keg and floor drain so that you can enjoy beer yer own way. This is a feature to be found in no other U.P. bar.

We have fun, fun, fun, fun, fun ever Saturday night. Be thier or be square.

Hey, Woger. Mark needs his own newsgroup, don't ya think? After of his years of flaming, spamming, threadjacking, whining, lying, and being an outright pain in the ass, he is about ready for the Usenet Hall Of Shame.

I would like to suggest something like alt.flame.mark.morgan.
Are there any other suggestions?

Marqueer changed his story from the previous day that he can't go far

776. HTX-10 10 meter xcvr - not transmitting on USB

I have a Radio Shack HTX-10 10 meter xcvr that does not transmit on USB or LSB but works fine (at least into a dummy load) on AM and FM and its receiver also work fine.. Any ideas what I may be doing wrong? I would assume (possibly a fatal error on my part) that the transistor finals are not blown, otherwise I would not have power on AM - FM. Right? Any suggestion would be appreciated.

What a surprise, Marqueer knows all the gay bar hangouts. Trouble is, none of the clientele have any desire to catch Marqueer's AIDS. Marqueer alweays gets the Red light at the Greenlight gay lounge. Sorry, Marqueer, I only go to regular hangouts , filled with straight people. AS much as you have a love interest in Roger, it will have to stay unrequited. Now, looks like you'll have to settle for that obese shemale you "married."

> the greenlight is a redneck bar another sort of place youd be a afarid > to be in

In another post, you claimed to have never been inside it. How would you know what kind of place it was, then? Did you go in there and the minute you opened your slobbering pie hole, the "rednecks" knew you were a homosexual and threw you out because they didn't want your "kind" in there? You only have well documented lies, you have no credibility.

BTW, You seem to have left out the fact (not a surprise, since you are a pathological liar) that you had NO INTENTIONS of showing at any hamfests, claiming" You can't leave your sick daddy alone that long." You had stated in other posts that 1) you have no desire to meet Roger, 2) You are afraid of Roger, and 3) You had all the equipment you needed, supposedly bought "new" at an AES hamfest, and 4) you had no intentions of going to the hamfests anyways.

Yes, Marqueer is so like John Adams.....insecure, speaks with a lisp and has poor people skills. No wonder they cast him as Adams in those shitty community theatre productions that closed after a couple of runs. Of course, Marqueer's wooden acting abilities made sure he never got cast again.

Just like Worqueer changes his stalking, Worqueer, you spend so much time on the internet, at least 8 hours per day, maybe SSA would like to know about your abililty to sustain activity for at least 8 hours per day, 40+ hours per week, you can go get a job when they cut off your check.

When you say it "works fine" into a dummy load, do you mean you can see power output on AM & FM, or that you've listened with another rcvr to know you're actually modulating the rig?

The reason I ask is that in SSB, something as simple as a faulty microphone can reduce your power out to zero, but on AM or FM you'd see the carrier power output and assume it "works fine".

Check it out!

Why are you answering for Wiseman, Un-Wiseman? Apparently you know him intimately.
And you really should get some new material. You've plagiarized everybody else's to the point of boring repetition. Originality mixed with humor is

Thanks for your reply - I check it with a Drake W-4 watt meter. I have not heard my voice signal on another receiver - so it might still be the microphone as you suggest as a potential source of the problem. When I press the mic key in AM-FM, it registers power on the watt meter and the TX and Signal Bar displays show. When I transmit on SSB - no power, no signal bar display increase but the TX display shows. It is possible that the microphone element is bad even though the microphone switch still apprears to work? Unfortunately, I don't know of another ham in the area with a HTX-10 where I could check the radio and microphone against another HTX-10. Thanks for any additional advice on this. 73 John WA9WHD

This was e-mailed to me this morning by Oris Grim an old friend.

I happened to be traveling through Huntsville, Alabama early this morning, I deceided to stop in Athens and see just how tough Lloyd Davies was going to act when he saw me in person.

Many of you know that a few years ago, Lloyd got smart with several people in the Deja Newsgroup (now Google) and I issued a challenge to him. I told him I would be attending the Dalton, Ga. Hamfest if he wanted to continue the conversation. He said he would be there and he was going to kick my ass.

Well, Lloyd was a no-show and continued the verbal assault on the newsgroups. He always talks tough behind his keyboard. And, I understand he is now doing the same sort of thing on the NIM Busters Board.

Well, about 8.35 this morning (December 23, 2004) I located his apartment in a nasty looking section of town. I'm a pretty good sized man, but I put my gun in my back waistband after exiting the car. I located his apartment and knocked on the door. The doorbell was missing and bare wires were sticking out of the wall. I heard someone say I'm coming and shortly the door opened with a safety chain lock still engaged. He asked what I wanted and I introduced myself and asked if we could have a conversation. He turned white as a sheet and attempted to slam the door, but I already had a foot wedged in the opening. He started shaking uncontrollably and was shouting leave me alone, leave me alone! I told him he didn't seem so tough now face to face and then noticed a putrid odor of urine and he was pissing his pants and crying like a baby. Please leave me alone Oris he said, I was just having fun and meant no harm, please leave, please. I could see the filthy floor of this apartment and the dirty floors and the stench of a grown man pissing on himself were almost enough to make me want to vomit, and I don't have a queasy stomach. Upon telling him that this time he would escape a ass kicking and not to ever get a smart mouth with me again and a verbal yes from him, I departed. That apartment complex looked like a crackhouse, niggers everywhere, filthy grounds and stairwells. Junk cars everywhere and garbage overflowing the garbage cans.

This Lloyd is nothing more than white trash that delivers pizzas and could afford to take a trip out of town if the ticket cost $5.00.

I'm sending this to a friend who despises Lloyd Davies and he wanted to post it for everyone to see just what kind of chickenshit asshole this Davies really is.

Oris Grim

Roger has been posting that five year old alleged email for years now. When he has nothing to say about current affairs, he resorts to the old stuff in an effort to dodge the topic du jour.

Hi John,

The key is the full name of the mode, "Single Sideband Suppressed Carrier". No carrier = no output until you add modulation. With AM or FM, you would have output whenever the PTT is enabled, regardless of any modulation. The user manual says the microphone is an electret condenser type. A continuity check of the mic element itself would show open. The manual doesn't indicate there's any battery inside the microphone to power an internal preamplifier. However, if there IS one inside, the transceiver should be supplying a low DC voltage from the mic jack. On the other hand, do you by chance have the microphone gain turned down?

Hi Bryan:

Will check out the continuity of the microphone and see if a battery is inside. The mic gain is full clockwise (turned up) but there is no difference in output where it is set.

Thanks for the tips. will give it a try.

Best.

* PLEASE NOTE: The report "could" contain "Pirate/SLIM" operations or more likely a "BUSTED CALLSIGN". As always, you never know - "Work First Worry Later" (WFWL).

3X, GUINEA. QSL Manager Dennis, PA7FM, informs OPDX that Michael, PA5M, is now here and active as 3XY5M. He will remain in Guinea until early June before returning back home. He is there working for the UN's World Food Programme (WFP), but will be active during his spare time between his work there. His callsign 3XY5M has been already approved for DXCC. Activity will be on all bands 160-6 meters (depending on his free time and propagation) using only wire antennas and 100W. Over the past week, Michael was heard on the following frquencies between 1815-1930z: 18155-18160, 14254 and 28435 kHz. QSL via PA7FM direct to: Dennis Robbemond, Loggerhof 11, 3181NS Rozenburg, The Netherland (Please, remember 1 USD does not cover postage anymore. Look for updates and an online log search at: http://www.pa7fm.nl

8Q, MALDIVES (AS-013). Andrew, G7COD, will be active again for the third time as 8Q7AK from the Island of Embudu, South Male Atoll, during the first half of October 2007. Exact dates of operation, frequencies, ...etc, will be announced (probably in September) closer to his activation. Duration of his operation will be approximately 2 weeks. For QSL information and further updates, check QRZ.com. ADDED NOTE FROM G7COD: He reports that all QSLs received from the last 2 activations of 8Q7AK in October 2006 and January/February 2007 have now been mailed direct if IRC or Green Stamps were included. If not included, they have been sent via the Bureau. All QSLs received via the Bureau will be returned the same way. All EQSLs have been responded to.

9U, BURUNDI. Vlad, UA4WHX, is now active as 9U0VB (as May 1st). As always, the length of his stay is unknown. Activity over the past weekend was on 30/20/17/12/10 meters CW/SSB. QSL via his home callsign, direct or by the bureau. It is recommend to send direct cards after his travels.

ANTARCTIC CHALLENGE UPDATE. Gil, F5NOD, informs OPDX that the Antarctic Challenge scores are up-to-date at: http://f6kdf.ath.cx/f5nod/index.htm

BS7, SCARBOROUGH REEF. Members of the BS7H team are reportedly all back home now. It seems that the team travelled from Scarborough Reef to Manila, The Philippines, and not Hong Kong as first thought. All the international operators were dropped off there, but the six Chinese operators continued on aboard the ship heading back to Hong Kong. This past week details of band statistics were released. Here are the QSOs per band: Band SSB CW RTTY

DAYTON ACTIVITIES.....
FROM THE ARRL LETTER - "JARL operating award checking available at Hamvention": A representative of the Japan Amateur Radio League (JARL) will be available at Dayton Hamvention May 18-20th to check applications for JARL awards and to issue certificates for certain awards. Former JARL executive director and renowned DXer Masa Ebisawa, JA1DM, will be at Booth 483 in the Ballarena of Hara Arena, near ARRL EXPO 2007. Applications for other JARL awards can be checked at the JARL booth. Masa also will answer questions on JARL activities as well as reciprocal licensing in Japan.

DXCC Dayton Hamvention Card Checking (Just A Reminder!) - Bill Moore, NC1L, ARRL DXCC Manager, reports: "DXCC staff and approved card checkers will be checking cards at the Dayton Hamvention from May 18-20th. Checking will be done during all operating hours of the convention. Following these simple steps will help make processing go quick and easy:
There is a 120 card limit per applicant. Larger applications may be checked as time is available after all other applications are finished. (No larger applications will be checked on Sunday). If some cards cause the application to exceed 120 QSOs, this is OK.

Cards MUST be sorted first by band, then by mode. Cards with more than one QSO should be placed together at the end of the application. Do not sort cards alphanumerically. Applications not properly sorted may be returned for proper sorting.

Prepare all paperwork ahead of time. The record sheet is required when submitting cards at Dayton. Use the latest application form available at www.arrl.org/awards/dxcc. Fill in ALL fields on the record sheet.

Write clearly and concisely.

Do not use forms with fields other than those that appear on the standard ARRL form.

There are no restrictions on what can be checked. (Cards for 160 meters and deleted entities are OK.)

DXCC will not bring applications with cards back to ARRL HQ. All cards must be checked and claimed in Dayton.

For those submitting a hybrid application (LoTW and paper credits combined), the LoTW application must be in the LoTW system by 7:30 AM Monday morning, May 21st. If you do a hybrid application, you must note on the LoTW application that a paper application is being made. You must also note on your paper application that you will be submitting a LoTW application by checking the appropriate box.

Applications for other ARRL awards, such as WAS, VUCC, WAC, can be checked.

When you arrive at the booth, please take a number and stay near the booth. When your number is called go to the next available checker. Your cards will be checked while you wait and they will be immediately returned to you.

If you need a personal copy of the application and record sheets please handle this before you arrive. DXCC cannot make copies for you on site.

Please see rule 15 for the latest fees. Acceptable payment methods are: Major credit card, check (by USA bank only), money order (both USA and international), cash (US dollars only). DXCC cannot bill you.

Following these steps will allow us to process your application quickly and in minimal time. Contact Bill Moore, NC1L at dxcc@arrl.org with questions."

It will start in the Netherlands with the special callsign PA25UKSMG between May 19th and June 3rd. Activity will be active on all bands from 160-2 meters, including an entry in the CQ WPX CW Contest (May 26-27th). Also, look for several special callsigns to be active during the UKSMG 6m Contest during the first weekend of June. Working them will give you extra bonus points during that contest. Furthermore there will be a special 25 years anniversary award. Also, look for TM6MG to be active starting June 1st for 2 weeks from France on several bands, but the focus will be on 6m. There will be a few other callsigns to be announced later, but they have not yet been confirmed. QSL all of these special callsigns to PA7FM. More information can be found on the UKSMG eb page at: http:/www.uksmg.org Online logs for these operations will be available at the following Web page once they start: http://www.pa7fm.nl

Operators Pete/VE3IKV and Bill/W4TAA will be activating the Belcher Islands (NA-196) in CQ Zone 2, VY0 Nunavut Territory, using the special callsign VF0X (authorized by Industry Canada) between June 29th and July 4th. VQ97, CHAGOS ISLANDS (Attention PFX Hunters!). OPDX was informed by Jim, VQ9JC (ND9M), that he has received written permission to use the special callsign "VQ97JC" from May 23rd through June 5th. The special indicator "7" added to the prefix simply reflects the number seven in the year 2007. Jim was informed by Harmon (a.k.a. Dale), W4QM/VQ9QM, who was "Mr. VQ9" for 15 years, this is the first time a special prefix was authorized to be used there. Look for Jim to use this special prefix as much as possible during those two weeks. He states, "I am on a work assignment while at Diego Garcia, and as such I can only be on the air after work which normally means 1200-1730z. That said, I'm hoping to make the VQ97 prefix available at least 10 evenings during that period; with luck, there may be more. My work schedule includes weekends, so a pretty big bite is already taken out of the CQ WPX Contest timeframe. But I'm expecting to stay overnight at the shack both nights during the contest so that I can put in some time around the local sunrise (2300-0100Z) as well. I'll be SOAB during the contest." QSL via ND9M, direct or by the bureau. QSL cards will not be printed at least until after his return home to Florida in August.

YCCC CELEBRATES 30th ANNIVERSARY. Members of the Yankee Clipper Contest Club (YCCC) will celebrate its 30th anniversary by signing their call-sign/30. Based on the fact that you show power output on AM and FM, you have proved most of the transmitter circuitry is good, almost certainly everything northwest and south of the balanced mixer on your schematic. You have also proved the PTT control circuitry.

Examine the schematic and do some elementary signal tracing east of the balanced mixer. I'm betting on the microphone itself, or the signal processing just west of it on your schematic.

You have little to none in troubleshooting skills!
You cant find another RCVR to listen to it on?

On SSB you COULD use a simple diode and a earphone to see if you can hear SOME RF....
You COULD touch the audio in pin on the mic connector with your finger and see if the power goes up....
You COULD get some SIMPLE test gear.....
That radio is So damn simple you dont need a schematic......
Your WA9 call must be a vanity call, no way in hell you got that way back when and still dont know shit about transmitters...

THIS is what happens when HAMS get their license from the Gordon West school of fraud. If you were a REAL Amateur radio operator not only could you troubleshoot this, but have it working in minutes.
Congrats....appliance operator....

He's just demonstrated that he's a lid himself. I guess that life is too stressful for him in Irvine, CA.

820. New Data On The Harnishe-lishnus Effect

Newsgroup: rec.radio.amateur.misc
Date: 2007-05-15 04:11:25 UTC
From: Iitoi <Iitoi.8f1e09@radiobanter.com>
Message-ID: <Iitoi.8f1e09@radiobanter.com>
Source record: 18137

Several years ago we revealed in these pages the discovery that radio waves were gradually slowing down. Found during experiments conducted by our own Dr. Elwood P. Lishnus and Dr. Avruell U. Harnishe of the GEARVAKf Scientific Studies Committee, the Harnishe-Lishnus Effect has had a profound influence upon the manufacture and design of amateur radio equipment and other devices that make use of the radio spectrum.

Originally, radio frequency drifing was thought to be a minor problem within receivers and transmitters brought on by unstable heating and cooling of frequency-determining circuits. That theory was abandoned, however, when the slowing of the radio waves forced the electronics industry to change its frequency measurement system from the cycles-per-second to the Hertz standard. New equipment manufactured under the Hertz standard did not drift, whereas old gear made under the cycles-per-second standard continued to drift from set frequencies. Observation of this phenomenon led to the discovery of the Harnishe-Lishnus Effect in 1966.

The early experiments, however, dealt only with frequencies below 10 MHz. Last year, Drs. Harnishe and Lishnus made a series of observations of the slowing of radio waves above 10 MHz and found that they vary at a much different rate than those below 10 MHz.

Surprisingly, they found that the lower frequencies are actually pulling away from the higher frequencies, leaving a gap in the middle. That gap just happens to fall right in the new 30 meter amateur band between 10.109 MHz and 10.115 MHz. The FCC won't let us operate there because there are no frequencies to operate on! Any rig loaded up in the gap would see an infinite SWR and instant destruction. The Harnishe-Lishnus Effect provided early warning and probably saved thousands of dollar of equipment from ruin.

I've recently picked up a book, "Antennae, an introduction to their theory" by J.Aharoni, Clarendon Press, 1946.

Mr.Aharoni, was both a lecturer at King's College London
and also a government scientist.

So, with educated Englishmen being the authority on what is good English (Yankland residents simply do not come into the argument), in 1946, the correct plural of, "antenna" was, "antennae".

So, who were the igorant persons who adopted, "antennas"? Yanks, no doubt?

Do some research before posting, Gareth - Aharoni wasn't English. He was a German Jew.

only transmit on an anatenna and not on an aerial ...

and that you can get good clean signals when you use ariel !!

It is the ignorant who do not realise that you cannot have an aerial in outer space or under the water, in which media the antenna reigns supreme.

For the benefit of failed radio officers, "aerial" means, "of the air".

I don't expect it mentions anything about tuning-up standard-design pi-tuned valve PAs, so I can't see how this book would be of any use to the purchaser.

The understanding of the theory of the antenna is useless if he has to sell the equipment because he doesn't have the manual telling him how to tune the transmitter.

Still, I'm sure it looks impressive when strategically placed on a coffee table.

Mrs.Nugatory's in top form today, and remains one of the anonymous yellow-bellies who has not answered the query as to which transmitters she had experience of tuning up!

Still, that shouldn't prevent her from originating

Actually, as it is Mrs.Nugatory's own style to demand an exactness of language, perhaps Mrs.Nugatory would describe to us the circuit of the "standard-design pi-tuned valve PA" and also illustrate those divergences from the circuit of her "standard-design" that would render a design not to be of such a standard?

Cue......running away to hide shouting insults as she goes a la OSN!

It seems, Chris Newport that you exhibit the very same deficiencies of personality that you presume to attribute to others.

Who is this Mrs.Nugatory that you say is being abused? What remarks were addressed to her that were abusive?

It is a common failing for newbies to this NG to come in with a high-handed attitude but then to degenerate themselves very quickly into the same abusive styles that they presumed to criticise. You, Chris Newport, have achieved that below. You came in high-handed but are now resorting to rather silly gratuitous remarks. Perhaps you would have done better for your own reputation by not contributing at all? Remember that the fool keeps his mouth shut!

There is no trolling by me but perhaps by you in your rather infantile use of the term, "colonials", and in so doing you repeatedly exhibit the same traits that you seek to criticise.

I recently picked up a book, "Antennae, an introduction to their theory" by J.Aharoni, Clarendon Press, 1946.

Mr.Aharoni, was both a lecturer at King's College London
and also a government scientist.

So, with educated Englishmen being the authority on what is good English (Yankland residents simply do not come into the argument),
in 1946, the correct plural of, "antenna" was, "antennae".

So, who were the igorant persons who adopted, "antennas"? Yanks, perhaps, or those who would now be the candidates for licences issued under the gangrenous degeneration that is the M3/CB

The OED is not an authority, merely a recorder of the time at which the error came about, which is the

The Greenlight Lounge
Phone: 906-523-4417
Chassell, MI 49916

Be sure to bring yer cents of humor with you.

Instead of karaoke, the Greenlight has a thespian showcase ever Saturday nite at 11 pm sharp. Each year they have a different theme for the showcase, and this year the theme is Native American berdaches and their customs and costumes. Right now, the thespian who has won the last five showcases is Mr. Morkie, and so he is Greenlight's reigning champion and the one to beat.

Besides that, the Greenlight has an enema room with its own beer keg and floor drain so that you can enjoy beer yer own way. This is a feature to be found in no other U.P. bar.

We have fun, fun, fun, fun, fun ever Saturday night. Be thier or be square.

Dental decay and unhealthy living practices go hand in hand. Mark had an unsavory experience with an oral surgeon and is now "recovering".

Preventive dentistry is apparently not in Mark's book, as he let his rotten teeth get so bad that he needed oral surgery. One must wonder how many teeth Mark has left. Will he be relegated to eating oatmeal? Soup? Soggy corn flakes? Did the Oral Surgeon help rid Mark of those nasty, black gaps in his teeth?

And I want to know who paid for his procedures! Mark probably went to the Emergency Room since he has no insurance, and WE, you and I, ended up paying for his visit.

But of course Mark, in his own twisted logic, probably feels that we "owe" him the cost of his medical bills.

Buy a one dollar toothbrush, Mark. Use it. On your teeth...

The decline in educational excellence, which was completed with the introduction of the gangrenous degeneration that is the M3/CB Fools' Licence scheme, started with the M5 licence scheme.

What is particularly tragic about the posting quoted below is that the author of it is employed by Maryhill High Scool, and might be expected to set an example that encourages children to want to find out things, and to read around the subjects that they study.

If those responsible for the care and education of children say such things as, "most of us don't really worry about which word is used, the spelling, singulars nor plurals", then perhaps the decline in command of the English language by schoolchildren comes as no surprise?

I enjoy doing my talk show. I enjoy the Radio hobby. My interests in

I will be 33 years old in less than a month. I look at my life as a life that has been a lonely one.

I enjoy the "attention" I get from doing my shows and my posts calling

905. need advice on initial station setup

I need to figure out what the best antenna/ground setup is for my first rig. I have been putting off setting it up because my circumstances are fairly difficult. Basically, I need a decent antenna setup, but can't put something up 40ft in the air. I don't have any big trees nearby or any structures that high up to hang the antenna on. Ideally I'd like a multi-freq antenna setup that is either free-standing/not too tall or doesn't need to be up higher than maybe 20ft or so. Also, I'm trying to figure out what to do about a ground hookup. I'm renting a house and it's not obvious how extensive a ground hookup I can make (i.e. I don't know if the landlord will appreciate me burying several deep pipes in the backyard for a solid ground reference). CAn anyone offer any advice? Thanks in advance.

That was work done between Easter and Summer 2006 when my contract drew to a close.

Your best bet to start out would seem to be a multi-band vertical.
There are many good choices out there from GAP, HyGain, Hustler, Butternut. Many (most?) are self-supporting or require only minimal guying with light nylon line. Pound a pipe into the ground, mount the antenna, and string a few radials, and you'll be on the air.

Nonsense. You ain't Lloyd, and you ain't Mark Morgan. Anyone who can read headers can see where you have screwed up in your attempts to impersonate each of them.

You seem to be obsessed with Lloyd; you seem to be in need of help.

No idea. However language evolves and changes with time so what what applied in the past may not be a relaible indicator for the present (or the future).

e.g. We thought his multi coloured antennas were gay. Many thought they were wicked.

This would have a very different meaning in 1920 compared to 2007.

So only insects and pondlife have antennae. Radio amateurs have antennas, REAL radio amateurs have aerials, and Latin-speaking radio amateurs have XVII-ele Tonnas or VIII-ele Yagis.

No latin in Yagi.

The Yagi-Uda aerial was invented in 1926 by Shintaro Uda of Tohoku Imperial University, Sendai, Japan, with the collaboration of Hidetsugu Yagi, also of Tohoku Imperial University. Yagi published the first English-language reference on the aerial in a 1928 survey article on short wave research in Japan and it came to be associated with his name. However, Yagi always acknowledged Uda's principal contribution to the design, and the proper name for the aerial is, as above, the Yagi-Uda aerial (or array).

Of course 'Yagi' is Latin. 'Yagi' is the plural of 'Yagus' (a simple dipole).

The Japanese language has no plurals.

But we're getting away from the point guys.

The answer to the OP is that any radio amateur who has "antennae" is either an insect or pondlife :-)

934. Looking for field testers of PIC based Morse Code Practice QSO generator.

I have recently completed a low cost, portable, battery operated, PIC (18F2620) powered Morse code practice QSO generator project called "WalkMorse". The code in it is about 5000 lines of "C", which compiles to almost a full 64K bytes.

I plan to publish an article and open source the code, however I am looking for some people interested in reading my draft article and building a prototype (with as little as 1 external component needed). If you are interested, read on.

The goal of WalkMorse is to generate unique random QSOs that never repeat, allowing you to listen for practice to improve your copy. It is NOT really meant to be used to learn code, so does not have a lot of different setups to generate different lessons, etc. like the MFJ units.

I traded off that flexibility to allow it to generate an almost infinite supply of long QSOs that never repeat, and have a lot of variety, optimized for copy practice when you already know the code. Speed goes from 12 to 40 wpm (fixed or variable by QSO) and tone 700-800 Hz (fixed or variable by QSO).

Pictures, some sample QSOs and schematic are at:

http://www.thecountygeek.com/walkmorse.htm

I am using it to listen to Morse Code every day in my vehicle during my commute, and find it is helping my copy. I am interested in submitting an article to QST (or another publication) but would like to get some help with the following from some fellow CW fans:

1) Read my article and give me feedback. What needs to be added or taken away?

2) Build a prototype and give me feedback on both the construction and the operation. Is it easy to duplicate? Are the random QSOs good practice? What needs to be added or taken away?

I have had a couple of fellows build one and they work OK, the problem is that they are not really CW folks and can't give me a lot of feedback on the QSOs generated.

If you are interested in building one and using it, you can do one of the following:

1) Email me and I will email you the documentation, schematics, pictures, and HEX file (the PIC is an 18F2620).

2) If you do not have the ability to program an 18F2620, I will send you a pre-programmed PIC for $15 US (basically my cost). I have 10 pre-programmed chips available, and as an added incentive I will refund the full amount to the first 2 people to complete one and send me pictures and a review

Anyone that builds one and provides me feedback (and photos if possible) will get credit if my article is published.

NOTE: I am in the process of moving this summer, so sometimes my mail response may be a bit slow. I did, however want to see if I could get some feedback on this so I can submit the article in the fall.

Thanks a lot

The "QSOs" in the samples on your website remind me of a song by, well,
I don't know who they were, and they probably only ever had one song, but one of the lines in the song was something like

"Hold a chicken in the air, learn to speak Irapaho, and pretend your name is Keith".

The lyrics were all generated randomly by computer, and were mildly humorous, but kinda sucked. Like your "QSOs".

I'm not belittling your efforts. The software is probably excellent. The intention is good. But the delivery is, well, strir-fry an iguanadon in pink parchment with a side saddle.

Don't stare a gift horse in the mouth, or so the saying goes. Mark's absence should be looked at as a welcome breath of fresh air.
You, Larry, should do as the rest of us are doing. Ignore him. Hopefully, Mark will move on to haunt other newsgroups or even the Nim Busters boards. Don't mention him and don't taunt him lest he return to spew more of his garbage.

I personally find the absence of Mark to be a very welcome respite.

Mark IS a medical problem in that, apparently, he is a pain in your ass.
You can sit on it for years, but it won't go away and only gets worse.
Roger knows well how this works.

Yawn. Did you take a time out from watching the Teletubbies to post this

If you wish to be thought of as a lying dog then
I suggest that you do not bark with such regularity.

No-one forced you to join this thread and you have done so repeatedly.

In any case, it was you who interested us all in your very-publicly declared intention to seek a career in teaching.
Since you interested us all, what then happened there?

Witek, SP9MRO, states, "We would like to thank all of you who donated to us once again. All of those who would like to support the DXpedition are kindly asked for their generosity. Postponing the expedition let us solve 90% of the problems that aroused before, but we still have more problems ahead of us. That is why all, even the littlest, donations are very important for us, and we would like to thank you for all of them!" For more details and updated, visit: http://3b6.godx.eu/

3V, TUNISIA. Alex, GM0DHZ, informs that he will be here for a 5 week holiday starting November 19th. He will be active with operators from 3V8SS. This will be a holiday-style operation with activity on 80-10 meters and possibly 160m, CW and SSB. QSL via info on QRZ.com.

4L, GEORGIA. Vaho, 4L8A, will be active during the CQWW WPX CW Contest (May 26-27th) as a Single-Op/Single-Band (20m)/High-Power entry. QSL via DJ1CW, by the Bureau or direct.

4L, GEORGIA. Mamuka , 4L2M, will be active during the CQWW WPX CW Contest (May 26-27th) as a Single-Op/Single-Band (40m)/Low-Power entry. QSL via EA7FTR.

4O, MONTENEGRO (ITU Assigns A Prefix). Montenegro became a new country (DXCC entity) last June, and has been waiting for the ITU to assign an Amateur Radio callsign block since then. The International Telecommunications Union (ITU) did not want to give Montenegro an entirely new prefix, so it required the states of Montenegro and Serbia to agree upon one or two prefixes from the five existing prefixes (4N, 4O, YT, YU and YZ) assigned to the former Serbia-Montenegro. An agreement was reached on May 11th, and the prefix "4O" is now listed as Montenegro's prefix. Montenegro stations will be using the prefix block 4O0 through 4O9. Serbia stations will continue to use YT and YU prefixes, but the ITU has taken 4N and YZ prefixes for future reassignment. DXers are reminded to please update their logging programs.

5B, CYPRUS. Nick, G3RWF, will be active as 5B/G3RWF near Polis, June 2-30th. This will be a holiday operation, so he will operate SSB, RTTY and PSK during his spare time.

5D, MOROCCO. Operators Stefano/IK2QEI, Ahmed/CN8WK, Bacha/CN8WW and Andy/YO3JR will be active with the special callsign 5D5A during the CQ WW WPX CW Contest (March 26-27th) as a Multi-? entry. QSL via I2WIJ.

7X, ALGERIA. Look for 7X0RY to be active during the CQ WW WPX CW Contest,(May 26-27th) as Single-Op/Single-Band (80m) entry. QSL via the QRZ.com address.

9M2/9M4, WEST MALAYSIA (Special Event, Contest and IOTA Op). Tex, 9M2TO, informs OPDX that members of the Malaysian Amateur Radio Transmitter Society (MARTS) will use their special contest callsign 9M4DXX during the CQ WW WPX CW Contest (May 26-27th) as a Multi-Op/ Single-TX entry. Italian and English, with some 15,000 subscribers to the English version alone. Mauro is also a very active DXer, holding most of the major DX awards, sits on the Radio Society of Great Britain's IOTA committee, and is Vice Secretary General and HF Award Manager for ARI, the Italian national amateur radio association.

CQ Contest Hall of Fame
The CQ Contest Hall of Fame inducts three new members this year as well:

Fred Capossela, K6SSS, is a past CQ World Wide DX Contest Director and, for the past 40 years, has maintained and annually updated the CQWW All-Time Records List. It was under Fred's direction that the CQWW became the world's most popular and most professionally-run amateur radio contest. The first contester to run the contest, Fred introduced the rigorous verification standards for contacts and multipliers, developed the All-Time Records List, set the current contest dates and introduced the Band-by-Band top scorers' matrix. It was Fred's dedication to running the contest in a fair, honest and professional manner that laid the foundation for the CQWW's current stature.

Phil Goetz, N6ZZ (SK), has the distinction of having operated the CQWW DX Contest from each of the world's 40 CQ zones - one of only two amateurs ever to accomplish this feat (Dick Norton, N6AA, is the other) - and missed operating in the CQWW only three times in the 47 years between 1960 and 2006. Phil was a member of the first ARRL Contest Advisory Committee and served three separate times on the CQWW Contest Committee. In addition, he was a judge at every World Radio Teamsport Championship (WRTC) event, except in 2002, when he was a contestant. Phil became a Silent Key earlier this year.

Tom Taormina, K5RC, has been contesting since 1959, when he entered the ARRL Sweepstakes and made a whopping 35 contacts. His scores improved dramatically since then, and he has held several records and won several national and divisional championships. He has also mentored a string of world-class contesters, who have themselves gone on to record-setting performances. Tom helped develop the Multi-Two category in the ARRL DX contests and helped create the North American QSO Party. He is also a past member of the CQ WW Contest Committee and a past Editor of the National Contest Journal. Tom is also active in DXing and public service communications.

BS7H QSO/QSL INQUIRIES! QSL Manager Steve, KU9C, sent out the following announcement: "Folks, I have received quite a number of QSO not in logs, I forgot my QSO detail, my dog/significant other/kid/etc trashed my log, etc questions in the last week, so let me help with some ground rules:

I'm not in a position to answer whether you are in or not in the log at the moment. Rather than ask via email, I'd ask you to kindly put the inquiry in a NOTE with your QSL to me. I'll research the log as I work your QSL request, and respond accordingly. If you are NOT IN THE WEB log, don't give up, put down EVERY QSO you believe you had, and I'll do the rest. If the web log shows 20SSB, put down EVERY qso you think you had on 20 SSB, not just the first. Don't be embarassed with dupes, rather, give me all the QSOs you've had, I'll see the dupes anyway, but if you are not in the log the first time, it will save me a lot of time researching. Remember, every researched call takes time from processing other cards. If it's a busted call, I'll use well-established judgement in issuing the card, and may ask you to help confirm that the person's whose call appears did NOT make a QSO.

If you DO NOT HAVE ANY detail besides what is in the web log online, it's impossible for me to give you credit for the card. I need to have SOME supporting detail on your QSO. Give me your best guess from memory, who you heard work BS7H just before or after. Chances are one of your friends was in the hunt at the same time, and can help. Remember, it will be a lot easier to remember it now than a month from now. And, I'm not in a position to issue a QSL to you

'just because' the web log says you're there. Not the way it works.

Don't fret the 39 cent stamp or the 84 cent stamp you sent before the postage increase. I'll cover it.

If I do not respond to your email, please don't take it personally. Please follow the guidelines here. I tend to not answer the emails when they ask the questions above, as each email is roughly equivalent to the time it takes to answer 2-3 QSLs...and I tend to choose to answer the cards first.

I'll let you know when the cards start going out via this forum.

As an aside, if you have a problem with how I do QSLs, how long it takes to get a card from me, etc, please take it up with me directly. I don't appreciate reading it third hand via a reflector, etc. Frankly, if you are kind enough to send me a note, I'll be glad to help research it. In many cases, I may be able to help you understand why the process take so long for your QSL, as I keep pretty good records of those calls that take time, and for what reasons that is the case..... 73 Steve KU9C

947. Remember our friend Kevin Alfred Strom?? More on his child pornography arrest.

Charlottesville, Virginia -- Kevin Alfred Strom stalked a ten year old girl, at one point coming to her elementary school and trying to persuade her to leave and have sex with him, federal prosecutors have said in a pre-trial motion filed in Charlottesville, Virginia.

Strom sent the girl an angora sweater -- to make her more like the girl in Stanley Kubrick's version of the movie "Lolita" -- as well as CDs, DVDs and other unwanted gifts. The girl's parents moved her to another school when they learned that Strom was stalking their daughter, including hiding behind a tree outside her school. Strom, however, found out the girl's new school and continued harassing her.

He also composed a song to the girl, to the tune "Here We Come A Wassailing", that included the lyrics "my love for her is not a sin".

Federal prosecutors say they seized "hundreds" of child pornography images from Strom's computer, and that Strom's wife, Elisha, found him masturbating while looking at child porn, prompting the end of their marriage. Federal agents also found hundreds of pictures of the girl Strom was stalking.

After his wife discovered Strom's involvement in child porn, Strom began a campaign of harassment against her which included physical assault and Internet-based smears, including spreading rumors that she turned him in to the federal authorities. In reality, the parents of the girl Strom was stalking were the initial complaining witnesses.

A defense motion asked that the stalking charges be separated from the child pornography charges.

The trial in the Strom case starts June 20, unless the schedule is altered.

When the term, "antenna" (Pl. "Antennae") was adopted for the current-to-field transducer*, it was at a time when education was respected.

The ignorant among us, mainly from Yankland, then started using the incorrect plural, "Antennas".

The authority for the English language has always been the people of England who object to the polluting influences from Yankland.

SHOULD WE THEREFORE MAKE A STAND AGAINST THESE CRASS AMERICANISMS AND INSIST ONCE AGAIN ON THE USE OF THE CORRECT PLURAL?

*The use of the term, "aerial" illustrates even greater ignorance on the part of those who insist that it is the only term, because the air plays no part in the transduction! More fool them.

I guess it works best if there's a suspended ceiling - you can take one of the ceiling panels out to give yourself some more headroom.

This has the advantage of giving you something to throw on to the floor to jump down onto, just in case you miss the target :-)

The only great ignorance on display here is that of G. A. Evans.
'Aerial' means literally 'in air' so 'an aerial' is something standing in or surrounded by air. As most commonly used with respect to antennae/antennas, it therefore is entirely unregarding of the transduction and refers only to the siting of the physical apparatus.

I have no great opinion either way on the plural. If you consider it to be an adopted Latin word then 'antennae' is for you. If on the other hand you consider it a fully naturalised English word, 'antennas' is equally 'correct'. My only objection to irregular plurals is when they're manifestly nothing to do with either English or the original language. By sheer coincidence I have heard the word 'octopi' on TV three times this week. Aaaagh!

So when are you going to start using true English (i.e. Anglo-Saxon) rather than the offspring of Anglo-Saxon and Norman French?

That would be why orbiting satellites have antennas rather than aerials -- there's no air up there.

The hallowed tradition is that if a noun has an irregular plural, the irregular plural is used in a biological application (hence "antennae"), but plurals are regularized when the application is electronics (hence "antennas").

That's why everyone has agreed that the plural for the computer mouse is "mouses." Everyone who understands the rule, that is.

Damn straight you should. You should go on to the end, you should all fight in France, you should fight on the seas and oceans, you should fight with growing confidence and growing strength in the air, you should defend your Island, whatever the cost may be, you should fight on the beaches, you should fight on the landing grounds, you should fight in the fields and in the streets, you should fight in the hills; you should never surrender, and even if, which I do not for a moment believe, your Island or a large part of it were subjugated and starving, then your Empire beyond the seas, armed and guarded by the British Fleet, would carry on the struggle, until, in God's good time, the New World, with all its power and might, steps forth to the rescue and the liberation of the old.

I think we've found a new home for Gareth - he'll fit in well on the alt.usage.english and alt.english.usage groups.

The pedantic bds can't even agree which way round the group's name

987. June CQ Editorial Calls the ARRL a "Secret Society"

Secret Society
zero bias - a CQ editorial
BY RICH MOSESON,* W2VU
e-mail: <w2vu@cq-amateur-radio.com>

The ARRL appears to be coming down with a case of "federalitis," mimicking the federal government's love of as much secrecy as possible as often as possible, revealing information only when absolutely necessary, and saying one thing while doing another. Two events of recent months illustrate this trend, although the ARRL has long been somewhat of a secret society.

Regulation by Bandwidth About a year and a half ago, in November, 2005, the ARRL petitioned the FCC to change from subdividing amateur bands on the basis of operating mode to the basis of maximum permitted bandwidth. This was the culmination of a multi-year process-ironically, one of the most open in memory-in which the ARRL repeatedly sought input from members before drafting the petition. The FCC assigned rule making number RM-11306 to the petition in January, 2006, and opened a one-month comment period. Many comments were filed on both sides of the question. CQ was among the commenters, agreeing in principle with the League's proposal but differing on some specifics.

In February, 2007, ARRL officials quietly met with FCC staffers to propose changes to the original petition, supposedly to "align" the details with the intervening rule changes, including the elimination of HF Novice bands, expansion of certain HF phone bands and the granting of limited HF privileges to all Technicians with the elimination of the Morse code exam requirement for amateur licenses. Even though this meeting was approved by the League Board of Directors at its January meeting, it was apparently done when the board met as a "Committee of the Whole" to discuss regulatory matters," and its discussions were not reported in the minutes.

The League properly filed the required notice of an "Oral Ex-Parte Presentation" in the online comment file, but did not publicly announce the meeting to its members or the amateur community at large. About a month later, someone in FISTS, the CW promotion organization, caught wind of the proposed changes,

saw something he/she didn't like, and raised the alarm.

Only then did the ARRL make a public statement, and only then did the League file an erratum with the FCC, claiming that the section that had gotten FISTS members up in arms was nothing more than a clerical error.

Plus, while the changes needed to "align" the proposal with the new rules would have been minor, what the ARRL proposed in that meeting was to virtually abandon the entire petition, limiting regulation by bandwidth only to frequencies above 28 MHz, where there's plenty of space for all sorts of activities. Why the secrecy?

Why not be above-board and simply withdraw the petition? And why, when news of the meeting was finally reported, did the League assure supporters that the board continues to stand behind the concept which it had just essentially abandoned? (For more on this issue, see our new online commentaries, called "For What it's Worth..." on the CQ website.)

Red Cross Wrangling

Another matter in which the ARRL has been heavily involved recently is the ongoing dispute with the American Red Cross over the breadth of its new requirement that all volunteers submit to a background check in order to work with the organization in a disaster. At first, it was not clear whether hams working with ARES (the ARRL's Amateur Radio Emergency Service) were subject to the requirement, since they were formally ARES volunteers, not Red Cross volunteers; plus there was the ongoing matter of the consent form providing permission for not only a criminal background check (to which virtually no one in the ham community objected) but also credit and "mode of living" checks.

A couple of months ago, the Red Cross appeared to back off on that requirement (see our April issue), stating that no mode of living checks would be conducted and that credit checks would be limited and require a separate consent form. However, the ARRL quickly pointed out to its members that the consent forms never changed to reflect the new policy and that anyone signing them was still authorizing the full battery of investigations.

The League got word of this inconsistency out quickly in early March, ahead of the Red Cross's self-imposed March 31st deadline for all volunteers to agree to the background checks. Two ARRL officials then met with Red Cross leadership in mid-March, clarifying the requirements as they applied to hams and determining that there were apparently no plans to change the consent forms (see this month's Public Service column for a report on that meeting). Inexplicably, though, it was not until mid-April, nearly a month after the meeting and two weeks after the March 31 deadline, that the League notified its members of the meeting and its outcome. Certainly, having this additional information would have beenhelpful to individuals in deciding whether to agree to the checks and continue as Red Cross volunteers or to say, "Sorry, I'll be volunteering my services elsewhere." Again, why the secrecy?

In truth, secrecy is nothing new for the ARRL. Its board meetings are open only to directors, vice directors, selected staff members and invited guests. Back when I was Northern New Jersey Section Manage-an ARRL elected official- I asked whether I might attend a board meeting as an observer and at my own expense. The request was denied quicker than I could blink. Regular members? Don't even think about it. This is a membership organization in which the members have very little impact on policy beyond electing board members every two years.

The big problem with all this secrecy is the impression that inevitably develops that there is something to hide. Questions are asked and doubts arise. Is there something going on behind the scenes (or under the table) that "they" don't want "us" to know about? Let me be clear that I am not suggesting that anything improper is actually going on, just that this sort of secrecy provides ammunition for those who are suspect of the League's motives to begin with. The ARRL is a membership organization that claims to be The National Association for Amateur Radio, even though it actually represents fewer than one in five licensed amateurs in the U.S. Nonetheless, it owes it to its members and the general ham community to be as honest, open and transparent as it possibly can.

We recognize that there are certain situations in which confidentiality is important, but as a general rule, there is no place in an organization such as the ARRL for secrecy and subterfuge. It needs to stop.-W2VU

Like our "criminally insane politicians" they imagine themselves to be our "leaders" (rulers would fit more adequately!) than the public servants we require.

They need to send out letter "questioners" to their members asking them how they (arrl) can best represent those members and act like the servants they need to be ... need I go on here?

I think there are some other scientific words like that, although I can't think of any good examples right now: something like larvas/larvae.

Suggestion old man,
Aquire one A.C mains plug, connect 5 yards of twin, zip cord to the live terminals.
Attach one end of neatly stripped wire to testicle # 1
Attach other end of neatly stripped wire to testicle #2
Plug into AC socket ensuring switch is off.

Think of as many Crass Americanisms as you can with your big toe on rhe

Tony may have been thrown off by your strange ordering of your post.

Obaue: what are "casting-fettling" and "blanket-hiding"?

And when I read "meths-drinking" I thought it referred to methamphetamine, "meths" being to "meth" as "maths" is to "math". Of course that wouldn't make sense for two reasons (at least). Actually "meths" = "methylated spirits" = American "wood alcohol", right? (Am I the only hearing the Notre Dame fight song at this point?)

"to fettle" is a UK northern word meaning "to fix" or "to mend". But that's where I run out of ideas. I've never personally hidden a blanket.

1012. Cheapest prices for TEN METRE and CB Radios? www.fusionrf.co.uk and some other GOOD radio websites!. Is CB coming back to life in the UK???

The prices are by far lower than any other dealers. I cant beleive the pricing! It looks too good to be true also with free delivery - has anyone used them? Are they any good?

The forums look interesting but not much traffic. Apparrently they have just redone the site? Anyone been to the shop?

I have no link to them - I found them as they advertise on another forum and another website www.cobraworxshopz.com and www.ukradiodx.com

Also a regular on the 19 was talking about www.fusionrf.co.uk www.cobraworxshopz.com and also www.ukradiodx.com. Ukradiodx.com is where you can listen to the 19 from London on the internet

Hopefully with these websites that are starting up - it will get the interest back again on CB?

Do you think it will ever get back to what it was? Probably not :(

You're quite right: I read what I wanted it to say, rather than what was written. The "tradition" (I doubt it is hallowed) is surely that in some scientific fields, especially botany, biology and medicine, the Latin form is retained while in "normal" (whatever that means) speech, an anglicised plural is used.

You are once again off topic, Morkie-Poo. And, as Dloyd has pointed out time after time, you just HAVE to hijack a thread and make it all about YOU and your odd, sexual proclivities.
It is always YOU who is the eternal "victum" and it is always YOU who is being set upon by the alleged bullies of Usenet.
Yes, there is Morkie, standing bravely (in your warped thinking) and facing directly into the winds of adversity as he defends and flaunts his strange behavior patterns.
Tally Ho! Morkins....continue jousting with those windmills! The rest of us are watching your ludicrous displays and laughing at your untimely approach of senility.

Statistical studies of animal or plant populations.
Crop yields.
Calculation of plant contributions to sequestering of CO2.
Prediction of growth rates of bacterial cultures.
Prediction of growth rates per food intake of food animals.
Calculation of radiation doses in mammography (just to cross a thread).

I could probably sit here typing these for an hour, and would only just scratch the surface.

It's my impression that "larvas" is very rare, but "formulas" seems fairly common, especially in less technical contexts.

It just dawned on me that there is actually a case when the Latinate (Greek) form is used in tech writing, and the Anglo form - in non-tech literature. Case in point - daemon and demon, even if the former is considered an acronym. This is slightly OT, since the plurals of these are standard, but I wondered if other such 'reversed' pairs exist.

Say what? Okay, Wikipedia says "DAy/Evening MONitor". They also say
"citation needed", and I can agree with that.

OK, so I was (mis)lead by the Free On-line Dictionary of Computing
- "Disk And Execution MONitor"; if not an acronym, it's at least a backronym.

Must be 45 years ago I learned that radios have antennas but butterflies have antennae. It was explained as English for everyday and Latin for science. Therefore, the computer mouse does not qualify; "mouse" and its plural "mice" being survivors of Old English, not Latin imports.

Yes, you are 100% correct.

The idea is to generate unique strings of words in the form of morse code QSOs.

I agree 100% that they are in many cases non-sensical ... adding all kinds of rules to guarantee that would exceed the capability of the small processor used.

The best way to practice morse code is on the air.... but when you can't get on, listening to "WalkMorse" is better than listening to nothing. When you get to the point when you can head copy WalkMorse at 25-30 wpm, AND recognise and laugh at the nonsense on the fly, then your copy is getting pretty good :-)

"Antennas" might just possibly be a Latin import, too. It certainly is in a number of Romance languages -- it's the accusative plural, which is where they get plurals in -s from, as I understand it.

However car batteries can be used very effectively for amateur radio operations by using them as a peak current provider in conjunction with a modest (current wise) PSU.
A nominal 100 W RF SSB transmitter might need say 20 Amperes in the peaks , but (even with audio processing) ,on transmit ,the average current will hardly exceed 8 Amperes and taking into account a 50/50 tx/rx duration ratio , such a transmitter will happily operate for long periods with a say 60Ah car battery and a 6 Amperes power supply unit. And the battery will have a long life. Of course ,to be close to the transceiver the battery will have to be of the sealed variety .

Be sure to bring yer cents of humor with you.

Instead of karaoke, the Greenlight has a thespian showcase ever Saturday nite at 11 pm sharp. Each year they have a different theme for the showcase, and this year the theme is Native American berdaches and their customs and costumes. Right now, the thespian who has won the last five showcases is Mr. Morkie, and so he is Greenlight's reigning champion and the one to beat.

Besides that, the Greenlight has an enema room with its own beer keg and floor drain so that you can enjoy beer yer own way. This is a feature to be found in no other U.P. bar.

We have fun, fun, fun, fun, fun ever Saturday night, so put on yer leotards and get to stepping. Be thier or be square.

I have been away from fhe hobby several years. I am now disabled and want get some of my radios going again, and upgrade my license, N2NJK, to allow increased band privileges. I have a brand new HTX-100 10 meter unit purchased when they were discontinued. It was bought cheap as it had no microphone. If I am fortunate enough to rceive a heart transplant (I'm being evaluated for viability in 2 weeks), the period before and after surgery will be a perfect time to get back on the air. If anyone has one that works, and can let it go cheaply, please let me know.

Thanks & God Bless.

The point is the only reason that was posted was to express the fact that moparhoLICK is frustrated because he cannot have gay sex with a ham. He could look up lambda members and maybe get lucky, but lambda and nambla both threw him out cuz he is TOO gay. That queen is so gay he has to use goo gone for toothpaste.

All of these posts originate from les(bian) moparhoLICK.

And it came to pass in the Shire of Mistig Waetru, Lady Avagaye bas Ysaac, a portly, hideous creature, but with a powerful ladystick, did send the order that all transgressors must be dealt with harshly by whining them to death. Avagay did send the only representative of her court, the court jester/fool to try to handle this task, Morkie of Moronia. So, the first order of business was for Morkie to quaff a few pints down at Ye Greenlight, and that didn't mean he enjoyed the mead.

Morkie stumbled back to the "castle" past the moat of junk outside (to protect from "invaders" like the many rats and roaches) and logged onto the internet. Morkie stood guard online and waited until some of his incoherent posts were answered. Morkie used his abnormal functioning brain to post nonsense, he never admits his mistakes, no matter how wrong he is, the correct procedure as outlined by Avagay when questioned is to LIE and then provide follow up responses that are so butchered and misspelled, that you will have effectively covered your rear by causing any inquirer to just give up out of frustration trying to decode your jumbling of words. However, if you fail, slowly backpedal over time but never admit fault, then when they are not expecting it, go on a tirade about something unimportant but extrapolate it into something outlandish. Like claiming victory when you clearly get your dumbass handed to you as Morkie does quite often. Morkie can then go back and report to Avagay, who handles the finances and has to clear everything Morkie does, who proceeds to reward Morkie by rear entry of her ladystick. Such is the life in the Shire of Mistig Waertu.

Be sure to bring yer cents of humor with you.

Instead of karaoke, the Greenlight has a thespian showcase ever Saturday nite at 11 pm sharp. Each year they have a different theme for the showcase, and this year the theme is Native American berdaches and their customs and costumes. Right now, the thespian who has won the last five showcases is Mr. Morkie, and so he is Greenlight's reigning champion and the one to beat.

Besides that, the Greenlight has an enema room with its own beer keg and floor drain so that you can enjoy beer yer own way. This is a feature to be found in no other U.P. bar.

We have fun, fun, fun, fun, fun ever Saturday night, so put on yer leotards and get to stepping. Be thier or be square.

You seem more familiar with using blow up dolls, lend him one of yours. You are so used to dating your hand anyways.
In fact Pink wrote this song after meeting you!:

U + Ur Hand (Pink)

Uh uh uh uh uh uh uh oh
Uh uh uh uh uh uh uh oh
Check it out
Going out
On the late night
Looking tight
Feeling nice
It's a cock fight
I can tell
I just know
That it's going down
Tonight
At the door we don't wait cause we know them
At the bar six shots just beginning
That's when dickhead put his hands on me
But you see

I'm not here for your entertainment
You don't really want to mess with me tonight
Just stop and take a second
I was fine before you walked into my life

Cause you know it's over
Before it begins
Keep your drink just give me the money
It's just you and your hand tonight

Uh uh uh uh uh uh uh oh
Uh uh uh uh uh uh uh oh

Midnight
I'm drunk
I don't give a fuck
Wanna dance
By myself
Guess you're outta luck
Don't touch
Back up
I'm not the one
Buh bye
Listen up it's just not happening
You can say what you want to your boyfriends
Just let me have my fun tonight
Alright

I'm not here for your entertainment
You don't really want to mess with me tonight
Just stop and take a second
I was fine before you walked into my life
Cause you know it's over
Before it begins
Keep your drink just give me the money
It's just you and your hand tonight

Break break
Break it down

In the corner with your boys you bet up five bucks
To get the girl that just walked in but she thinks you suck
We didn't get all dressed up just for you to see
So quit spilling your drinks on me yeah

You know who you are High fivin, talkin shit, but you're going home alone aren't cha?

Cause I'm not here for your entertainment
No
You don't really want to mess with me tonight
Just stop and take a second
Just stop and take a second
I was fine before you walked into my life
Cause you know it's over
Know it's over

Before it begins
Keep your drink just give me the money
It's just you and your hand tonight
It's just you and your hand

I'm not here for your entertainment
No no no
You don't really want to mess with me tonight
Just stop and take a second
Just take a second
I was fine before you walked into my life
Cause you know it's over
Before it begins
Keep your drink just give me the money
It's just you and your hand tonight
Yeah oh

I have been away from fhe hobby several years. I am now disabled and want to get some of my radios going again, and upgrade my license, N2NJK, to allow increased band privileges. I have a brand new HTX-100 10 meter unit purchased when they were discontinued. It was bought cheap as it had no microphone. If I am fortunate enough to rceive a heart transplant (I'm being evaluated for viability in 2 weeks), the period before and after surgery will be a perfect time to get back on the air. If anyone has one that works, and can let it go cheaply, please let me know.

Thanks & God Bless.

* PLEASE NOTE: The report "could" contain "Pirate/SLIM" operations or more likely a "BUSTED CALLSIGN". As always, you never know - "Work First Worry Later" (WFWL).

3A, MONACO (Special Event). Look for special event station 3A7JO to be active between now and June 10th to celebrate the XII edition of the "Games of the Small States of Europe" (see http://www.monaco2007.mc/). Activity will take place on all bands and modes. All QSOs will be confirmed automatically via the bureau. Direct requests should be sent to the Association des Radioamateurs de Monaco (ARM) QSL Bureau, B.P. 2, MC 98001, Monaco Cedex.

3A, MONACO. Operators Luc/ON4LUC and Paul/ON6DP will be active as 3A/ON4LUC and 3A/OP0P from now until June 8th (possibly the 9th). They will be operating on RTTY, PSK and SSB with 100w and an "Inverted V" on 80/40/20 meters. QSLs via ON6DP, direct or by the bureau.

3A, MONACO. Eli, N6PF, will be celebrating his 60th birhday with a visit to 3A2MD's QTH. He will be operating as 3A/N6PF from June 25-30th. Bands and modes of activity were not provided. QSL via his home callsign.

3B6, AGALEGA ISLANDS (DXpedition Update). Team leader, Witek, SP9MRO, sent out a press release a day before leaving (June 1st) for Agalega Island. He indicated that the 3B6SP group had finished loading the equipment to the catamaran, and that they would be leaving in the morning. The group would be passing St. Brandon Island, which is very close to the catamaran route and only one day sailing from Mauritius. He expects a 4-5 day trip to Agalega because of high level of the ocean and activity from the volcano on Reunion Island. The team will try to work on the air during their trip under homecall/mm on all bands. If everything goes as planned, they will start radio activity from Agalega on Thursday, June 6th. Their suggested frequencies are:
CW - 1821.5, 3521, 7021, 10121, 14021, 18081, 21021, 24901 and 28021
SSB - 1845, 3780, 7063, 14185, 18136, 21290, 24930 and 28490
RTTY - 3590, 7040, 10140, 14084, 18104, 21084, 24924 and 28084
PSK - 7038, 10142, 18102, 21072, 24922 and 28122 kHz

QSL via SP9SX. For more details and updates, visit the 3B6SP Web page at: http://3b6.godx.eu/

5N, NIGERIA. Marek, SQ8JCA, will once agin be active as 5N2/SQ8JCA from Cogi during all of June. Activity is expected to be on 80-6 meters SSB. Look for him especially between 1000-1600z. QSL via his home callsign.

6W/IZ2DPX NOW QRT. Oreste, IZ8EDJ, reports that 6W/IZ2DPX is now QRT, and the log is available online at: http://ik2duw.altervista.org

7O1YGF OPERATION STATUS RESURFACED AGAIN. Since the International DX Convention in Visalia, as well as the Dayton HamVention, OPDX has been receiving questions about the status of the 7O1YGF German DXpedition to Yemen. It seems Dave Patton, NN1N, ARRL's Membership and Volunteer Programs Manager, has stated that the status of "7O1YGF is not closed". This would mean efforts continue to gain the right and necessary documentation.

A6, UNITED ARAB EMIRATES. Ghis, ON5NT/A61NT, is definitively back in Belgium as of May 24th.

AN8, CANARY ISLANDS (AF-004). As part of a campaign to get the Teide National Park (Tenerife, Canary Islands) to be included in the UNESCO World Patrimony List, a group of radio amateurs will air the special callsign AN8TID, June 9-10th, by operating from La Rambleta (Teide volcano), at an altitude 3,555 meters. Activity will be on all HF, VHF and UHF bands, using CW, SSB and the digital modes. QSL via EA8NQ, either direct (see www.qrz.com/ea8nq/) or by the Bureau. For details and information, visit the Web page: http://www.ure.es/ea8arg/an8tid/

9A, CROATIA. Jan, PA4JJ, will be active as 9A/PA4JJ/p from June 16th to July 7th. He will be on a holiday at Porec Istria and will try to be active as much as possible on the WARC bands using RTTY and PSK modes. He states that the antenna he will use will be either a vertical or a ZS6BKW. QSL information can be found on his Web site at: http://www.pa4jj.nl
There is a possibility to request a special paper QSL card as well.

9A & T9, CROATIA AND BOSNIA-HERZEGOVINA. Zik, VE3ZIK (also DO7ZZ), will once again be active from Bilice (JN73WS), Croatia, as 9A/VE3ZIK between June 16th and September 5th. Look for him on all HF Bands, CW, SSB, RTTY, PSK31 and FM (around 29600 kHz if there is condx). He will also be active at least from one IOTA island, and active in the IOTA Contest. Visit Zik's Web page at: http://www.qslnet.de/ve3zik
Send E-mail QSL Bureau request via: zik@tiscali.de Zik also has some plans to be active from Bosnia-Herzegovina as T9/VE3ZIK between June 20-27th and September 5-10th. This will be a holiday style operation with 100W and some wire antennas. QSL 9A/VE3ZIK and T9/VE3ZIK via DL3PS, by the DARC Bureau. No e-QSL or LotW.

AO5, SPAIN (Special Event). Look for Pascual, EA5FKQ/AO5FKQ, and other EA operators from the Valencia region to use the special prefix AO5 instead of EA5 until July 7th. This special activity is to celebrate the most prestigious 32nd America's Cup sailing event being held in Europe for the first time off the shore of Valencia.

KY6YL BUREAU QSLS. DXpeditioner Mike, N6MZ, who also sorts the "Y" segment for the ARRL 6th District QSL Bureau, regrets to inform DXers around the world that KT6YL, who claims to be the QSL Manager for TF0GX, TF8GX, TF4RX, TF7GX, TF7RX, TF7X, TF8RX, TF3XEN, and TF3ZA, does NOT use the ARRL QSL bureau. Unfortunately, Mike has to shred many, many hundreds of your QSL cards every year because Mrs. Gehrke will not participate in the bureau system. VU7RG/VU7MY QSL UPDATE. QSL Manager Bob Schenck, N2OO, reports: "I recently received my supply of VU7RG/VU7MY QSL cards from the QSL printer in Europe. My QSL team from the South Jersey DX Association will meet next week to process the "Region 2" cards. Most cards will go into the mail on the same day which is expected to be June 11th or 12th. The exception is for those who requested BOTH VU7RG and VU7MY (or perhaps any other call that I handle) in the same envelope. Those will be processed later since it involves a separate confirmation process here. As for the extra postage needed due to the recent increase, I have a good batch of 2 cent stamps here. I want to thank the couple of folks who mailed me some sheets of 2 cent stamps to add to my postage box! That was a very nice gesture. Thanks! See ya' in the Pileups! 73! Bob Schenck, N2OO"

YASME NEWS. Wayne Mills, N7NG, President of the Yasme Foundation, informs OPDX: "One of the more famous and long-lived post box numbers in DXing has changed. Effective immediately, all mail sent to the Yasme Foundation should go to: The Yasme Foundation, P.O. Box 20578, Castro Valley, CA, USA 94546. The current mailing address shown on the Yasme

Web site (Yasme.org) is now correct. Mail sent to the old box number, Box 2025, will be forwarded for approximately six months, so if you have sent mail recently, it will be delivered with no difficulty. For a period last summer, the USPO was not forwarding mail properly, and some mail was returned. This is no longer the case."

Apparently, Rep. Mark Foley is homosexual. And like many homosexual men, he has pedophilic tendencies. We should pray for him that he gets a handle on this problem and refrains from harming any more kids.

Meanwhile, we need to wake up. The fact that this is typical behavior for homosexuals doesn't stop us from continuing to elevate such folks to positions where they gain access to our kids.

What's "lenth"? Is that how Gavi measures your manhood? It must be in the millimeter range, since your first wife preferred to sleep with blacks instead of you.

Don't know if the OP was from the UK, but UK night rates are of the order of half the day rate (though you have to pay a higher day rate to qualify!), but only for 7 hours. I do wonder if it would be possible now to set up a battery/inverter/load sharing system sufficiently cheaply to lower the cost of daytime use significantly. Probably illegal though.

Why would it be illegal storing energy ? I can't imagine that it is illegal charging the batteries of a Golf buggy , at night tariff.
I am sure any golf club would do that to reduce their electricity bill.

BTW ,living in the UK myself ,night tariff indeed normally starts at about 2300 hrs and finishes at 0600 hrs the following morning .
At our place switching happens with an electro-mechanical timer with a spring mechanism such that following an outage the timer keeps running.
Eventually that spring has to be re-wound by the electricity supplier
,but that hasn't happened the past 15 years.....so the timer at our place now comes into operation around 2320 hrs ,but then of course also day tariff starts about half an hour later at 0620 the following morning.

No problem with a different circuit, but more so if you want to connect to the supply. In fact people with wind etc. generators can get permission to sell "green" electricity back to the grid (automatic metering). It would be somehow satisfying buying night time electricity from the suppliers and sell it back to them at a profit.

Just to get back on topic (nearly), my meter is controlled from a radio signal (?198kHz) which can move the 7 hours about within a longer window.

I'm not going to repeat them. They're hurtful to me because they contained abuse that was directed against me by someone else at the time and which got picked up and thrown again in the trial. It is a matter of record but I won't repeat it here.

Why would "they" wish to assassinate your character?

Well, let's put it this way - just because this is the first time it's happened in this way, from these people, on this scale, doesn't mean that it hasn't happened before, on a lesser scale. At university there were people who quite overtly hated me and would have wished something nasty to happen to me. Because of where I went making the wrong sort of enemies is pretty deadly.

"They" would wish to assassinate my character because it had all been done before, and because they knew I would not be able to react in any other way than I'd reacted previously.

This was four, five years ago... sorry, I don't remember. I can remember individual incidents, words which were repeated by different people at different times in different locations.

Around the end of 1992 Private Eye rtan a front-cover with John and Norma Major, with the title "Major's support lowest ever" and John saying to Norma "Come back norma" on the front cover. What can you read in to that? Not a lot, seems like standard fare for PE. The first time I saw it I was in the pub with some people from work. One was expressing doubts to the other (let's call the first one Simon, shall we? and the second one Phil?) about whether what was going on was right. Phil's answer was that if Private Eye was doing it then it must be ok, "they're usually right".

A few days later, again near work, there were some students laughing in the street, "Were you COMING BACK later? But I thought you said you were COMING BACK ha ha ha?" Play on words, you see. Not very nice, either. I had start medication soon afterwards. Clever people, these chaps who think up PE titles. Just slightly lacking in any sense of morality.

Sometyime in spring 1994. I can't remember the date, I heard the broadcast in the car - I was going into the office from London that day and just happened to snap on the radio, and hey presto! Mr Tarrant gives us the benefit of his excellent understanding.

It was a national express coach. At dover we boarded a ferry for Holland somewhere.
The company that organized the trip went out of business some time ago, so they won't have records of passengers - so we can't get any corroboration from anyone else

Yes, I'm afraid so. Sulpiride, 200mg a day. It's designed to stop people coming up with the sort of ideas you've heard here for the last few weeks. Give him a higher dose!!

In the long term it causes tardive dyskinesia, tardive dementia and general nasty stuff to your brain. So it's three years of sulpiride talking to you here.

Only on VERY LARGE wind farms. Most small sites rectify the wild AC

Domestic wind energy systems in the 1-10 kW range often involve an AC generator ,its output being rectified with the DC fed into an inverter which is synchronised with the grid.

In the UK a company 'Windsave' sells and (obligatory) installs 1 kW wind generators which are connected to the domestic 230V-50 Hz system .
The location of the windgen and its nearby inverter cannot be too far away from the switchboard (up to 15 metres). Apparently the output voltage of the inverter is slightly higher than the grid supply , such there is a preferential pick-off from the wind gen system.
However when no power is consumed wind generated energy is fed into the grid.
I have 'heard' that in some countries (but not in the UK) electro-mechanical kiloWattHour meters can rotate reversed when fed with power from the consumer's side, with the counter counting down .
This would be very beneficial for people with the above described system . Perhaps someone on this NG can confirm that these meters really exist and in which countries.

For my AR operations + desk lighting and peripherals I use 12 V batteries charged by an up to 170 Watts windgen and 2 solar panels with a total capacity of 128 Watts(peak).....just for the h*ll of it.
The wind gen. has a 3 phase generator and integral rectifying diodes(in fact 2 bridge rectifiers of which 1 is fully utilised and the other one only half)

I agree with Rick. Hams have always used the term "Handle" and name synonymously.
And CB'ers ALWAYS bastardize ham radio traditions.

Hi Frank and all,

I have never seen a reversible mechanical kWh meter and also never heared of this, except running reverse due to incorrect wiring.

In our current home (IJmuiden, NL) we have an electronic 3-phase meter with two counters for peak and off-peak. This meter also has a T3 to measure energy supplied back into the net, though that requires a special contract. It's a single LCD showing the counters sequentially.
I know the previously used electro mechanical meter in this house was switched by a 230Vac signal on an extra wire in the mains cable. I'm prety sure there are two 1.5 or 2.5 qmm wires with the four 6 or maybe 4 qmm wires in the cable.
There still is an old boiler relay on the meter board controlled from the same signal.
The new electronic meter might be frequency controlled.

In the previous home we did have an electro mechanical two-tarif meter and I think that one was switched from an electronic unit that I presume was a frequency selective relay.

The meter back in Newbury was just the standard single phase, single counter type.

I would expect that all modern wind turbines use rectifiers direct on the generator and then have DC power fed to one or more inverters in the base of the mast.
The inverters are synchronised to the grid before switching the generator on the net.
This is as I remember from college and as I read in the technical description of the wind turbine on which PI3WAD is installed.

3B7, ST. BRANDON ISLANDS (Not Agalega/DXpedition Update). Dxpedition leader, Witek, SP9MRO, and his team encountered problems with their catamaran on their way to Agalega Island (3B6) and had to head to St. Brandon Island (3B7) instead. It seems their catamaran "Josephina", had lost one of two engines and a sail which was torn due to high winds and bad seas. However, all are safe and the catamaran was towed by a fishing vessel called "Covadis" to the Island of Raphael (St. Brandon Island). OPDX was told that St. Raphael Island "is like a football play ground with two buildings, one for the Coast guards and the second, a 6 room bungalow for the Meteorological services, but with no water and light, only one generator and two wideband G5RV and lots and lots of birds, this place is more beautiful than Agalega." The team has received permission to operate as 3B7SP while their catamaran is being repaired. Activity will possibly last until June 19th. QSL via SP9SX. For more possible details and updates, visit the 3B6SP Web page at: http://3b6.godx.eu/

Hal, ZS6WB (A25HL), will do the Digi modes. They plan to have a M2 6 meter beam up on top of one of the towers which will be about 60 feet high using at least 300-400 watts or more. Hal, who does most of the EME, is a retired American that lives in South Africa. The whole team consists of: Dan/ZS6JR (A25DW), Frosty/K5LBU (A25CF), Wayne/W5KDJ (A25KDJ), Jay/W5SL (A25SL), John/GM3OOK (A25OOK), Lee/WA8QFE (A25LT), Jan/ZS6OB (A25OB), Hal/ZS6WB (A25HL) and Dick/ZS6BUN (A25BUN).

NEVER GIVE UP! Gabe, KP4BJD, informs OPDX that he was pleasantly surprised this past week when he received a QSL card from WA6DDR/KM6 (Midway Island) for a QSO he made on the 29th of May in 1963 on 20 meters SSB. Gabe states, "The operator Mac soon after retired from the U.S, Navy... his callsign is now K4RBM. Mac went to the Dayton Hamvention for his first time this year, 'enjoyed it a lot' ..and it seems to sparked his interest all over again .. enough to catch up with old QSL cards he had not answered ... So, there's hope for those who wait, if they have 'enough' patience."

N8S QSL STATUS. Dragan, YZ1EW/RA4U, reported on June 8th that the first batch of 1000 N8S QSL cards were mailed. Other cards will be mailed in the next 30 days.

YW0DX (Wrap-up). OPDX was informed that the log is uploaded to LoTW. Conrad, IT9DAA, states, " This DXpedition (to Aves Island - NA-020) was a success although there was not much time to operate and we had fewer operators than expected. Hence we had to adjust our operating plan and concentrate on the low bands and RTTY. Unfortunately, the planned schedule of our Naval Army could not be altered, and therefore our length of stay on the island had to be cut short. Our on-the-air time was subject to numerous interruptions due to maintenance required to keep the local generators running. Aves Island was on the air from February 8-13th, 2007. Despite the difficulties involved, our final score reached 23,000 QSOs - quite good for just 70 hours of operating. Regrettably, propagation conditions on the high bands were not favorable. Anyway, heavy pileups on 160m and 80m proved an unforgettable experience. Logs, video, photos and QSL design from the DXpedition can be seen at: http://yw0dx.4m5dx.org/ "

SV/A, MOUNT ATHOS (Pirate Alert). Veronica, IK3ZAW/W6, writes to OPDX: "Hi - I am writing on behalf of Fr. Apollo, SV22ASP/A. Last month he has been quite active on SSB, CW, and RTTY (with over 1,500 QSOs in the log). HOWEVER some idiot who did not have anything better to do with his time, transmitted using his callsign on CW while Fr. Apollo was operating on phone! Fr. Apollo thus asked me to clarify that on 5/16/07 11:00pm-2:00am he was operating PHONE. CW CONTACTS AT THIS TIME ARE PIRATE. All other CW contacts should be ok. He has received a lot of cards for contacts that are not in his log (occurred at the time I indicated above), and he is feeling really bad for those who are writing him, wasting their time and money. He is really busy right now, as the Fathers are building three big cisterns for the monastery, so he does not forsee any further activity for awhile. I would really appreciate if you could spread this message through your respective bullettins. Thank you very much in advance.... 73s Veronica IK3ZAW/W6"

TA, TURKEY. Charlie, GI4FUE, will once again be active as TA4/GI4FUE from Marmaris, Turkey, June 12-24th. Activity will be holiday style and mostly on 30/20/17/15/12/10 meters CW. He hopes to be able to take a portable 6 meters antenna with him to activate KM46du. QSL via his home callsign.

TI9, COCOS ISLAND. Henry, TI2HMG, states, "After the big success of TI9M we start again! The next DXpedition to TI9 will depart in February 2008! Become part of an exciting adventure! Write to: ti2hmg@qsl.net" Visit the following Web site, and you can even fill out an application form to become a team member of this DXpedition at: http://www.qsl.net/ti2hmg/cocos.htm

TO5, MARTINIQUE (NA-107). Alain, F5LMJ (ex-XT2C), will be active as TO5J from the city of the Francois between July-14-28th. Activity will be mainly on CW and the digital modes. QSL via his home callsign, but all QSOs will be confirmed automatically via the bureau and LoTW.

V3, BELIZE. Colin, KU5B, will be active as V31UB from July 12-17th. He will be operating mostly nights on both HF SSB and CW with a minimal plan to operate on 6m. Colin is also planning to operate in the IARU Contest (July 14-15th) that weekend with a category still yet to be decided. QSL via KU5B.

V60, MICRONESIA. Six members of the Japan Amateur Radio League (JARL) Kyoto Club, will be planning a DXpedition to the Federated States of Micronesia (FSM) this summer. This is one of the events celebrating the club's 60th anniversary. Activity will be from the South Park Hotel on Pohnpei Island (OC-010) between July 30th and August 5th. Operations will be on 160-6 meters CW/SSB/FM/RTTY/PSK31, depending on the band conditions. The team has been allowed to use the special, brand new V60 prefix to celebrate their club's 60th anniversary (thanks to Mark DeOrio, Frequency Manager at the FSM Department of Transportation, Communications & Infrastructure). Look for the following callsigns (w/QSL routes) to be used:

Callsign	Operator	QSL route	Callsign	Operator	QSL route
V60YAQ	Club Stn.	JI6DUE	V60KL	Kenji	JN3JBC

I abide by the standards that I live with day in and day out. With Usenet, I don't flame, I don't post seventy or eighty (or more) times per diem, and I don't dredge up months-old posts for the lack of anything better to do in slack times. I have no differences with Dloyd, or Lloyd, or Larry, or most others.
I don't inject inane comments on each and every post and, unlike you, I use my God-given intellect to remain anonymous.

If one is a Hypocrite, it is you. You, Sir, are borderline stupid.

Usenet is open. So is Blogspot. Why not blog over your wife's name? Or call?
You can't Blog over mine or Dloyd's simply because we have kept our names and callsigns private and out of your reach. That irks you, doesn't it, Mark?

Revision for June 14, 2007: As of 1600 UTC, Mark has made a total of 103 drivel posts today. K4YZ forgeries have been included in the count.

Mark is living proof that Hughes Net sucks.

In message <1174929882.797290.192310@d57g2000hsg.googlegroups.com>, Mark Morgan admitted that he is trying to disrupt the news groups by saying, "... I am aware that I do anoy them and as an inicdental to main main objective distrupt their NG experence that is regreatble and regrreted [sic]" -- By so stating, he admits to violating the terms of service of all major ISPs.

No lie; just a count of articles on my news server. Specifically, you posted 8 articles to rram and 95 articles to rrap as of the stated time. My news server retains articles for three years after they are posted, and it is very easy to write a script to count articles for any given date, as well as to do scans for the true identities of current anonymous posters.

Posts forged in your name are filtered out, but your recent forgeries of K4YZ are not filtered out. Thus, my count is accurate.

It is YOU who are the lying sack, and I'm going to prove it by giving you and the other readers of this post a little lesson in reading headers.

Last Monday, a sizeable number of posts was made with headers like the following:

>- From: k4yz-1@hotmail.com

STOP RIGHT HERE and look at the line above which was added by Google.
It gives the IP address of the submitting host. That host is also known as AC5-Webproxy31.direcpc.com, and it is a web proxy belonging to HughesNet.

Are you going to tell us that Steve has a direcpc account?

Let's go on and look at the headers from a post you made today (6/14).
They are:

>- From: an_old_friend <konstans@hotmail.com>

STOP RIGHT HERE. Notice the leading spaces in the From: header? Odd, isn't it, that they're the same as in the previous k4yz-1 post?

STOP RIGHT HERE. See that IP address above? Weird, isn't it, that that IP address was only slightly different than the earlier IP address and

Of course it isn't weird. Both posts were made by you, and in the first post YOU DID INDEED FORGE K4YZ'S IDENTITY!

In your own words, that makes YOU the lying sack of shit!

I was a ham operator in the early 1960s and my call sign was KN1VTR.
I have lost all proof of that over the years and was wondering if anyone knows of an "archive" where i might be able to find "proof". I think if I can find it, I might be able to Grandfather 5 WPM CW.

Thanks

In Leviticus 18:22 and 20:13, the Torah prohibits "mishkivei isha", a man laying with another man as he would lay with a woman. Historically Judaism has understand this mitzvah as directly or indirectly prohibiting homosexuality. Outside of Judaism, most of Western civilization has usually seen homosexuality as a willful perversion, or a rebellion against God's will.

The Torah states "Do not lie with a male as one lies with a woman; it is a to'evah" (Leviticus 18:22, New JPS) and "If a man lies with a male as one lies with a woman, the two of them have done a to'evah; they shall be put to death." (Leviticus 20:13, New JPS).
The word to'evah is usually translated as "abomination" and is used in the Bible to refer to a variety of forbidden acts including incest, idolatry, eating unclean animals, and acts of economic injustice.

It took me a while to figure out your reference, since "John Smith" is in my kill file most of the time.

John Smith is, of course, a poser who knows far less about the Internet than he pretends.

When you connect to Google, you can't fake your IP address. You are either arriving through a proxy, or else you are arriving directly.
Either way, Google inserts that address (which it obtains from the incoming tcp packets) into its NNTP-Posting-Host header. If the IP packets had a forged return address, the tcp connection couldn't be maintained and the post couldn't be made. That's the way that TCP/IP protocol works, and you can't avoid Google knowing which machine has connected to it.

Oh, someone could find a badly configured news server (one which accepts the IHAVE command from anyone), and in that case he could forge almost everything. Everything, that is, except the Path header. The only thing he could do with the Path header is to preload it.

I won't go into any more detail, except to say that the Path header in the posts I examined says that the forged K4YZ posts really did come from Google, thereyby making the NNTP-Posting-Host header reliable. It isn't a preloaded Path header, because it has the correct attributes when viewed via two different NSPs. You can't preload the Path header well enough so that it isn't obvious when viewed via several different NSPs.

In my expert opinion, the posts in question were forged by you. "John Smith's" opinion is technically naive and without merit.

You are a forger who made the mistake of lying about it to a hacker whose experience goes back to the ARPANET days of the 70's. Q.E.D.

==> ARRL, DoD, FCC TRY TO COME TO TERMS WITH PAVE PAWS

The ARRL has sent out more than 100 letters to repeater owners/trustees who have repeaters affected by the "Pave Paws" radars (PPR). Citing an increasing number of interference complaints, the US Air Force has asked the FCC to order dozens of repeater systems to either mitigate interference to the Pave Paws radars or shut down. The ARRL is working with the US Department of Defense (DoD) to develop a plan to mitigate alleged interference from 70 cm ham radio repeaters to this military radar system on both coasts.

The situation affects 15 repeaters within less than 100 miles of Otis Air Force Base on Cape Cod, Massachusetts, and more than 100 repeaters within some 140 miles of Beale Air Force Base near Sacramento, California.

ARRL Regulatory Information Specialist Dan Henderson, N1ND, stresses that the Defense Department acknowledges Amateur Radio's value in disasters and emergencies and is being extremely cooperative -- and a wholesale shutdown of US 70 cm Amateur Radio activity is not on the table.

The Amateur Radio Service is a secondary user in the 420-450 MHz band, both by the Table of Frequency Allocations and the FCC Part 97 regulations. As such, Amateur Radio licensees, jointly and individually, bear the responsibility of mitigating or eliminating any harmful interference to the primary user, which in this case is the Government Radiolocation Service that includes the DoD Pave Paws systems.

The letters sent to affected repeater owners/trustees give them an up-to-date briefing on the ongoing negotiations with the US Air Force, as well as outlines the DoD's plan. The DoD has indicated a willingness to try a mitigation proposal, but they have also indicated their need is for these issues to be resolved sooner rather than later. With that expediency in mind, the proposed mitigation strategy is as follows:

* All repeaters on the DoD list in the affected areas will immediately reduce power to 5 W transmitter power output (TPO). Each repeater licensee/trustee should contact Henderson to confirm this once this has been done for their system. Confirmation of this being done is needed from each repeater owner by Friday, June 15, 2007.

* The ARRL will provide the Longley-Rice calculations for each repeater to the DoD by June 15, 2007. The DoD will provide engineering data to the ARRL and FCC by June 15, 2007. These studies will be reviewed by the DoD, the ARRL Lab and the FCC to determine the amount of mitigation necessary for each repeater. Based on this review by the DoD, additional mitigation proposals for individual repeaters (including further power reductions, lowering of antenna heights, use of more directive antennas and other possible mitigation techniques) will be provided by the ARRL as needed to individual repeater owners. If there is a disagreement on the conclusions, a conference call will be held to resolve any outstanding issues.

* All interference must be resolved no later than August 1, 2007.

* Beginning in August 2007 (and continuing on a periodic basis), the DoD will have a follow-up engineers study at each PPR site to ensure corrective actions have been taken and the interference and to ensure that successful mitigation continues.

According to the DoD, the in-band interference from Amateur Radio fixed FM voice repeaters has increased to an unacceptable level. Pave Paws radars are used for national security functions, including early detection of water-launched missiles. They are critical to our national defense and are in use 24 hours per day, seven days per week.

The goal of the ARRL has been to develop and implement a plan that would mitigate the interference, and at the same time to permit the repeaters to continue operation and to operate on as liberal a basis as possible.
To do so, the League has offered to work closely with the two involved repeater coordinating groups, as well as the individual repeater owners, sharing information and dealing with this issue on a coordinated basis with all stakeholders.

The League has also been in contact with representatives of the FCC. They have the ultimate responsibility for enforcing any mitigation plan, up to and including ordering specific repeaters to shut down operations.
The FCC is aware of the complex nature of this problem and the mitigation strategy being proposed by the DoD.

Since Amateur Radio operators are secondary users on the band, the ARRL has few options, and all options involve cooperation with the DoD. It is hoped the Longley-Rice calculations from the ARRL and the DoD's engineering studies will provide enough data to allow as many of the repeaters in the affected areas as possible to remain on the air at reasonable power levels.

It is entirely probable that even with extreme mitigation techniques, some repeaters in close proximity to the PPR sites may have to be shut down permanently. If that happens, official notice would come from the

FCC. It is also possible that some repeaters might be required to operate permanently at a lower power level in the areas near these Air Force bases. In those cases, the League will be in contact with the individual repeater owners with that information and the FCC will be notified.

Henderson requests that all repeater owners/trustees affected by this issue immediately implement the 5 W TPO for your repeater/s; please contact his office by June 15 indicating if you have implemented the power reduction. This will allow the ARRL to have voluntary compliance on hand that can be used to show the cooperation of the amateur community.

Henderson stresses that it is to each repeater's long-term advantage to implement the power reduction as soon as possible. The DoD indicated they will be collecting engineering data during June. This presents the opportunity to assess a repeater's actual impact at the lower power level and a more honest determination of its continued potential for harmful interference to the PPR sites. If any repeaters are running at higher power levels, then the determinations can only be based on assumptions rather than on actual data.

==> ARRL/IARU TEAM TO REPRESENT AMATEUR RADIO AT ITU MEETING IN GENEVA

ARRL Chief Executive Officer and IARU Secretary David Sumner, K1ZZ, will be representing the IARU at a meeting of ITU-R Working Party 1A next week in Geneva, Switzerland. WP 1A is responsible for spectrum engineering techniques within Study Group 1 (spectrum management) and will be working on a document that may eventually become what's called a "preliminary draft new report" on the impact of power line telecommunications (PLT, what we call BPL on this side of the Atlantic) on radiocommunication systems operating below 80 MHz. Of course, the IARU's interest is in ensuring that the report accurately reflects the sensitivity of the amateur services to interference from this source. Jon Siverling, WB3ERA, of the ARRL Technical Relations Office is on the US delegation.

Also meeting at about the same time (June 12-20) is ITU-R Working Party 8A, which is responsible for most of the land mobile services, plus the amateur and amateur-satellite services. WP 8A hopes to complete work on a "draft new handbook for the amateur and amateur-satellite services" to be published by the ITU. This isn't competition for The ARRL Handbook

--
it is simply an overview of the activities of the amateur services along with existing ITU texts that relate to the two services, and is intended to be a helpful guide for administrations that may not be familiar
with Amateur Radio. IARU President Larry Price, W4RA, will represent the IARU, and Sumner will assist as time permits. ARRL Chief Technology Officer Paul Rinaldo, W4RI, is on the US delegation and is chairman of the working group that will deal with the amateur handbook.

After these meetings, Sumner, Price and Rinaldo will travel via train
to attend the Friedrichshafen convention in Germany the following weekend.

==> FCC ANNOUNCES ENHANCEMENTS TO ULS LICENSE ARCHIVE

The FCC has announced a redesign of the Universal Licensing System (ULS) License Archive Search. Users can access this new functionality via
the
"Archives" button under "SEARCH" on the ULS page.

"Each time a license is acted upon, the current version is captured within ULS," the FCC explained this week in a public notice. "The License Archive allows users to view the current and prior versions of a license."

In the redesigned License Archive, the search interface, results screen and detail pages will use the same display as ULS License Search. On
the detail pages, users now will be able to directly access license information.

"There will be no need to 'drill down' -- follow link after link -- to reach the information you need," the FCC noted. "This enhancement increases functionality and improves compliance with Section 508 of
the Americans with Disabilities Act."

The redesigned License Archive search interface allows a user to search using most of the criteria available in ULS Advanced License Search except for Radio Service Group, Licensee City, State and ZIP Code and Frequencies. Users will have the same ability to sort and restrict their archive search results that they have in ULS License Search, the FCC said. Licensee ID no longer will be available as a License Archive

Search criterion, however. Users should now search by the Licensee's FCC
Registration Number (FRN).

The search results display will be similar to the search results in License Search, with a few minor exceptions: There will be no display of a "Pending Applications" icon, a column titled "Version" will display
"Archived" or "Current" depending on the version of the license and a
"Last Action Date" column will be used instead of "Expiration Date."

In general, the License Archive Search details will look similar to License Search details. However, the following additional fields will be displayed for all archived licenses: Last Action Date, Version, Licensee
ID, and Sub-Group Identification Number (SGIN).

Also, other License Search functions that previously were not available in the License Archive have been added, including a "Printable Page" link that allows the user to print the contents of the page pre-formatted for most common printers. A "Reference Copy" link now allows the user to print an unofficial copy of the license. A link to view "Related Applications" from the current version of the license has been added, as has the ability to view attachments and automated letters
in a PDF file.

License Archive will display termination pending components similar to the manner in which they are currently displayed in License Search.
Additionally, License Archive will display all terminated components
of
a license, regardless of when it was terminated. These components will indicate a status of "Terminated" on the component's summary and detail pages. Under the previous License Archive system, terminated components
were not displayed unless the license itself was terminated as well.

For additional information or assistance, visit the FCC's at <http://esupport.fcc.gov/index.htm> or call the FCC Support Center,
(877) 480-3201 or 717-338-2888 (TTY 717-338-2824) and select Option
#2, Forms or Licensing Assistance. Hours are weekdays, except federal holidays, from 8 AM until 6 PM Eastern Time.

==> IT'S KD5PLA IN FOR KD5PLB ON INTERNATIONAL SPACE STATION

NASA has given the go-ahead for the launch of the space shuttle
Atlantis

Friday, June 8. The STS-117 mission will carry US astronaut Clay Anderson, KD5PLA, to the International Space Station to succeed Suni Williams, KD5PLB, as ISS Expedition 15 Flight Engineer. Anderson will join Expedition 15 Commander Fyodor Yurchikhin, RN3FI, and Flight Engineer Dr Oleg Kotov.

Williams will return to Earth aboard the Atlantis. She arrived on the ISS last December and has been among the most active ISS crew members on Amateur Radio. NASA originally planned the astro-swap for the STS-118 shuttle mission, now targeted for an August launch.

Atlantis Commander Rick Sturckow and his six crewmates will spend 11 days in space and take part in three spacewalks. Work planned for this mission will increase the ISS's power capability in preparation for the arrival of new science modules from the European and Japanese space agencies.

Joining Sturckow and Anderson on STS-117 will be Pilot Lee Archambault and mission specialists Patrick Forrester, Steven Swanson, John "Danny" Olivas and Jim Reilly.

==> LEAGUE STAFFERS CRISSCROSS THE COUNTRY PROMOTING AMATEUR RADIO

ARRL Membership Manager Katie Breen, W1KRB, was in Rochester, New York for the Atlantic Division Convention and Rochester Hamfest May 31-June 3. ARRL President Joel Harrison, W5ZN; Atlantic Division Director Bill Edgar, N3LLR, and Vice Director Tom Abernethy, W3TOM, were there as well. Katie reports that both attendance and spirits were high at the event, especially on Saturday morning with long lines and standing-room-only for the VE test sessions. More than 100 test elements were given with over 70 passes. Many excited new hams came to share their good news at the ARRL Booth and have their pictures taken with President Harrison. Katie gave a forum on Saturday afternoon that included a tour of HQ, highlighting the Special Event blogs and videos on youtube.com.

ARRL Regulatory Information Specialist Dan Henderson, N1ND, attended the Georgia State Convention in conjunction with the Atlanta Hamfest on June
2. Dan spoke about the changing face of Amateur Radio since the 2006-2007 rules changes.

ARRL Chief Development Officer Mary Hobart, K1MMH, attended the Northwestern Division Convention led by Division Director Jim Fenstermaker, K9JF, and Vice Director Bill Sawders, K7ZN. The event, held in Seaside, Oregon last weekend, attracted about 2500 people from Oregon, Washington, Montana, Alaska, Idaho and California. The special event stations, W1AW/7 was operational for the duration of the convention, which also offered flea market opportunities and key ham radio vendors. More than 300 people attended the Saturday night banquet where Steve Johnson, N7VIC, received a scholarship. The ARRL table saw brisk business as publications and Field Day T-shirts and other paraphernalia flew off the table.

==> ARISS MILESTONE: 300TH CONTACT

On Thursday, May 31, Amateur Radio on the International Space Station (ARISS) made its 300th contact since its inception back in December 2000. This milestone QSO was to the NASA Teacher Conference in Houston, Texas. The first contact was on December 21, 2000 to Burbank School in Burbank, Illinois.

The United States leads in the number of ARISS contacts with 153. Japan is next with 25; Australia has 18, Canada has 16, Belgium has 10, the United Kingdom and Germany have 8 and France has 7 contacts. A total of 28 countries have made contact with the ISS through ARISS.

For schools interested in setting up an ARISS contact, first check with your local school! See if the school's Amateur Radio school station is sufficiently equipped to enable a successful contact (i.e., general technical level, transceiver + power, steerable antenna, tracking programs and such). Please take into account the expected level of deployment of the Amateur Radio equipment operated onboard ISS. Next, carefully fill out the application form (this can be found at <http://www.rac.ca/ariss/arissapp.htm>. Please make sure to include the school's educational proposal. The educational proposal should include answers to these questions: How will you: a) integrate this activity into the school curriculum and b) involve as many grade levels as you can, participating through essay contests, poster drawing, letter writing and so on? How will you get as much media coverage as possible?
For US schools, e-mail your completed application to a...@arrl.org.

For more information on the ARISS program, please see <http://www.rac.ca/ariss/faqariss.htm.>

==> SOLAR UPDATE

Tad "There's a Little Black Spot on the Sun Today" Cook, K7RA, Western North Carolina, this week, reports:

After five days of no sunspots from May 24-28, spots returned on May 29, and have increased since in number and size. There are currently several sunspots visible, and the sunspot number for the past five days (Sunday through Thursday) was 58, 58, 63, 47 and 59. Coupled with quiet and stable geomagnetic indicators, this is good for HF propagation. Our reporting week for this bulletin (the numbers reported at the end) runs from Thursday through Wednesday, and the average daily sunspot number for May 31 to June 6 rose nearly 43 points to 46.1 when compared to the prior seven days. Average daily solar flux rose nearly 15 points to 83.7.

Last week the latest projection looked like no sunspots around Field Day
with a declining geomagnetic disturbance, but this week the forecast looks a little better. Including the Friday before (the event doesn't begin until Saturday) the projected solar flux last week for June 22-24
was 65 for all three days, with a planetary A index of 20, 12 and 5.
This week's prediction for those dates shows the same A index, but a solar flux 10 points higher, at 75 for all three days.

A check of recent sunspot numbers alongside solar flux values on the same dates at <http://www.sec.noaa.gov/ftpdir/indices/DSD.txt> shows
no
sunspots when the solar flux was down around 65, but at 75 the sunspot number can be in the forties.

For the next few days expect continued quiet geomagnetic activity,
with the same moderate (for the low point of the sunspot cycle) sunspot count.

Sunspot numbers for May 31 through June 6 were 11, 41, 45, 58, 58, 63 and 47 with a mean of 46.1. 10.7 cm flux was 74.6, 79.4, 83.2, 87, 85.7,

88.8, and 87.1, with a mean of 83.7. Estimated planetary A indices were 4, 6, 7, 10, 8, 3 and 2 with a mean of 5.7. Estimated mid-latitude A indices were 2, 5, 5, 7, 8, 2 and 2, with a mean of 4.4.

For more information concerning radio propagation, visit the ARRL
Technical Information Service Propagation page

==>IN BRIEF:

* This weekend on the radio: The ARRL June VHF QSO Party is June 9-11.
On June 8, it's the NCCC Sprint Ladder and the Digital Pentathlon. The

ANARTS WW RTTY Contest, Portugal Day Contest, the Asia-Pacific Sprint (SSB), the GACW WWSA CW DX Contest and the REF DDFM 6 Meter Contest are all on June 9. Coming up on June 13 is the SKCC Sprint, the NAQCC Straight Key/Bug Sprint, the RSGB 80 Meter Club Championship (CW) and the NCCC Sprint Ladder. Next weekend plays host to the Digital Pentathlon, the All Asian DX Contest (CW), the SMIRK Contest, SARL Youth for Amateur Radio, the West Virginia QSO Party, the AGCW VHF/UHF Contest, Kids Day, DIE Contest, Run for the Bacon QRP Contest and the RSGB 80m Club Championship (SSB). See the ARRL Contest Branch page <http://www.arrl.org/contests/> and the WA7BNM Contest Calendar <http://www.hornucopia.com/contestcal/index.html> for more info.

* ARRL Certification and Continuing Education course registration: Registration remains open through Sunday June 17 for these online courses beginning on Friday July 6; Technician License Course (EC-010), Amateur Radio Emergency Communications Level 1 (EC-001), Radio Frequency Interference (EC-006), Antenna Design and Construction (EC-009), Analog
Electronics (EC-012) and Digital Electronics (EC-013). These courses will also open for registration Friday May 15, for classes beginning Friday July 3. To learn more, visit the CCE Course Listing page <http://www.arrl.org/cce/courses.html> or contact the CCE Department <c...@arrl.org>.

* New England ham honored for work with Handiham program: Phil Temples, K9HI, ARRL New England Assistant Director and Affiliated Club Coordinator for the ARRL Eastern Massachusetts Section, was recognized by Boston College for his work with the Courage Center Handiham program and participation in the Read Aloud program in the Boston school system.
Temples, an employee in the Boston College Computer Science Department and a Handiham volunteer instructor, received BC's 2007 Community Service Award at a recognition dinner in May. "You have been recognized for your efforts in recruiting, organizing, teaching and mentoring at the non-profit Courage HandiHam System Camp in Lake George, Minnesota and Cupertino, California," wrote William R. Mills, Jr., Director of Community Affairs at Boston College. "We know you consider yourself a privileged man to be able to serve others because you believe that people should have the right to live, work and learn in a community based on abilities, not disabilities."

* Local Radio Club to Honor John Hennessee, N1KB (SK): The Newington Amateur Radio Club (NARL) will operate Field Day this year with call sign W1H in honor of John Hennessee, N1KB (SK). John, a long-time ARRL

Headquarters staff member, died last year. He was 42. A Headquarters employee since 1986, Hennessee was a regulatory information specialist in ARRL Field and Educational Services. In addition, Hennessee was an active member of NARL where he was a Field Day regular; he also belonged to the Quarter Century Wireless Association. Over the years, he enjoyed operating various bands and modes, often as a guest operator at W1AW or at the Headquarters club station W1HQ. John enjoyed CW and low-power operating (QRP). For more information contact E. Jonathan Hardy, KB1KIX, NARL Field Day Chairman, at kb1...@arrl.net. Field Day is June 23-24, 2007.

* ARRL Staff Relays for Life: Team ARRL joined in the American Cancer Society's Relay for Life of Newington last weekend, raising almost $3500 to help find a cure for cancer, well over their goal of $3000. Team ARRL remembered those who have lost their battle with cancer, and walked in honor of our survivors. There are more than 4600 Relays this year world-wide. To find a Relay near you, go to <http://www.cancer.org>. You can visit Team ARRL at <http://www.acsevents.org/relay/ctnewington>.

* ARISS warns of pirate activity: Amateur Radio on the International Space Station (ARISS) reports a rumor that the ISS was making direct contacts on the 40 meter band. ARISS stresses this is not happening, as there is no HF radio equipment on board the space station, although the HF antenna is mounted. Sometimes the Goddard Amateur Radio Club, WA3NAN, retransmits shuttle audio.

* ARRL seeks new Assistant Editor: The ARRL is currently seeking applicants for an Assistant Editor to join the publications group at Headquarters in Newington. The successful candidate will fulfill a variety of responsibilities related to preparing material for publication. The primary responsibilities of the position include preparing general interest and some technical material for publication in QST and on the ARRL Web site; ensuring that manuscripts are well written and engaging, conforming to the rules of grammar, spelling, usage and ARRL style; taking photographs for publication in QST and on the ARRL Web site and writing material for publication. Other responsibilities as may be assigned, and include the possibility of some weekday and weekend travel. Those interested in the position should send a cover letter and resume to LouAnn Campanello at <lcampane...@arrl.org>.

* We stand corrected: The Contest Corral column in the July 2007 issue of QST, which will be arriving in ARRL members' mailboxes soon, lists an incorrect date for the IARU HF World Championship. It will be held July 14-15.
* The resonance probe article listed on the front cover of the July 2007 issue (now being mailed to ARRL members) does not appear in that issue.
The article will appear in an upcoming issue.

As of February 23, 2007 the morse code requirement has been completely dropped for all license classes.

If you need or want to find proof of your old license anyway, there are a couple of options. One way is to contact the Quarter Century Wireless Association (QCWA). They have a website. Another way is to write the FCC and have them do an archive search. There is a fee for this however.

From the ARRL Web Site URL:
http://www.arrl.org/news/stories/2006/12/15/104/?nc=1
"With today's elimination of the Morse code exam requirements, the FCC concluded that the disparity between the operating privileges of Technician class licensees and Technician Plus class licensees should not be retained," the FCC public notice said. "Therefore, the FCC, in today's action, afforded Technician and Technician Plus licensees identical operating privileges."

Where was any "radio content" in your followup, hypocrite?

In Leviticus 18:22 and 20:13, the Torah prohibits "mishkivei isha", a man laying with another man as he would lay with a woman. Historically Judaism has understand this mitzvah as directly or indirectly prohibiting homosexuality. Outside of Judaism, most of Western civilization has usually seen homosexuality as a willful perversion, or a rebellion against God's will.

The Torah states "Do not lie with a male as one lies with a woman; it is a to'evah" (Leviticus 18:22, New JPS) and "If a man lies with a male as one lies with a woman, the two of them have done a to'evah; they shall be put to death." (Leviticus 20:13, New JPS).
The word to'evah is usually translated as "abomination" and is used in the Bible to refer to a variety of forbidden acts including incest, idolatry, eating unclean animals, and acts of economic injustice.

While everybody is still waiting for you to actually post on topic, hypocrite.

In Leviticus 18:22 and 20:13, the Torah prohibits "mishkivei isha", a man laying with another man as he would lay with a woman. Historically Judaism has understand this mitzvah as directly or indirectly prohibiting homosexuality. Outside of Judaism, most of Western civilization has usually seen homosexuality as a willful perversion, or a rebellion against God's will.

The Torah states "Do not lie with a male as one lies with a woman; it is a to'evah" (Leviticus 18:22, New JPS) and "If a man lies with a male as one lies with a woman, the two of them have done a to'evah;
they shall be put to death." (Leviticus 20:13, New JPS).
The word to'evah is usually translated as "abomination" and is used in the Bible to refer to a variety of forbidden acts including incest, idolatry, eating unclean animals, and acts of economic injustice.

Backpedal and make excuses, hypocrite. You claim to be such a follower of it, yet you engage in lying and a deviant lifestyle.

in the book.

Please refrain from doing this. There is noone posting here that claims to be an employee of HughesNet. And even if there were, it's doubtful they would be in a position to do anything about this issue. Whatever it is.

Wrong, stupid. You used a Hughes next proxy server to post your read message headers and able to trace the IP numbers listed.

Except for the fact NOBODY lusts after you, Marqueer, but the reverse just isn't the case, is it?
Tell everybody how you found one of your former wives, in the throes

Under Mark's rationale, if a group of people complain about anything, it is a crime. Don't ever complain about the food at a restaurant in Chassell, Mark will have you arrested. Mark, your buffonery reaches a new level of stupidity everytime you allege something is a crime.
Don't ever try to defend yourself in court, the'll probably give you ninty-nine years just to keep you away from the general public.

Finally, at least there is someone on here that knows what in the hell they are talking about when it comes to proxy headers. Larry, the problem is that with Mark's third grade education, he can't comprehend a damn thing you just explained to him and he can't conceptualize the bearing your explaination has to being anonymous or not so anonymous.

Don't expect Mark to be rational. That is beyond his capabilities. Don't expect him to think his allegations through. Morkie has a penchant for accusing others of performing "ilgeal" acts, none of which are based on laws of the land, but on-the-fly, made-up "laws" that exist only in Mark's misfiring head.

Did you know that Mark is now claiming that, besides being in the "chmcal crops" in the Army, that he was also a Military Policeman? His alleged military experience seems to grow ever more expansive with each post.

Mark will return in force later this morning. He is incapable of allowing a post, any post, to slip past him sans a Mork Morgan response.
Give him a minute or two and he will most assuredly not only crap on the post, but will hijack the thread as well.

Please forgive Mark Morgan for his transgressions. He has never fully recovered from his alleged violent rape at the hands of four, fellow Army enlistees. (His fantasy, not mine.)

Of course it is highly doubtful that Mark ever served in the Army, though the "rape" story may have a grain of truth, if only due to Mark's wishful fantasies.

Mark is a congenital liar who lives in a fantasy world of his own making.

Mark wants "his" blog back. You big meanie. You purposely teased him when you said that you would consider relinquishing the blog under his call sign. You dangled the proverbial carrot and Mark salivated while looking forward to regaining the blog he so stupidly lost. Then, after he accused you of theft and "frogery", and when you told him to pound sand, he became petulant. He claimed that you did not honor your alleged promise to return "his" blog to his control.
Mark went on to claim that you had agreed to a "contract", which is Mark Morgan speak for Bullshit. Now, as usual, Mark is once again whining about his lost blog, the blog he lost due to his own ineptitude. (I am being kind by referring to Mark as "inept". Others would call him stupid.")

Gee whiz, Dloyd. Don't you feel even so much as a shred of pity for Mark? (I don't) You have disrupted Mark's life by usurping his blog and poor Mark has gone into a permanent whine mode because of you.

Far be it from me to suggest that you return his lost blog...I would never dream of saying so. In fact, Dloyd, I am of the opinion that you should continue to dangle the KB9RQZ blog spot before Mark's eyes. Let him twist. Let him whine. If you can do so, reduce him to begging, which he has already done a time or two.

Thanks for the humor, Dloyd. You have not only kept Mark dangling with "maybe" promises of a blog page returned, but you have an uncanny talent that keeps Mark dancing to whichever Dancing Monkey tune you choose to play.

When you post, Mark dances to your tune. It doesn't get much more fun than this.

Now please excuse me while I gloat over Mark's discomfort.

I do pity him on the level that his view is so twisted, It must be difficult to function in day to day life. But on the other hand, he has given so much grief to me and others, all that pity is ignored.

At one point, I actually considered returning his blog domain name to him. I felt a little sorry for him and he truly seemed to be upset about the fact that he had lost the name through an honest mistake, but of course it took him hours to admit that it was his own error.
So I decided to give it a day or two and see if he could be cordial.
Instead it took about ten minutes before he started acting like his usual "asshole" self and went on a tirade about me, so I kept the name. He truly had a shot at getting it back, but he could not maintain control.

The proof is right there in the Path and in the NNTP-Posting-Host headers, to name just two. Any sane person can look at the k4yz-1 posts and see that they were made from your IP address.

You, on the other hand, do not possess the requisite qualification (sanity) to realize that you were caught with your pants down. You continue to think that you can cover your ass by telling lies.

Roger nor anybody else is really interested, huh, Marqueer? Like your first wife for instance, she'd rather have sex with 2 blacks then you.

Marqueer Morgan confesses his homosexual and tiny dick status
when he talks about why his first wife left him
(the more plausible scenario) in http://nimbusters.info/info/read.php?board=1&id=284391:
"no I left her after catch in bed with 2 nigger bucks while thought I was on an army field exercise"

Wrong, stupid, I and many others make you dance like the gibbering

You are not college educated and your stories get more bizzare every Translation: Your situation is so sad that even if 20M was wide open during the day, you'd not be able to hear it. It is not unlike hiding in your darkened house all day and telling everybody that the sun is not shining because you can't see it.

No need to, Roger. I'll let the facts speak for themselves. Weasel your way out of this one.

GLENDALE, WV: The FCC sent a Warning Notice November 9, 1999, to General licensee Roger L. Wiseman, KC8JBO, citing evidence that the licensee had been "deliberately and maliciously interfering with the radio operations of other licensed amateurs" on 20 meters. "This interference has occurred at various times in the last several months and includes broadcasting music and other unidentified transmissions," said a letter from FCC Special Counsel for Amateur Radio Enforcement Riley Hollingsworth. Hollingsworth warned that continued operation of the type described could result in a fine or license revocation proceeding, and he requested that the licensee contact him to discuss the allegations.

GLENDALE, WV [UPDATE]: The FCC had written General licensee Roger L. Wiseman, KC8JBO, on March 29, 2000, advising that it had been made aware of "an ongoing personal dispute" between Wiseman and Advanced licensee Steven A. Tunder, N8WGM, that included allegations of interference or jamming on 20 meters. FCC Special Counsel for Amateur Radio Enforcement Riley Hollingsworth cautioned Tunder and Wiseman to review §97.1 of the Amateur Radio rules and "to make certain that whatever disputes that may exist are not carried over to Amateur Radio frequencies." Hollingsworth invited the two licensees to contact him to discuss the matter. Wiseman alleged in a subsequent communication to the ARRL that Tunder had been harassing him and that he had made the FCC aware of it in the first place. Wiseman indicated that he had been in touch with Hollingsworth to clarify the situation. The FCC had sent Wiseman a Warning Notice last November in response to allegations of deliberate and malicious interference on 20 meters.

GLENDALE, WV: The FCC requested July 11, 2000, that Roger L. Wiseman, KC8JBO, retake the General examination elements under the supervision of an ARRL-VEC volunteer examiner team. Wiseman must appear for retesting by September 11, 2000, or his license will be canceled. Applicants appearing for re-examination are granted an Amateur Radio license consistent with the elements passed. The FCC had written Wiseman on March 29, 2000, advising that it had been made aware of "an ongoing personal dispute" between Wiseman and another licensee that included allegations of interference or jamming on 20 meters. FCC Special Counsel for Amateur Radio Enforcement Riley Hollingsworth invited the two licensees to contact him to discuss the matter. Additionally, the FCC had sent Wiseman a Warning Notice last November in response to allegations of deliberate and malicious interference on 20 meters.

NA-128. Operators Igor/VE3ZF, Alex/VE3KF and Nick/VE3FJ will be active as VE2IDX from Orleans Island (QC-007 for the Canadian Islands Award) hopefully before sunset on June 29th. Activity will be for a couple of days, but their main goal is to participate in the RAC's 2007 Canada Day Contest (July 1st). For details on the rules for this contest, go to: http://www.rac.ca/downloads/2007CanadaDayContestRulesEnglish.pdf Activity will be on 80-2 meters, but their main frequencies are: 14260 kHz (daytime), and 3795 and 7260 kHz (during the night). QSL direct to VE3ZF: Igor Slakva, 105 La Rose Avenue, Apt. #803, Etobicoke, Ontario, M9P 1A9 Canada.

NA-140. Operators Steve/NY3A and John/N3DRA will be active from James Islands (Dorchester County, Maryland) as NY3A during the RSGB IOTA Contest (July 28-29th). With this activity they plan to qualify James Island (in the Chesapeake Bay) for the United States Island Award as reference number USI MD-011. Activity will be on 80-10 meters. QSL via NY3A.

SA-077. Brazilian operators Carl/PU1NEZ, Charles/PU1UZH, Tony/ PY1AAV, Vieira/PY1LVF, Flavio/PY1NDK, Lima/PY1NEZ and Rick/ PY1VOY will be active as PY1ERR/p and possibly as homecall/p from Santana Island (ARLHS BRA-062 and WLOTA-0714), July 12-15th. Operations will be on the usual DX, LH and IOTA frequencies, 80-10 meters, CW and SSB. Activity is in conjunction with the Cultural Center of Scout Movement of Brazil (CCME) in association with the Rio de Janeiro Branch of Brazilian Boy Scout Association (UEB - PY1ERR) as a Scouting Movement Centenary celebration event. QSL Manager is PY1NEZ; either direct or by the Bureau.

KD8, UNITED STATES (USI Op). Operators Dan/KD8DFD and Renice/KD8DWU will attempt to qualify Duck Island (USI MD-030, Washington County, Maryland) in the Potomac River for the first time on July 28th. Activity will be on 40 and 20 meters, mostly SSB, plus 2 meters. QSL via the USI eQSL or the callbook address.

KH3, JOHNSTON ISLAND (Delay and Update). Skipper of the USSV Dharma, Susan Meckley, W7KFI, informed OPDX that she had to return to Honolulu (while enroute to Johnston Island) because of a bad toothache. She stated that it was unbearable, but was glad that she was able to turn around and go back to Honolulu to visit an oral surgeon. Susan will again attempt her trip to Johnston Island in less than two weeks. It will take about a week to travel there. Susan likes to operate and prefer the CW mode (she states "I can get many more QSOs in"); usually 36 kHz up from the bottom of the band (14036, 7036, etc.). She will also operate SSB (ex. 14236 kHz), but can operate most anything upon request. Susan told OPDX that "I have been an active steady since 1952 and will only answer those stations using ENTIRE callsign....three letters are illegal. Might be old and old cranky sailor lady, however at almost 73 (ed. not 70 as first thought), I think I am allowed. Anyway, I am appalled at the lack of common courtesy on the bands anymore.....I don't have that many years left, but I will operate in the 1952 mode......Remember....Life is sexually transmitted." OPDX would like to wish Susan a speedy recovery. Also, once Susan starts traveling again and becomes active, she would like to hear from you as to where to go next in the area she is in. She would like to visit rare DX spots over next 3 years in the South Pacific.

KP4, PUERTO RICO (NA-099). Pietro, IT9OPR, will be active from here between now and June 28th. Activity will be holiday style from the QTH of Flavio, KP4AWX, as well as mobile operation with Pedro, WP4CCQ.

P4, ARUBA (SA-036). John, W2GD, will be active as P40W during the IARU HF World Championship Contest (July 14-15th), CQ World Wide DX SSB Contest (October 27-28th) and CQ World Wide DX CW Contest (November 24-25th). All will be Single-Op/All-Band entries. QSL all activities via N2MM. Logs will probably be loaded on LoTW upon his return to USA.

PC650, THE NETHERLANDS (Special Event). Look for special event station PC650EDAM to be active starting June 19th through July 1st. Activity will be by several operators to celebrate the town Edam's 650th anniversary. QSL via PD3BL. An award is available; see information on the Web page: http://www.veron.nl/afdeling/waterland/

AH8DX BUREAU QSLS. OPDX has been advised that QSL cards that go to Craig, AH8DX, via the ARRL 8th District QSL Bureau are being thrown out. Jack, N8DX, who helps sort cards at the 8th area Bureau, reports that AH8DX no longer accepts cards via the W8 Bureau. This is from Geary, KG8DH, who handles the 8th area "D" segment for the QSL Bureau. About half of the cards in the "D" bins are for 8R1EA via AH8DX. So please don't waste your time and your QSL cards sending via the Bureau to AH8DX.

He mentions that he will also be active as SV8/KG6ZWD/P from the Greek Aegean Island of Andros (IOTA EU-067), July 17-23. Activity will be limited because he is on vacation, but look for him on SSB and PSK31 on 40-10 meters. QSL via his home callsign, either direct, ARRL Bureau or eQSL.

Andy states, "Feel free to post your operating frequency or the state you are looking for. Any modes, any bands."

Too bad your head is so far up your ass you think 12 noon is still midnight. But the fact is, all you can do is LISTEN in on 20 meters, huh?

The fact is, fatty, it was still ONE warning letter, one advisory letter to Roger AND Steve Tunder, and ONE retest letter.
This has been discussed before, but apparently, you are too obtuse to let it sink into your defective brain cell.
Roger never lost his license nor was it ever suspended. Now, answer why YOU never did pass the General, (or learn cw) even after they lowered the standards, while Roger upgraded to Amateur Extra.

$60.00 Each Midland 70-340 VHF APRS/Packet Radio [Plus Shipping]

I have a quantity of Commercial Midland 70-340 VHF Mobile Radios 25-30 Watts O/P comes with a Regular Power Connector, Mobile Mounting Bracket and a Midland 70-2301 Palm Mic (which you don't need if you are only using APRS or packet). These radios will work excellent as an APRS Mobile OR Base Radio Station. Using this radio is much cheaper to use for dedicated APRS use rather than spending Large Dollars for a VHF Amateur XCVR and dedicate it to One Channel APRS use. The radio is Programmed and Tested Operational on 144.390 Mhz.

IF you wish the Power Cable pre-wired c/w a DB-9 Male [ADD $20] > ready to plug into a Tiny Tracker APRS Unit or any External Interface < Schematic Drawing of the Interface Cable is supplied

Midland 70-340 VHF Service Manual available on CD with a Radio [ADD $10] Sold Separately [ADD $15] includes Mailing

These radios are capable of 36 Channels and comes with a CTCSS Board, should you need it. I can program them for other 2 Meter Frequencies for a charge. Please ask should you have any questions.

Fact is, you tried to dig up something that is over 7 years old, when Riley probably hasn't thought about them after the issues were settled. You are pathetic.

No I didn't try to tease you. The only thing I did was register the considered giving it back to you after you complained, but only if you 1378. Marie Wiseman's nephew, Ron, is now a celebrity, but Woger is a failure.

Ron Wiseman has become famous for his Jewish Reggae and has a web site at http://www.ronwiseman.com. You can click on one of the links there and listen to Ron's latest album if you want.

He's Marie Wiseman's nephew (and Woger Wiseman's cousin, of course), but Woger doesn't want to admit that he's Jewish, and so he pretends that his Canadian cousin doesn't even exist.

Part of the problem may be due to the fact that, when Ron lived in West Virginia, Marie would bundle Woger into the car, drive past Ron's mansion, and tell Woger that one day, if he worked hard, he could live as well as Ron did.

Unfortunately, Woger never escaped from his 50 square foot home in Glendale, and he has now become a bitter man about the whole thing. These days, Woger spends almost all of his spare time at The Shipwreck Lounge drowning his sorrows in cheap booze. The last straw came when a Glendale appraiser mistook Woger's house for a neighbor's outhouse.

After that, Woger started hanging out at the lounge all day and betting on games of horseshoes.

He is a broken man. Pity him.

He is not Marie Wiseman's nephew, Lardass, go to the about section and it tells all about Ron's family.

Ron has never lived in West Virginia, so you must be trippin' off the

I am a consultant for an AVL (automatic vehicle location system) system used by the Southeastern counties of Michigan. The system is used on winter maintenance vehicles and works on 900 MHz. The vehicles are often stored overnight in metal buildings where it is difficult to obtain transceiver communication from the AVL system. Is there a low cost (possibly passive) way to port 900 MHz radio transmissions into these buildings?

Thanks,

Yes. You can use something like a passive reradiator of the type used with cell phones. You've probably seen the rear windshield antennas which are capacitively connected to an antenna on the inside of the car. In your case, you'd probably want a feed thru reradiator of some type.

You should be able to find what you need by using a search engine to look for passive (re)radiator devices. You might even be able to purchase standard cell phone reradiators for 800 MHz and trim their size so that they have the correct dimensions for 900 MHz.

Sure you were, sure you were. You've been watching too many Steven Segal DVDs.
How does one "take "at" (@) people" in a fight? More like you took several people up your bunghole, like you do at the Greenlight men's room.

"examply?"

No, Marqueer, it's an example of YOUR lying, and you know it. That is just another one of your lies and unsubstantiated bullshit.
